THE LIGHT THAT WILL NEVER FAIL TO SERVE HUMANITY

Last Sunday morning, at West Orange, New Jersey, Thos. A. Edison went to sleep, thus completing the personal activities of the most useful citizen that America has ever known.

But he still lives, insofar as society is concerned. Along the bright ways of Broadway, ten thousand glowing lights testify to the fact that Edison still lives. In every city, town, village and hamlet the light of Edison's eyes shine forth at all hours. Wherever church services are being held, or people gather or work in those hours and places where the sunlight is insufficient, or the sun has gone to bed, the light of Edison shines forth.

Of course, there are numerous other discoveries, inventions and devices enjoyed by society because Edison lived, but his greatest gift to humanity was light.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth, and the earth was without form, and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep, and the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters, and God said: 'Let there be light.' And there was light." This light came from the sun, which ruled the day, and an irregular moon shone at certain times during the night. The pine, torch, the tallow candle, and later, the kerosene, were used as artificial light, until Edison came.

Throughout all these centuries the lightning had flashed its challenge to mankind, showing by its brilliance that night could be made light as day, and in time Edison came into the world. He heard the words:

"Let there be light at night, even as there is light in day."

We have grown so accustomed to the use of electric lights that we are unable to appreciate their value, hence our appreciation of the life and work of Edison is not as great as it should be.

The greatest monument that we could erect to the memory of this truly great man would be to use the light which he gave to the world in pursuit of only those things that would tend to glorify his achievement.

SMALL COUNTIES IN THE SADDLE ON THE HIGHWAYS

We can understand how "hot" some of the larger counties get over the new plan of highway operation, but it is too much to expect the larger counties to understand how happy the smaller counties are over the arrangement. A large county that has its highway system about complete, with heaps and heaps of road machinery, will not receive from state operation of the highways anything like the service that such county formerly enjoyed. But the small county, with no county roads, is most assuredly reaping benefits.

Take Transylvania county and Buncombe county, for illustration. Buncombe will not receive any great blessing from the state-operated highways. On the other hand, Transylvania county roads are being improved at a rate not dreamed about even by its most optimistic citizens. Some citizens say that there will be more improvement made on the county roads here in one year under the state-operated road plan than would have come in 25 years under the old county system.

New territory will be opened up to summer residents that will add greatly to the wealth of the county. It just happens that the most beautiful sections of the county are located off the main highways, and have heretofore been almost inaccessible, on account of poor roads. Citizens living in some sections of the county have been unable to travel the roads for weeks at a time, and these citizens are most happy now, that the state is making all-weather roads into every section.

The small counties are being greatly benefited, and this will, in the end, prove of value to the larger counties, as they are "fed" by the smaller, surrounding communities.

If you are wondering about the ills of this great country of ours, read The Prayer Corner in this week's News. Dr. Chapman has touched on one of the big reasons.

HE THAT ENDURETH TO THE END SHALL BE SAVED.

(In response to requests from many citizens, The Brevard News is herewith re-printing the editorial, "He That Endureth to the End Shall Be Saved," which was printed a month ago.)

Conditions in Transylvania County are not at all good. There are many difficulties facing the citizens here. Most of us are in debt, with our property heavily mortgaged. Our county is in default on interest payments. The same is true of our town. Not more than one-third of us have paid our taxes for 1930, while many still owe 1929 taxes. A tax rate higher than had been expected is facing us for 1931 tax bill. There is not much price or demand for our farm products. Our industries are not running full time. These facts might as well be faced. There is nothing to be gained in trying to "kid" ourselves as to the actual conditions facing the citizens of our county. Taking stock and knowing just where we stand is absolutely necessary to an intelligent course to be followed, if we are to work out from under this thing.

The one question for us as individuals and as a community of individuals to determine is this:

Are we willing to buckle down to the task of solving these problems and, in time, surmounting these obstacles? Do we consider it worth while to make the sacrifices and perform the labor absolutely necessary to the successful solution of our problems?

The broad acres in the sweeping valleys are still here, rich as ever. The eternal hills and towering mountains are still here, majestic as ever. The constantly flowing streams that come dashing down the mountainsides, eternal in their activities, are still here both as attractions to tourists and life-giving to vegetation.

Now let us get at the facts in the case.

Somebody will own each and every acre of this land.

Somebody will cultivate the farm lands and exploit the grandeur of the mountain lands.

Somebody will pay taxes on every foot of this land.

Somebody will, some day, reap a rich reward from this land.

Those of us who now constitute the citizenship of Transylvania county may throw up our hands, cease cultivation of the lands, operation of the industries, conduct of business and move away, but SOMEBODY will move right in and take the place of each one who throws up the sponge and fades away.

Those of us who fail to pay taxes on our property will, in due time, forfeit out title to same, and some one else take it and pay the taxes on it, and occupy it. That is just as certain as sunset follows sunrise.

It is simply not in the picture that these fertile fields and magnificent mountains will ever go begging for ownership. If those of us now in possession of these lands relinquish our rights to them, there are numerous others among the 125,000,000 of people in these United States waiting to move in and take possession.

Some of our citizens cannot pay their taxes, because they cannot get the money with which to pay them.

Others are able to pay, but are purposely holding back. Some could pay who think now they cannot do it. Cutting out of less necessary expenditures would soon enable this group to pay their taxes.

Another group is not paying taxes because they cannot see into the future. They do not think their property worth the taxes that may be required during the next few years. This group is the one which will some day feel like kicking themselves for not holding on. If they let their holdings slip out of their possessions because of a few dollars in tax money, and ride through here ten years from now, great will be their regret. Transylvania county's assessed valuation will treble within the next few years.

Value of lands and houses in Transylvania county will increase within the next few years.

South Carolina will soon have the Greenville road to Caesar's Head to the state line completed, opening up an artery of travel over which hundreds of thousands of people will come into this county each year, remaining here for a day and night, some of them permanently. Completion of the Boylston road will divert other thousands each year into this county. There remains but five miles of road work on the Pickens Highway to complete that fine artery into this county. Widening and hard-surfacing of 234 across Pisgah Mountain, is assured, and will, therefore, become one of the main highways leading through the government forest into the Great Smoky Mountain National Park. It takes no Solomon to see the incessant travel over this highway.

Route No. 28 is to be made into a Federal highway starting at the Virginia line, through Boone, by Chimney Rock, Bat Cave, Hendersonville, on up the Sylvan Valley to Brevard, and on by Cashiers, Franklin and into the South, making another gateway into Smoky Mountain National Park. A little more work, now being completed, will bring Atlanta, Ga., within three hours of this county. Farmers and truckers may load up in the evening, leave this county early in the morning, and be in the South's biggest market by the time people there arise from their slumbers to begin marketing for that day's dinner.

Government experts, both state and federal, estimate a minimum number of people to visit the Great Smoky Mountain National Park in its first year of more than one million people. Because of this county's location, its network of highways, its proximity to the park, with the gateway of the National Forest right here at Brevard, it is but natural to believe that a large percentage of that million people will spend time in Transylvania county.

Aside from the tourist and agricultural growth that must come to the county as a result of this great expansion, there is the industrial side of the question. The big Mellon interests are not building a dam across the mountain for nothing, nor for fun. In that dam will be more rock and concrete than is in all the highways of North Carolina combined. The building of that dam means a tremendous industrial expansion in Western North Carolina. Nowhere else in all Western North Carolina can there be found as suitable factory sites as dot this county. Sites along the valley on which factories may be built are numerous, and the great advantage lies in the fact that such industries may obtain all the pure, clear water necessary in their processes, from the streams that rise and flow through the government forest, thereby assuring to the manufacturer a source of unpolluted water just as long as his industry stands.

Hold on to your property, if you can. Pay your taxes if it takes the hair off in so doing. Improve your buildings. Beautify your premises. Why sacrifice NOW, when there is awaiting you just around the corner a buyer who will pay you much more for your property than you ever dreamed of obtaining?

"He that endureth to the end shall be saved."

Pisgah Forest News

Due to two cases of Typhoid fever in this section, a Typhoid clinic is being held. The clinic is being held under the auspices of the State Health Department with Dr. Charles L. Newland, county health officer in charge of the vaccination work. Due to the water supply at the local school house, a well is being dug, thereby trying to wipe out any possible source of Typhoid fever through the water supply.

Mr. Lee Gash is reported on the sick list.

Penrose Pen Points

The Penrose school is still making a good showing. Attendance is holding up well. The P. T. A., at last meeting had a good attendance and an excellent program rendered by the school children. It is expected that Prof. J. B. Jones will be present at the next meeting to give an address. On account of hindrance in school, study meeting nights have been changed from Thursday to Friday. The school children have taken off some of their playtime this week to clean up the school grounds for better playing and also for looks.

The Enon church folks gathered in a good truck load of produce Monday to send to the Baptist Orphanage at the Mills Home, Thomasville, N. C. Mr. Perry Cheek handled the load consisting of near 4500 pounds.

Mr. Carson Woodfin has just harvested his crop of lespedeza making an excellent crop of hay and around 2500 pounds of seed. This looks like good farming. Besides the large barn loft of hay and the cash he should receive from seed, this crop should greatly improve the fertility of the soil.

Rev. J. L. Bragg is holding a revival at his church at Horse Shoe.

N. L. Ponder and Miss Fleeto Freeman of the school faculty attended the teachers assembly at Asheville last Saturday.

Miss Helen Osborne of Horse Shoe, who was a teacher at Penrose last year, visited Penrose school last week and helped us in the chapel music.
