ENTRY OF MRS. GALLOWAY IN COUNTY CONTEST.

Announcement carried in today's Brevard News that Mrs. T. H. Galloway is now a candidate before the June primaries for nomination on the Democratic ticket for the office of county treasurer will prove most interesting. It marks women's first entry into the local political field in the role of a candidate, and the county's reaction to the new day will be awaited with a great deal of interest. The fact that Mrs. Galloway is one of the best known women of the county, having been engaged in the nursing profession for nearly a quarter of a century, and that her opponent is Mr. O. L. Erwin, one of the most popular men of the county, gives promise that a real contest is to be waged.

This contest, with its new and unusual features, will be one of the most carefully noted contests in the county campaign.

MAKING READY FOR GOOD TOURIST BUSINESS.

Reports from furniture stores give evidence that the people of the town and county are preparing for a good tourist season. It appears that many people are getting their houses in order for the coming of the summer guests, and their expectations will, we believe, be fully realized. Our faith is pinned on Greenville and upper South Carolina. Many men of moderate means will be having their families in this community during the coming summer who have not heretofore been able to provide that relief. This comes from the fact that it is now just one hour from Greenville to Brevard, over the fine new highway, and our neighbors in South Carolina can come here at such less expense than in past seasons.

Another group that will add to Brevard's swelling list of summer people will come from folks who have been going to far more expensive places than this community. They will not be going in such large numbers to expensive resorts this year, but will, on the other hand, be looking out for a place where cool breezes blow and blankets are needed at night, yet where they can afford to live under the new budget system, which has been greatly curtailed even among the wealthiest of folks.

All that Brevard has to do this year, is to let the folks know that they can live here even at a lower rate than they can live at home. This is true, in many, many instances. But it is now time that we are making this fact known. A few dollars spent in judicious advertising among the people south of us will return ten, twenty, thirty fold.

PLANT A GARDEN, EVERYBODY, AND HELP OUT GREATLY.

Every family should have a garden this year, even if it should of necessity be a small garden. Each coasting ear, every mess of beans, all the turnip greens and mustard, onions, and vegetables of all kinds, will bring great relief to each and every family having a garden. Most of us men waste enough time lolling about the house to grow enough vegetables for the entire season's use. Of course, the spring fever comes, and the fishing season is open, and the shaded nooks and inviting corners of grassy plots are inviting. It takes real courage to grab a hoe and go to work in the garden, but it means food, good food, plenty of food.

Many of us could grow a good garden with the energy we waste in standing about fussing over taxes, cussing the governor, or president, for the predicament we are in. Let's work off some of that heretofore wasted energy in growing a good garden this spring and summer.

A CORRECTION

We beg to say that we were misinformed in our writup of March 17, in which we listed Rev. J. L. Bragg, pastor of the Enon Baptist Church among a group of county preachers who have had little or no college education. Rev. Bragg informs us that he completed his high school work in South Carolina, followed by a course at Moody Institute and a four-year theological course at Chester, Pa.

THIS OLD WORLD LEAVES LOAD UPON OUR YOUTH.

It is good that youth is hopeful, enthusiastic, lacking somewhat in seriousness. Our universities, colleges, high schools and other institutions of learning are turning out a great army of graduates this Spring. They fare forth into life's battles in enthusiastic manner. They little know the mess that is left by the passing generation for the coming generation to clean up. In every nation on earth there is strife, turmoil, stagnation. Debts have piled high upon pile. Obligations in the nations of the world reach figures so staggering that no one can understand the amount any more than any one can say how and when these debts will be paid.

And the generation just now coming into activity must assume these burdens. It will require the entire mature life time of this young generation to clean up the debts and unravel the tangles made and created by the group now passing into history.

Commencement addresses this year should be of honest, frank, candid nature. Platform artists in addressing the graduating classes ought to tell the truth to the young men and women who will become old and wrinkled before they have completely cleared the world of the mess and muck that we are passing into their hands and placing upon their shoulders. No sky-scraping oratory should be indulged during the coming commencement periods by those invited to address graduating classes. The plain, unvarnished truth should be given to the young people who have mastered their work and completed their course.

We believe in the youth of today. We believe in their qualities of manhood and womanhood. We do not think that they will for a moment flinch when full realization comes upon them of conditions facing them at the very beginning of their life's work. But we ought to be honest with them, and frankly admit our failures. The World War caused much of the present conditions, but did not cause it all. We prospered for a while, and lost our heads; we gambled for a while, and lost our fortunes. We have been buying on credit, and now leave the repayment to this coming generation.

INTRODUCING MR. POOLE TO OUR COMMUNITY.

It is with pleasure that we announce the addition to The Brevard News force of Mr. R. J. Poole, of Greenville, S. C., an experienced newspaper man and a thoroughly prepared printer. Mr. Poole comes highly recommended, a young man of excellent reputation. He has been working for many years on The Greenville News and on The Pickens Sentinel. He is a member of the Methodist church. Mr. Poole is thoroughly experienced in job printing, and can give guaranteed work on any kind of commercial printing.

The Brevard News is confident that the fine spirit of hospitality always so readily given to new citizens of the town will be given to Mr. Poole. He is not married, and is living at the home of Mrs. T. J. Summey.

MR. GALLOWAY'S VIEWS ON PROHIBITION

Editor Brevard News:

Many people today are expressing themselves thru the columns of the newspapers in regard to the prohibition question, and what this law is doing for our country and her sons and daughters. It is well that there are a scattered few who are so short-sighted and selfish in their beliefs and opinions that they speak in favorable terms of the return of whiskey and open saloons to our Nation. Because from their expressions that moral element and the God-loving people at this time can see what a battle is to be fought in order to make our country a safe place for the young men and women of today and their sons and daughters of future years, to dwell.

It is an evident fact that we all can not see alike, and we admit that we are ignorant as to facts on lots of questions. And we a great many times see things in the wrong light. But I don't believe any sane person, man or woman, will ever vote for whiskey, that Hellish liquid that floats young men and women down the rushing tide to destruction. It saloons were allowed in our towns and cities, and public "stills" everywhere we looked again, I say to you, it would be unsafe for us to drive, or walk, even, the public highways.

We can picture our dear wives, mothers and sisters walking down the street in some town where these streets are filled with slaving drunks and hellish villainous men who spend all their earnings for that poisonous fluid, while their families go hungry and clothed in rags.

What we should vote for, is something which will be for the upbuilding of our country. Not for something that will send our loved ones and friends to Hell. If every man, woman and child in the United States of America could only read the little book entitled, "Hell at Midnight in Springfield," written by a preacher in 1908, when saloons were open, it would not be necessary for men like me to write against that vile stuff called whiskey. The heart of you would be broken ## if you had ever had a desire there for the return of whiskey.

We hear folks say sometimes that "money is the root of all evil." That is true in one sense of the phrase. But listen to me friends. Money will not buy whiskey if there is no whiskey to be bought, and I say frankly that whiskey is the root of numerous evils. It causes murders, slanders, fights, heartaches, separations and hundreds of other deeds that I could mention whereas, if whiskey had not been flowing down the throats of the characters involved or some one of them, these dreadful things could a greater percentage of them, been avoided. I can name numbers of such cases as just mentioned that have occurred here in Old Transylvania county, where whiskey played its hand and won by sending men and women to their graves, violently, by causing wives and husbands to separate, by sending precious boys and girls out in the world, away from their homes where they had expected the loving kindness of fathers and mothers and received instead, that dreadful harsh treatment from the hands of drunken fathers and sometimes mothers. It is awful what whiskey can do.

Prohibition can be enforced, but not as long as we vote for men to fill our public offices who have never done anything except drink "moonshine" and bootleg the damnable stuff to their neighbor's boys. No, we must strive to remove such men from the ranks of public affairs and vote for and elect the moral and upright citizens of our country to these offices, and wipe out the servitude of such men as we have known to take their little tips of blood money and let the bootlegger get by. I call it blood money because it has gone over the prayers of some faithful mother who is trying to keep her son from going down that broad and beaten path of sin and destruction. It has gone over the prayers of some dear sisters or loved ones into hands of bootleggers, thence into the hands of some sheriff or cop, who turns a deaf ear and a blind eye to the liquor traffic. If these same sheriffs, cops, etc., had any conscience, any soul, they could almost see the red blood flowing from the hearts of mothers, sisters and loved ones as they poured out their souls in prayers to God to save their precious sons, daughters, brothers, sisters or husbands from that satanic poison that opens the doors of Hell in their very eyes.

Let's all vote to keep whiskey out of this country, friends. If we don't care anything for ourselves, we could and should try to help make the world safer and brighter for the younger generation of bright-eyed boys and girls, the youth of today who will be men and women of tomorrow, and some of whom will become leaders of the various aims where their forefathers leave off to go to the great Beyond. No one can realize what suffering whiskey would bring by the time these young folks become of an age for these responsibilities. These boys and girls will follow in the footsteps of their fathers and mothers and the big-hearted, honest and loyal leaders of this country. So why not leave footprints in the sand of time that will not disgrace their names nor ours.

I don't think there's any person in the whole wide world who can prove to you or me, one good deed that has been the result of drinking whiskey. The making and selling of the stuff only brings in blood money which burns our fingers and rends our hearts as we think of the tears, heartaches and suffering it causes thruout the land. It only brings grief to our souls to drink the fiery stuff when we stop to think of the prayers that have been sent up to God by the good christian people all over the U. S. and other countries in the interest of those of us who use it or deal in it, and the prayers for the horrible stuff to be removed totally from our country that it might be a better place to dwell while here on earth, and a quieter, more pleasant place to prepare for the world on high. For God's sake keep it away from our boys and girls that their thoughts may dwell on brighter and better things.

If dram-drinkers could only see the very bottom of the dram-glass and look upon the thousands of demons therein with outstretched arms saying, "Follow after us," and then just one glimpse of the end of the road to which they are sure to lead, such men would turn their backs upon whiskey and upon its sympathizers. Friends, no money can reach where that vile stuff will take you if you continue to taste it.

Let's one and all do one good deed for our country and vote against whiskey at every opportunity and make this a clean, sober country. When we walk up to the ballot box on election day, let's not forget our great forefathers who fought and died that this should be a country fit for us to dwell upon. Not that we should be chained down with bonds of whiskey. May God help you to not forget.

Each week there will appear in this corner of the Editorial Page of The Brevard News a little message that will interest you.

THIS WEEK

There have been times when the real nice things that are so dear to the heart of feminine kind could not be had in the home town (Brevard) and the people had to go forth miles to get just what they wanted in the way of nice, beautiful serviceable things (not so now.)

Then it was that the business house (in Brevard) could not afford to carry a wide selection of the nicer and better things (took too much capital) and made no effort to restrain all of the trade at home. (different now.)

There is a store in Brevard (complete department store) that is connected with all the large outside markets of the fashion centers, and who by reason of this connection can compete with any big city anywhere in price, style, quality. Some people in Brevard don't know this. (you know it now) and still have the idea that they must go forty miles to get the best at a fair price (wrong, absolutely).
