"CHORUS GIRLS TO FEATURE SUNDAY SERVICE AT CHURCH"

That would be rather an odd announcement, wouldn't it? Yet it would attract a large number who never attend the regular church services. Others who do attend anyway would not miss it for the world and a few ardent worshippers who would never tolerate such a thing would attend to convince themselves it was really true. There is no question as to what the effect would be on the attendance.

Well, all that is just supposition. It will never happen in Brevard anyway. But headlines in the daily papers state that certain ministers are in favor of bringing night club music into the church. That's the first step and then....

The churches are designed to draw men to them. They are for the purpose of drawing men to Christ. If the ministers have reached the point where they are unable to make the story of Christ interesting they had better give way to other ministers who can. Either that or convert the church into a theatre altogether rather than mix religion with worldliness. Such fantastic ideas can serve only one purpose and that is to cause people to lose their respect for the church, for the minister and even for Christianity.

Man has not gone so far that he cannot be reached through the same methods which Christ employed in his ministry. That same story of the Savior which has been told and retold for nearly a thousand years is still inspiring, and men love it as much today as they ever did. It is not the teachings of Christianity that have "gone sour." It is the manner in which the ministers present it. Men and women who must be drawn into church through "Night Club Music" and modern "Jazz" music and similar features will hardly be drawn to the lowly Savior, who, they will find, is so greatly different from the things of the world.

Ministers who advocate such a procedure are no doubt worried about the financial end of the matter and propose these measures more to fill the plates than to fill the church. They are not worth of the name of ministers.

The thing that worries the average editor nowadays is what to fill up his paper with since the elections are over.

Scientists have proved everything they have said about evolution—just as the political candidates have proven what they said about each other.

Headline says man shot in the exchange—better results are usually secured by shooting in the heart.

The weakest woman, if she be pretty, can lead the strongest man astray.

Isn't it odd—there's only one cure for a woman's broken heart and that's money. And there are lots of them who make a business of getting their poor little hearts broken. They find it profitable.

Headline says people stop spending so much money for things that are not necessities—the tax-payers have been saying that a long time but it hasn't helped much.

Nature provides us with a system of equalization—if we don't develop one part of our body some other part is developed to a proportionately larger extent—that's why so many people have little brains and big mouths.

George Bernard Shaw says it sometimes takes four years for even a small percentage of the public to rise to the level of his plays—if we said something like that we'd be called conceited.

The Marietta (Ga.) Journal uses expression "Free Grats for nothing"—we suppose that must mean without cost, duly emphasized.

With politics and the depression both ended what are people going to talk about?

AGRICULTURE IMPORTANT IN DEVELOPMENT OF NATION

Someone has aptly said that agriculture is the backbone of the nation. That would imply that it is of great importance. But as our backbone is taken for granted, never calls for attention, and continues to be an important part of our physical anatomy, without being constantly brought to our attention, so is agriculture. But when something goes wrong, it is serious. And now the nation's backbone has gotten out of adjustment. It needs attention and when the backbone needs attention it must have it if things must function properly.

People have moved off to the cities and left the farms. Now they are broke and they cannot buy the things they need from those who remained in the country and the farmer suffers because of it.

The farm differs from the city in that the man who is willing to work and earn what he eats. He may have nothing more than the very essentials of life but if he does not get these it is his own fault. This is not the case with the city dweller. When he is out of employment he is out and he has no means of securing the necessities of life.

Realizing this there is a "back-to-the-farm" movement. People who must choose between the "attractions" of city life and the "hard labor and privations" of the farm are choosing the latter. What this movement will mean is difficult to predict. It is safe to assume, though, that the thousands in the south will remain on the farms when they return. And the experiences they have gained in the cities will stand them in good stead. They will be better farmers because of this experience and they will make the farms more attractive to their youngsters.

The nation's back-bone has been out of adjustment and now it is being treated and with its return to normal the entire nation will have gone a long way toward a restoration of some semblance of the prosperity which was once its boast.

HANGING OUT ON MAIN STREET

By A. Lounger

Ed Clayton was so engrossed with his thoughts of a young lady friend Tuesday morning that he entirely forgot that the usual mornin' chores at the News office had not been done and even got his books and went to the school house only to be informed that there was to be no school on that day.... Mrs. Ramon, of Texas, whom we like to think of as just Mollie Snelson, attended the speaking at the school house Monday night—someone seeing her with her father made the remark that "old man Snelson has more pretty girls than any one man in the state...."

Margaret Barnett says if she's an old maid, she'll have at least one consolation thought—it's won't be her fault....

Mark Orr, so we are told had about the cutest little moustache in seven states—he used to sit in chapel and twist it and took as much pains with it as if it were an infant son, but so the story goes, he got so much teasing about it that he finally got some soap and water and washed it off.... Lloyd Allison is back and he didn't come unattended—and you ought to see what he brought with him—lucky boy.... Doc Galloway says he is very much in favor of optimism but, by golly, some fellows lie so optimistically it's a crime.... Clifford Monteith (and his arduous tasks at Mars Hill haven't reduced his stature any) spent the week-end in Brevard. He likes his work at Mars Hill; he likes his school-mates; he likes—well, to make a long story short he likes everything and everybody there.... What a crowd! You'd have thought it was the president going to speak 'stead of Bob Reynolds.... So Miss Patton surprised everyone by just up and marryin' all of a sudden like—well, Mr. and Mrs. Here's to ye....

Mrs. Lolia Tinsley paced back and forth, back and forth, from one end of the kitchenette to the other. As one suffering great mental distress she placed her clenched hands against throbbing temples. Big sparkling tears welled up in her eyes. Then she began walking back and forth again, drying her tears with her apron. She ran her fingers through her hair as if to tear it out by the roots; she paced some more and bigger tears welled up in her eyes. Finally, in desperation she cried out—"what shall I fix for Lolia's dinner!"

Wonder why Dick Poole stays under cover since makin' a slam at Hon. William E. Breese.... Louise Gillespie searchin' for somethin' to read.... "Times" Douglas tellin' about his trip to the South Carolina state Capitol.... Doc Newland givin' shots to.... somebody tell me how to spell Diphtheria—and boy, that place sounded like an overgrown orphanage.... Do you favor antidestablishmentarianism?.... We asked Mrs. Wilkins if she and Mary Osborne were sisters. We have utmost confidence in her integrity, but.... Jackie Clayton, her two sisters, Rebecca Summey and one or two other pretty young ladies standin' in the door of the Clayton House watchin' the crowds leave the Clemson where another play-pone was given away.... "Ginnie" Wood up and 'round again.... It won't do to let the little fellows know it but most of the big jobs are held by men whose mothers had to threaten them for washing behind their ears.... Doc Long says every man should have work to fit his brain, but think how many unemployed there'd be....

Merchants know that business is on the upgrade because it is so hard to keep it from sliding back.... Bobbie Keller applied for work at a store in Asheville and was told by the proprietor that he did all the work. "That suits me," Bobbie said. And he did NOT get the job....

P. S. Hines of Lenoir county recently arranged to purchase a car of good shorthorn heifers from Haywood county.

the Glade Creek section before going on to Florida where he will be employed this winter.

FORCED LANDINGS

By R. J. Poole

TODAY'S NUISANCE is that the people casted their votes at the wrong time. They should have changed the time of voting from sunup to sundown to sundown to sunup, because the Roosevelt crowd were ashamed to vote in the day time and the Hoover supporters were too ragged to vote at that period. We predict that both parties would have polled a greater vote if they had done this.

All the disturbance that I have ever heard, was displayed down at the football game Friday when Willie Kate Waters, and Lois Barnett put up a fight for the Democratic party against Nell Duckworth, Delin Booth and a few other Republican boosters—Practically all participating in the fracas were not old enough to vote but had probably been taught by their parents to back up their party—After hearing them slam both parties like they did, I came to the conclusion that neither party deserved their votes.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT: On Friday night of last week we happened to drop in the Canteen to enjoy one of "Docks" appetizing sandwiches and to our surprise we found Glen Burrell and Roy Burrell listening to a Hoover speech and seemed to enjoy it very much.

Now the election is over and we would like to know what the people of Brevard will fuss, cuss, discuss and talk about—Elizabeth Mills says that the women will probably take up their old habits and continue to gossip.

DAVID PRICE and Walter Clayton proved to be the stars in the football game played here Friday between Brevard and Franklin and did they shine—They starred so much that the Franklin boys really thought they were seeing stars in the Heavens and you can bet your boots that these two boys were in their Seventh Heaven.

Saturday night there were two Bozos at the Democratic meeting who seemed to be members of the "funnel gang" and displayed considerable racket in the rear of the court house while the party was producing their speeches.—It was learned that the theme song of their gang will be the "Breath of a Nation."

SOMETHING very disgusting to Uncle Sam and very economical to Ed Wike and Jack Trantham is to correspond with each other in church and not use postage stamps.

WE ARE NEARING the time of Thanksgiving when we all give thanks for what we have received in the past. We know that there will be a slam on this for there are so many that have not received anything in the last year and will not feel like being thankful, but this is not politics and we are to be thankful for what we have received from a political standpoint, but be thankful for what God has done for us.

The following are a few things that we are thankful for and each paragraph will use this head to start the article, WE ARE THANKFUL:

That we do not have politics to contend with every year.

That we are single men during such a disastrous period of depression.

That the girls do get a break every now and then and be able to propose to the boys by having "Leap Year."

That we are having no bank failures here in Brevard.

That we have Miss Ponder, of Penrose, to bring us news on Monday—Frequently we wish that every day could be Monday.

To hear speeches over the radio because it saves lots of men from embarrassment, they not being able to hear what the people are saying about them.

That women do not have control of the world, do they would run it in the ground like they do when they hear something disreputable about people in their home town.

That the president, like a king, does not have the authority to run the nation alone like 100,000,000 people out of the 125,000,000 people in the United States think.

That this is a free world—But if you get anything free you will have to steal it.

To hear that Thanksgiving is near because we might be able to get an invitation to dine out, but will be more thankful if we do not have the toothache to eliminate us from enjoying it.

That the price of wearing apparel is not going up any higher, if it does the girls will be wearing bathing suits to avoid the cost of so much cloth.

That Brevard had the street lights on Tuesday in the daytime so the drunks could see how to get around.

That we don't get all wrapped up in the good looks of a girl like (A. Lounger) did Monday night at the school house, while assisting a married lady with her wraps. He was so carried-away with her looks that when she informed him she was Mollie Snelson someone actually had to carry him away.
