

M'KINLEY AND ROOSEVELT

other and led in the tremendous demonstration.

MARCHING AND YELLING.

Now it had lasted five minutes. Not content with their frenzied hurrahs, the delegates marched in solid ranks with their plumes and banners and flags. After the demonstration had continued seven minutes the delegations moved up the aisle, while all other state delegations forcing aloft their standards formed in a grand procession about the hall. The demonstration lasted 10 minutes. Indiana started the rush to the platform, Governor Mount tearing up the state standard and leading the delegation down the aisle.

It was 15 minutes when order was restored and Lodge announced: "The chair recognizes Governor Roosevelt of New York."

Again the magic of a name sent the multitude into convulsions of enthusiasm. All eyes were turned toward Roosevelt. He stepped out into the aisle and strode up the platform looking neither to the right nor to the left and turning and surveying the sea of waving, cheering humanity he seconded the nomination of McKinley.

"VOTE! VOTE!"

The closing words of the governor brought a demonstration and for a minute it seemed the convention would go mad then and there and make two nominees instead of one.

Lodge then recognized John W. Yerkes of Kentucky, who arose to second the nomination on behalf of the south. When Yerkes had concluded he was given a salvo of applause. Almost instantly from all parts of the hall came the cry: "Vote! vote!" Delegates and spectators were becoming excited. They wanted action, not oratory. Disregarding the call for a vote, Lodge recognized George Knight, head of the California delegation, who seconded the nomination amid great applause. Then the chairman recognized Senator Thurston of Nebraska. "Vote! vote!" came from the delegates as Thurston concluded, but the chair recognized Governor Mount of Indiana, who in behalf of the Hoosier state seconded the nomination.

UNANIMOUS.

As he closed the convention again demanded a vote and the chair announced that the roll of states for vote would take place. At 12:37 the vote began.

At 12:52, Lodge announced: "McKinley is nominated unanimously."

During the call of states the galleries were noticeably attentive and there was demonstration among the delegates. This brought general applause. When the vote was announced by Quay, many of the delegates arose and cheered.

Some of the states were not content with casting their votes for McKinley, but announced the votes which the candidate would receive in November. At the call of Hawaii, the delegation stood and cheered the announcement of the new possessions for its two votes for McKinley.

The tally clerks quickly made the official summary and handed it to the chairman. Lodge took the paper and advancing to the front of the stage said: "The total vote cast is, 930; McKinley receives 930."

Now again pandemonium broke loose. The band played "Rally 'Round the Flag," and the Hamilton club of Chicago marched down the aisle, preceded by New York and followed by Pennsylvania. The huge counterfeit of an elephant, the emblem of Republican strength, was brought into the hall. The demonstration in honor of the nomination lasted five minutes.

PRESENTS ROOSEVELT.

The chairman then called for order and announced that the call of states would proceed for nominations for the vice presidency. As the name of Alabama was called on the roll, she yielded to Iowa to present a candidate. Lodge then recognized Col. Lafayette Young of Iowa. He withdrew the name of Dooliver and offered Roosevelt.

The demonstration which followed was touching and hardly second to that which greeted the mention of McKinley. The band in the main gallery played "There'll be a Hot Time" and to the inspiring strains the delegates began marching around the hall. Flung past Roosevelt as he sat in the New York delegation, extending to him their congratulations. The demonstration continued six minutes and 40 seconds, during which time Roosevelt seemed like a bronze statue, so imperturbable was he. With difficulty the chairman restored quiet and recognized Butler Murray of Massachusetts for speech seconding nomination of Roosevelt.

"Depew! Depew!" demanded the delegates in tumultuous cheers, and as they called the well known figure of the New York senator emerged from his delegation. Roosevelt himself taking him by the arm and urging him forward to the platform. He was in good humor as well as good voice, and his touch of jocosity in mentioning "Teddy" and the "get there" qualities of the "young America," brought out a storm of mingled laughter and applause. He sarcastically referred to Kansas City and Bryan. The impatient audience called for a vote, apparently assuming there would be no other candidates. With the conclusion of the roll call, Lodge announced that Roosevelt had received 929 votes, one delegate in the convention not voting. This delegate was Roosevelt himself. Lodge's announcement that Roosevelt had been nominated brought out applause that fairly shook the great steel girders to their foundation.

He was examined and bandaged by two surgeons and then went to the country homes of some of his Kentucky relatives and remained until he improved. He is still wearing bandages but his

REV. C. E. GRAMMER SPEAKS ON SOLIDARITY

Rev. Carl E. Grammer, rector of Christ Episcopal church, Norfolk, Va., spoke at the Y. M. C. A. convention at 11 this morning.

Dr. Grammer announced as his subject "Solidarity", and his first thought was that the individual is an integer. He showed that all things are interconnected; that man, while an integer, is none the less related to mankind truly and vitally. The splendid and scholarly argument of the speaker was concluded by attention being called to the missionary work and the dignity given to life by a realization of one's relation to humanity.
