HISTORY OF A PORTUNE OHN D. ROOKEFELLER TO BE A

heads of the two houses—knows Just how large these fortunes are. A few years, ago John D. Rockefeller said upon thy witness stand that he was worth within several millions. Indeed, there is no way of estimating accurately these modern fortunes, invested in many ways and subject to daily, hourly fluctuations. Probably a billion and a half of dollars is as near to accuracy as it is possible to come in statsing the wealth, of the house of Rockefeller, a business associate of the elder and many times the richer of the two brothers said within a year: "John D. Rockefeller is worth not far from three-quarters of a billion, and he will pres-ently be the first billionaire the world has ever had. "If the estimate were based upon income—certainly as fair a way as to attempt to value capital— John D. Rockefeller would today be classed as a billienaire half on the way toward his second billion. And there are in addition the several hundred millions of his brother's fortune, and the many millions of the three or four allied members of the family. The Rockefeller fortune are founded

In that year there were the ruin that seen around him. Itarclaimed: Some would go would get some sleep." It is said that the nervous indigestion which now compels him to the quietest of lives and to a diet of crackers and milk at 98 2-5 degrees Fahrenheit dates from that terrible three weeks. He owed the banks they were pressing him, but did dare to close in upon him. They kno that if he failed it would swamp then and would precipitate a panic in Cleveland—Cleveland was not so large and rich in those days, and $1,700,000 was a big sum of stoney, even in Wall

The Rockefeller fortune may there fore be dated from 1875, the year when the founding crisis was passed, though the big returns did not begin to come until about 1885, the enormous returns until less than ten years ago.

From 1860 to 1875 Rockefeller was reaching out and out to take possess sion of his promised land. His brother, and their intimate friends laughed at him, tried to dissuade him, warned him. They, too, would buy oil wells, but they would make what they could and sell out before the well caught fire or ran dry. He bought to keep, bought burning wells and extinguished the fires, bought dry wells in the hope that they would some day yield to the pump. And when his brother and their intimates saw that there was method in his madness, he invited them in practically gave them as a present the shares that were to make them multi-millionaires. And, slow and tenacious and saturated with his "mystic" of manifest destiny, he marched on to the Montenotte of 1875. The reaching out on small capital, the rising clamor and fury against his merci-

Until the secret history of the Standard Oil company is written, and it probably never will be no one except John D. Rockefeller will know how that crisis was passed and how prosperity and power were obtained brough those contracts with the railways which made competition with Rockefeller hopeless and forced almost all the oil men, producers, re-finers and sellers, to choose botween submission and ruin.

Another point in the development of the great American fortune is control of rallways-the arteries of the whois people. It is next in importance to a monopoly of some natural product. Rockefeller scored both points. It was about 1884 that some of the high-priced counsel discovered a way of freeing him from the bondage of anti-monopoly law, a method of re-organizing him into legality and asfe-ty. Soon the period of insecurity passed—though the general public did not know it and the press and the politicisms were still howling. Rocke-feller was able to shake off his pur-suers and dismiss his horde of law-york. He had at law a large security york. He bad at last a large, secure coix. He had at last a large, secure income.

And now began the rapid increase, He was a simple thrifty man, and so was his brother. They spent comparatively nothing of their income. They re-invested it in obtaining complete ownership of what they had only controlled—that is, of the petroleum industry. They developed the Standard Oil company from the single concern to a conglomerate of about 60 corporations, each engaged in a separate department of the industry. They utilized the crude oil in a thousand ways, turning to account the discoveries of science which the scientists save freely to the world. Soon, so many and so valuable were the byproducts of oil production that the oil itself cost the Hockofeliers practically nothing at all—for the byproducts more and more paid for its principling, refining, transportation and sale. For 15 years, Mr. Rockefeller and his group have been solling about a thousand million gallons of oil a year at prices ranging from 5 to 20 centra a gallon, and averaging about 7 centricand, as the by-products have hereased in number and in value, they have put into their pockets as clear profit more and more of the cuttre solling price is estimated to be all clear profit, and it is said that there is in addition a profit of from $10,00,000 to $20,000,000 upon the by-products. But railways could not alone absorb rapidly enough those mighty floods of gold; presently John D. Rockefeller's $2,500,000 monthly had increased to four, to five, to six millions a month to $75,000,000 a year. The Rockefeller bank-the Nationa City bank-is by herself far and away the biggest bank in the United States It is exceeded in the world only by the Bank of England and the Bank of France. The deposits average more than $100,000,000 a day; and it domi nates the call loan market on Wall street and the stock market. But it is feller chain of banks, which includes 14 banks and trust companies in New York City, and banks of great strength centre in the country.

The chief business of these banks is to receive the Rockefeller income and loan it to speculators, manufacturers, merchants and farmers throughout the country. And the Rockefellers not only are relieved from much of their former saxiety over investments, but also receive a double profit. There is the profit of the interest which the banks pay them for their huge cash balances, 50 and 75 and even of a 100 millions steadily maintained from day millions at a six and a stock that above the split. One of the essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a fund of information as to right living and the best methods of promoting health and happiness. With proper knowledge, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and are of not less value than the using of the most wholesome foods and the selecting of the best medicinal agents when needed. With the well-informed, medicinal agents are used only when nature needs assistance and while the importance of cleaning the system effectually, when billious or constipated, has long been known, yet until within recent years it was necessary to resort to oils, saits, extracts of roots, barks and other cathartics which were found to be objectionable and to call for constantly increased quantitities. Then physicians having learned that the most excellent laxative and carminative principles were to be found in certain plants, principally in the leaves, the California Fig Syrup Co. discovered a method of obtaining such principles in their purest condition and of presenting them with pleasaut and refreehing liquids in the form most acceptable to the system and the remedy became known as an Syrup of Figs—as figs were used, with the plants, in making it, because of their agreeable taste.

This excellent remedy is now rapidly coming into universal use as the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetons the system effectually without disturbing the natural functions and without unpleasant after effects and its use may be discontinued when it is no longer required.

All who would enjoy good health and its blessings should remember that it is the one remedy which physicians and parents well-informed approve and recommend and use and which they and their little ones alike enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects.
