All humorists have some things in common, the most notable being their jokes.

Dawes says he doesn't want the "movie fan" vote. Well, what other kind of a vote is there?

His friends refer to LaFollette as a promising candidate, but then so do his opponents for that matter.

One reason why people do not have more respect for laws is that the supply of laws exceeds the demand.

Most styles change from year to year, but no one ever questioned the supremacy of the deviled egg and sweet pickle for the picnic.

A physician predicts that people of the future will live to be 150 years old. He seems to have in mind people of a whole lot of future.

Prohibition may be a failure, but so was a lot of moderate drinking before the Eighteenth amendment became more or less effective.

Tom Tarheel says he and his neighbors depend more on what they can do for themselves than on what the Government can do for them.

If it is true that Hollywood, Calif., is getting tired of being held up as a horrible example, why doesn't it stop being a horrible example?

Whenever an editor gets a letter beginning, "I have been a reader of your paper for 25 years," he knows he's in for some more free advice.

Notwithstanding all the arrests for speeding, there are still some defiant souls who are taking a chance on a thrill, and are getting away with it.

London reports that "the Prince of Wales may be married in the fall." A better word is autumn. Fall is getting too common in stories about the Prince.

The automobile accessory thieves who are stealing tires and batteries might help the police in their campaign against speeding by stealing a few motors.

Cocklebur plants are poisonous to swine, cattle, sheep and chickens, according to recent investigations. Pigs may be saved by giving them milk immediately after they have eaten the plants.

Even the stick from that old worn out broom now has value. Fit it crosswise in the bedroom closet and place so that the hangers will not touch the wall and you have an ideal place on which to hang the clothes, say home demonstration workers of State College.

The LaFollette lieutenants are working a smooth scheme on the quiet for a slight amendment to the Volstead law. They are whispering around in different places that if LaFollette should be elected that we will get 2 per cent or 2 1/2 per cent beer. They claim to have proof that this small percentage of alcohol in beer is not intoxicating, and that they could raise a billion dollars ($1,000,000,000) in revenue, cut the farmer's taxes in two, and reduce the cost of living, reduce "bootlegging" by more than half. They claim this slight amendment to the Volstead law, which is entirely too extreme a measure, will be beneficial all around. In the old days beer contained four and five per cent alcohol.—Exchange.

Miss Mary Jane Gregory.

The subject of this sketch was born on the waters of the Cullasaja in the Land of the Sky, March 19, 1863, and passed away in the city of Atlanta, Ga., on the 29th of September, 1924. She united with Salem M. E. Church, South, when a young girl, who she held her membership until death came. She was faithful to her pastors, often sending her quarterage and dues to Mr. T. R. Gray or some one at her former home. Many of us would do well to emulate her. She was cheerful and optimistic, never looking on the dark side of life, without a murmur. Everyone loved her that knew her, so cheerful and kind, so interested in every one, even the little children. All her loved ones will miss her more than tongue or pen can tell. Our loss is heaven's gain. May her brothers, sisters, and many relatives and friends strive to meet her there by living faithful, honest, upright lives, loving God and serving and loving each other and loving their fellow men as themselves. Believing in the all-atoning blood of Jesus Christ our Lord to bring them all to heaven.

Miss Mary Jane (or by some called Parthenia Jane after her grandmother) was the daughter of Jackson and Polly Gregory. She started out as a young girl to make her living. She was employed by Bidwell and Company a few years at Corundum Hill, Macon County, N. C., and then went to Davis boarding house at Highlands, N. C. She was industrious and made good wages for those days. Also many friends were drawn to her. I have heard something like this. Mr. W. L. Peel of Atlanta, Ga., was summering at the above delightful resort. On preparing to return to their splendid home, said to Mrs. Davis, "We want the best girl we can get to go home with us." Mrs. Davis replied, "Take Jane Gregory." At any rate, she went into their home, cared for their children and became as one of the family, received good pay and was dearly beloved by their daughter, now married. She never called upon her father and mother for help, but did all she could for them. She suffered three paralytic strokes within two years. The third one came on Thursday morning, at 6:30, September 25, 1924. All was done for her by Dr. Hill, a trained nurse, and the kind family, but to no avail. She grew weaker and passed peacefully away to be with loved ones, and meet her Lord and Savior Christ whom she loved. She was buried by the pastor, Rev. R. A. Truitt, assisted by the writer, at Salem Church in the presence of weeping loved ones and neighbors. Her grave was literally covered with autumn flowers, in addition to those sent from friends.

PLEASE NOTICE!

We cannot and will not publish communications to the Press unless the name of the writer is signed to the letter. It is not necessary that the names be published, but we must know who the writer is. We are glad to get letters to the paper from every section, and sincerely appreciate them if they are written in the right spirit and signed. In the past few days we have received several letters from various sections of the county which we were unable to publish because the writers failed to sign them. In no case do newspapers publish the names of the writers of communications unless they are of such a nature that it is necessary, but no paper will publish articles that come unsigned. Those who write to the Press will please take notice and not neglect to sign the articles sent in. We get tired of throwing interesting letters into the waste basket almost every week because the writer did not let us know his or her name.
