A Stone drops down the well and the sound of it striking the bottom can be heard in 2 seconds. How far to the bottom?

San Francisco, Calif. Feb. 16, 25. MR S. A. HARRIS, EDITOR, The Franklin Press, Franklin, N. C.

Dear Sir—Your letter of January 26th received. Thanks for the item you have given us about the new power dam. We are using it as follows in this week's issue of our North Carolina Industrial Review.

Franklin, North Carolina will expend $300,000 on power dam across Little Tennessee river, which will produce 1500 hydro-electric energy. Dam will probably be completed within the year and furnish more than 1000 horsepower for industries at low rates. Manufacturing enterprises looking for a location communicate with S. A. Harris, Editor, Press Franklin, N. C.

Assuring you that we are always glad to hear a word for you we remain,
Yours very truly,

Union County farmers not only plant all the home-grown lespedeza seed that they can secure but they also buy a carload or two each year because of the value of the crops as a soil improver. County Agent T. J. Broom reports that he recently distributed 2,000 bushels of purchased seed.

Indications are that this will be a good year to home-mix fertilizers, say agricultural workers of State College. Some farmers have found they can save as much as ten dollars a ton buying the raw materials and mixing at home.

The up and downs of the hog supply seem to favor the North Carolina farmer this year. Save the brood sow and feed the pigs cheap corn next winter, advises W. W. Shay.

The young people of the Presbyterian church have been having several rousing meetings the last few Sunday nights. More than thirty have been present and attendance is increasing. Mrs. K. W. Smith led the meeting last Sunday and Miss Cunningham will call the opening number at 7:30 P. M. next Sunday. Professor Richards is president of the class and due to his efforts many girls as well as boys have been persuaded to come.

At the drawing of prizes last Saturday Smith's Drug store was filled to capacity with women and girls each with the idea that she would be the lucky winner. Mrs. Sam Franks and little Miss Jean Moore won the prizes.

Wife of local citizen: "Do you know that you haven't kissed me for six weeks?"
Absent Minded Husband: "Good heavens, who have I been kissing then?"
Mr. Sam Franks, Franklin's efficient postmaster, has received a cancellus. For the benefit of those who may not find this word in their dictionaries it should be explained that a cancellus is a machine for canceling stamps. The letters start in at one end and come out at the other with Uncle Sam's official permit for transportation all marked up, that is cancelled. Mr. Franks likewise has a hand cancellus for canceling stamps on parcels post packages.

The Press regrets that lack of time prevented publishing most of the letters of the country correspondents this week. Every effort will be made to get these letters in print next week. The Press is also receiving unsigned letters. Of course these letters go in the waste basket. One came Tuesday with 25 cents in stamps inclosed. The sender can get his stamps by calling at the Press office. Unsigned obituaries are also coming in. We cannot publish these.

Last week there was a heated argument between an alderman and a member of the board of directors of Lake Emory. According to reports the Lake Emory company wanted the town to follow the water line with the road it is building to the dam site. The town board believed it could save money by building the road through the gap. The difference have been amicably adjusted with the road going through the gap. Mr. Scott is making rapid progress with the construction of this road.
