

HOMES FOR THE HOMELESS

with help for the destitute and honor for the lowly. If you can estimate the value of the life of a child bereft of the blessings and comforts of a home, you can begin to realize what it means to enlist in the movement to swell our orphanage treasuries at Thanksgiving. If you fail to experience pleasure and satisfaction out of rendering the service suggested in this appeal you have failed to catch the inspiration from the words of the Master, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

In order that more adequate equipment and support for our orphan homes may be provided we make our appeal to—

The prince of business to give out of his abundance the actual or estimated income of a day.

The landlord and money lender to give one day's rent of his houses and lands, or one day's interest on his money.

The professional man to give one day's earnings, specifying the day or taking the average day.

The salaried worker to give his or her salary for a day.

The day laborer with only pick-up jobs to devote some special day to this cause.

The good housewife with her ingenuity and devotion to set apart the work of a day.

The boys and girls with no regular income to get a job after school hours, or on some Saturday and give the proceeds to the orphans.

In short, EVERYBODY, old and young, rich and poor, learned and illiterate, to join in this holy movement and thus to "visit the fatherless in their affliction."

We call upon the press of the state to give the widest possible publicity to this movement which is philanthropic in purpose and state-wide in extent; we call upon all church leaders of all denominations to urge in their respective congregations the giving of a day's income to their respective orphanages on or near Thanksgiving Day.

Very respectfully,

- STACEY W. WADE
- W. A. GRAHAM
- J. R. YOUNG

BROAD VIEW OF CHRISTIANITY

Christians, but the gentle, unconquerable spirit of Jesus prevailed. Rome itself became the chief center from which for many years bands of missionaries went out to spread Christianity to other nations.

The good news of Christ's victory over death and sin, and of man's right to triumph in His name was preached to the naked barbarians of Germany and Britain. Those lowly people, in response, arose from the darkness of ages, clothed themselves in the garments of civilization and advanced toward world leadership. "Time would fail us" to tell of all the great men who have gone forth in the spirit and courage of the Savior to carry spiritual light to those who "sat in darkness." Christianity was the force which sent men like David Livingstone, John Paton, and William

Duncan coursing through stormy seas to carry a message of love that would change the hearts of men who had been filled with the spirit of savagery. Christianity is the force which has freed slaves throughout the world, lifted women to a place of honor, and set in motion great efforts for the education and edification of humanity. Into the horror of the Crimean War, went Florence Nightingale, the blessed "lady with the lamp," ministering to the suffering Russian and British soldiers. From this started the Red Cross work which has caused the healing of many more diseased persons than could touch the hem of Jesus' garments when He walked the roads of earth. The knightly spirit of Christ, living in the hearts and minds of his followers, is battling against the social wrongs which cause poverty, war, and shame. It is trying to build up a great brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God. When we think of the heathen multitudes who are raising children faster than we are making converts to Christianity, when we think how many people are living selfish lives and thinking only about worldly things, we would despair of man if it were not for Jesus, "the bright and morning Star." He has told us that there is coming a bright day when all the nations shall join in the chorus, "Glory to God in the highest; peace of earth, good will to men."

But the work of Christianity in transforming the lives of individuals is as real a revelation of what our religion is as is its power to change nations and governments. Napoleon the Great admitted that the Words of Jesus had more influence eighteen centuries after they were spoken than did his own words and presence with his men. The great Emperor considered this as proof that Christ was divine.

Of course there are many who hear the call of Christianity and follow the voice for a short time and then have returned their old ways. But all of us can think of persons whose lives have really been changed by the power of Christianity—real examples of twice-born men. The change in such lives shows both the power and the character of Christianity.

The Bible is the Christians guide book. It makes clear to him where he stands in relation to life and God. It challenges him to go onward and upward till he attains to "the fulness of the stature of Christ."

If you are not a Christian, the church appeals to you to join in the great work of lifting mankind to "purer air and a broader view." Why not have fellowship with the glorious Christ by sharing in his work of lifting the burdens of men.

—RAY N. MOSES.
