SPEND LESS—SAVE MORE

Do you think you can discover any better rule for wealth? At any rate millions of people have tested this particular rule— and it has always worked.

Without a schedule, you spend every cent... money simply disappears... you had some yesterday, less today, and tomorrow nothing.

It takes a PLAN and the RESOLVE and WILL to save, that's all.

We are not alarmists but we do note a radical change in business practices. There is a tendency toward the sale of about everything from automobiles and tires to smelling salts and clothing on "twelve convenient monthly payments."

Things that people never thought of buying on time, are now exploited under the high-sounding sophistry of paying for a thing "out of income instead of principal."

While some of this selling is beneficial, being a stimulator both to production and consumption, all is not wholesome.

The margin that people are paying, either in merchandise they are not ready to buy or in what goes to cover the cost of long-time credit, this is largely wealth that is being diverted from savings institutions.

People are doing worse than spending all they make—they are mortgaging their future earnings for things that do not justify this action.

We have no intention of knocking legitimate business even when we differ with it, but we do believe in putting greater emphasis and gaining picture. We are going through a period that calls for greater activity on the part of all financial institutions.

We must work to keep the public sane and sensible. We must make the public see that nothing can take the place of a continually growing thrift or deposit account.

An investment opportunity (?) that is expected to pay 20 per cent to 50 per cent, rarely lives up to its advance notices.

Propositions have paid as much as that, but only one in perhaps a thousand. The other 999 have usually been a total loss.

How are you going to know "The one in a thousand," in advance? If you place your savings in this association, dividends are assured by our notable past record.

SURE dividends mean immeasurably more than uncertain claims, rosy promises and glittering hopes.

A word to our friends—and a word, through you, to your friends. When we possess something good, we feel like sharing it with somebody—we want others to get the same benefit that we ourselves enjoy.

In a booklet issued by one of the foremost universities, we find a receipt for happiness, stated in this manner: "Only that man is immune from circumstance who is controlled by desire for the good of all life for all time."

Maybe the above is a bit high-flown in its expression, but here is what we are leading up to, stated in plain terms: If you already have a Thrift Account with our institution and you appreciate its high value, invite your friends to join with us, also.

Tell them that all funds are backed by the finest security in the world: first mortgages on improved real estate.

Tell them that the earnings from an investment with us are the largest available with safety.

Tell them that we are helping the welfare and prosperity of this community by making it possible for people in average circumstances to own their own homes.

Those benefits merit your endorsement. So bring a friend. We will appreciate your co-operation and you will be happy in the sharing of your good fortune with someone else.

Our proposition is worth looking into. You can put it off, if you want to, but the sooner you drop round and investigate the wisdom of investing your savings with The Macon County Building & Loan Association the sooner you will be on your way toward that pinnacle called SUCCESS.

Democrats and Cold Water

Houston, Tex., May 21.—Cold water may prove a deciding factor in the selection of a Democratic nominee for the presidency in case the delegates drift into a convention deadlock and are compelled to sit through long drawn out balloting in the heat of Texas midsummer.

There being no such thing as a frost line in this latitude, water mains in Houston are laid close to the top of the ground. As a result drinking water taken direct from the tap has a temperature of 85 degrees—considerably too warm for the average politician. For this reason, the city of Houston has turned over the convention drinking water problem to engineers.

Automatic electric coolers, equipped with oversized Frigidaire motors will be scattered about the convention floor and set up outside the hall, for the relief of hot and thirsty delegates, many of whom will be experiencing the heat and humidity of southern Texas for the first time.

Refrigeration engineers, who have been assigned to the task of chilling the convention water supply will install mechanical equipment that has been tested in the blistering heat of steel mills, where a cake of ice disappears like a slice of butter on hot toast. Water coolers that have performed successfully in the full glare of open hearth furnaces will function for the Democratic delegates until some one gets the necessary two-thirds vote.

It is estimated that the automatic water coolers will provide the cooling equivalent of nine tons of melting ice daily, making it easier for organization leaders to hold their delegates in line in the event the convention fails to arrive at an early choice. This will give each delegate the equivalent of 15 pounds of ice daily for his drinking water as long as the convention is in progress.
