Carpenter Sells the Eggs

Fifty-five dollars worth of eggs from 70 mixed brown leghorn and Rhode Island red hens since early spring is the record of Elysses Carpenter of Otto. Mr. Carpenter reports that approximately 275 dozen eggs were sold in order to realize this amount, the average price per dozen being 20 cents.

Corn was used chiefly for feed, Mr. Carpenter states. He now has 200 chickens in all, including baby chicks, and is well pleased with his prospects for future sales of eggs and chickens. If any one else in the county can beat this, send the record to The Press.

Jury List

The county commissioners met Monday, July 2, and in addition to routine business drew the list of jurors for the term of superior court beginning August 20.

Reputation Suffers

The people living on Ellijay who formerly had a mighty high opinion of Mr. Allen Adams, have lost confidence in his veracity, according to the story told by John Thomas who carried the mail up that way until July first. It is understood that this loss of confidence in Mr. Adams all came about by the report he circulated to the effect that he had seen Uncle Bragg Higdon hoeing corn. For many years Uncle Bragg has been the idol of Ellijay and the good people up that way are indignant that a false report has been circulated about their champion.

Poor Old Oscar

John W. Gribble came into The Press office last Saturday morning with a Prince Albert tobacco can, the contents of which he dumped onto the floor with a cautious and mysterious air. The can did not contain tobacco, but as perfect a miniature of a dragon as ever lived.

"That," said Mr. Gribble, "I plowed out of the ground a week ago. See those pinchers? They're a quarter of an inch long, and its got a stinger a half inch long. I've had the thing a week, and it hasn't had a bite to eat the whole time, but it's been trying to fight since the day I ploughed it up. I've never seen anything like it. It's started to shed off its skin now, and it's growing new wings on the underside."

In came Ted Gribble who reads the light meters, and whose mind runs on things electrical and on nothing else.

"That," said Ted, "is nothing but one of these here old electric light bugs, not grown up yet. It's got no stinger at all, and never has had one." The argument between Ted and Mr. John W. waxed strong, but neither convinced the other that either was right. Meanwhile the miniature dragon was duly christened Oscar, and placed in a tin can to go through the further stages of his metamorphosis. Late Saturday night Oscar was heard kicking at the walls of his prison. That was the last time he gave any indication of being alive. Monday morning he was found dead. It is hoped that the body may be placed in some museum of natural history.
