When A Girl Aunt Doc Waldroop Has Thrilling Experience

"I don't never intend to get old nor dead broke." Such is the philosophy of life of Aunt Doc Waldroop who lives at the foot of the Nantahalas ten miles west of Franklin. For seventy-three years she has roamed through the Nantahalas from the Georgia line to Nantahala Station. There is not a creek from the head of the Nantahala river to highway No. 10 that she has not explored. Even now at the age of 73 she frequently camps out at night in some laurel thicket on the waters of the river she loves so well. When the call of the mountains becomes too strong to resist she dons her heavy shoes, climbs the heights of the Nantahalas and finally comes to rest beside some purling brook on the western slope. "Those camping trips are the happiest moments of my life," says Aunt Doc. There the peace of the Creator of the Universe enters deeply into her soul, the troubles of life are forgotten as she lingers in close proximity to Nature and she returns to her home with a sweeter conception of the Great Scheme of Life.

While on these trips she gathers many medicinal herbs including "sang" for which she finds a ready sale. Not that she needs the money, for her mountain farm supplies in abundance all her wants. Just at present the crops on her farm promise a wonderful harvest. "I have all I need to provide for my wants during the remainder of my life," says Aunt Doc, "but I just like to see things growing and I like to keep busy." Mrs. Waldroop states that she has never been lonely a minute in her life. She enjoys her children, her neighbors and her friends, but most of all she enjoys her mountains.

Years ago when a young girl she was gathering "sang" which then "grewed shoulder high." But let Aunt Doc tell the story. "I had about fifty pounds of 'sang' lugging it down the mountain when all of a sudden I

College Trained Teachers Increase

RALEIGH, Aug. 2.—Teachers with high scholastic training tend to increase, while those with the least training tend to decrease, according to State School Facts, publication of the Department of Public Instruction.

In 1921-22, that paper points out, approximately 15 per cent of the white teachers and 2.5 per cent of the colored teachers were college graduates. In 1929-30 the percentage of white teachers with four years standard college training had increased to 42.4, and the percentage of colored teachers with this amount of training to 12.1.

The percentage of teachers with three years of college training, the paper shows, increased from 5.8 in 1921-22 to 21.1 in 1929-30 for the white race, and from .8 in 1921-22 to 19.5 in 1929-30 for the colored race.

Decreases and Increases

White teachers with two years college training had decreased during this period from 17.4 per cent to 14.4 per cent, whereas colored teachers slightly increased from 11.4 per cent to 12.4 per cent. The one-year of college training white teachers increased in percentage from 5.8 in 1921-22 to 16.2 in 1928-29. Last year, 1929-30, there was a decrease in this type of teacher. The percentage of colored teachers of this type increased from 1.5 in 1921-22 to 17.9 in 1929-30.

The percentage of teachers with training below college level show a decided tendency to decrease. In 1921-22 more than 50 per cent of all white teachers and over 80 per cent of all colored teachers had no college training. In 1929-30 only 7.5 per cent of the white teachers employed and 38.1 per cent of the colored teachers were in this class.

a couple of cubs. One of the cubs let out a squall and the b'ar made for me. Round and round a big tree we had it. Sometimes I was chasing the b'ar and then the b'ar was chasing me. In the meantime the cubs had wandered off up the mountain. One of them again squalled and the b'ar left me to see what was the matter with her cubs. Just above where the race took place was a big rock cliff. The b'ar started to climb this cliff and loosed a land slide. Big rocks came tumbling by me with the speed of a train. I scrooched behind a tree until the slide passed and that's the only experience I ever had with a b'ar."

Nichols Leaves

Mr. Homer P. Nichols, on duty in the local forestry offices for the past several years, left a few days ago for Washington, D. C., to assume his duties in the office of the regional fiscal agent.

While here Mr. Nichols made an enviable reputation for efficiency and his transfer to the capitol of the nation is by way of a promotion. Mrs. Nichols is the daughter of County Commissioner Charles McClure. She and her small son, Homer P., Jr., will join Mr. Nichols in Washington about October first.

Wiley Rogers On Visit

Mr. Wiley Rogers of Atlanta arrived here Saturday to visit his mother, Mrs. Sam Rogers. He left Tuesday. He is now with the Tabulating Machine Company of 225 Ivy Street, Atlanta, where he will be glad to receive his Franklin friends. Mr. Rogers states that the weather has been very hot in Atlanta and that he is delighted with the opportunity to bask in the cool breezes of the mountains.

Much Fishing, No Fish

Mr. Fred Slagle, county game warden, reports that the department has sold more fishing licenses this year than ever before. A great percent of these licenses have been purchased by men living outside of the state. Mr. Bob Burnette who lives near Aquone on the Nantahala states that in the past three months there have been at least 100 men per week on the Nantahala. However, Bob says that the fish have been holding a big convention in a deep hole and have not been at home to their friends.

THE DRAINS

A long handled button hook is a convenient utensil to clean out a drain choked by lint. Do this frequently and prevent a bad case of pipe trouble and the necessity of calling the plumber.

and her husband, Blanchard, saw a big bear helping himself to the leavings immediately back of the house. About that time Dr. Rogers came by and Blanchard proceeded to tell him about the big bear and asked Dr. Rogers to look at its tracks. "When was the bear here?" asked Dr. Rogers. "Only a few minutes ago," replied Blanchard. "Sorry, Blanchard," said Doc, "but I have a hurry call in Franklin." With that Doc stepped on the gas and Blanchard reports that the roar of the motor could be heard until the Doctor topped the hill at the home of Mr. E. S. Hunnicutt about three miles away.

Mayor Buys Home

Mayor George Patton has purchased what is known as the Carelock residence in the Fairgrounds Subdivision on the southern outskirts of Franklin. This home was built about three years ago by Lawrence Limer, assistant cashier of the Citizens Bank. Mr. and Mrs. Patton announce that they are now at home to their friends in their new home.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Nequassa Chapter, No. 43, Order Eastern Star.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call from among us one of our most loyal and esteemed members, Sister Bertha Lee McCracken, who at one time served as secretary and was always a faithful, loyal and beloved member,

Therefore: Be it resolved that we know our chapter has lost a faithful and true member, and be it further resolved that out of due respect and fraternal love for her and sympathy for her husband, children and friends, Nequassa Chapter hereby records the foregoing resolutions.

Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband and family and a copy to The Franklin Press for publication.

We shall love and cherish her memory in our chapter.
