matter waht it was it made itself felt. Unless the reader fully realizes that one of three periodic business depressions had set in when the World War startled the world, he can not understand present conditions.

So let us begin with the "buy-a-bale" movement and cease pinching times. Reason and common sense taught all of us oldsters that the time for thrift, economy and retrenchment was at hand, but the youngster who had not experienced the depressions of the two preceding times of suffering took the bit in their teeth and ran away. Now they are wondering what in the name of Hoover has hit them. We have had one grand big spree and the bills are to pay. The most wicked, unreasonable and asinine act in the whole tragedy was performed last year in Wall Street. All agree that it was an insane performance, and some blame Hoover for that as wel as all other misfortunes including the drought.

We must work, save and pay. We have squandered billions and in the end our saving must equal our squanderings. This is nothing new to us oldsters, buft it will be an awakening to the youngsters who have more to learn than they think they now know.

The Macon Theatre has a talking equipment that is a credit to any town the size of Franklin. It was indeed a surprise to us. The effects are lacking very little in comparison with the larger theatres over the South.

We know a fellow who delights to participate in an argument. In fact he likes to argue so well he ought to eat something that doesn't agree with him.

Mr. Ben McCollum has traded his roadster for a coupe. Just another sign that—winter is just around the corner.

Endurance Contest

Speaking of "Endurance Contests" we know one that has been noticed but has not been given any publicity. The contenders are Lt.-Col. (alias Major) Harris and managing editor Mr. Street, of The Highlands Highlands Maconian. They both are proud owners of an antique Ford. Lt.-Col. Harris has a sedan, Mr. Street a touring. The sedan seems to have a few seasons of rattle on the touring car. To see them it appears that both are running neck and neck. And to hear them in operation—well, you probably have heard a caterpillar tractor wide open. Anyway the liz-

MORE THAN 330,000
VOLUMES LIBRARY
BOOKS IN SCHOOLS

Nearly 1,500,000 library books were used by the children enrolled in the 385 standard elementary schools of the State during 1929-30, according to records just compiled in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and released to the press today.

In these standard elementary schools, the statement reads, there are now over 330,000 volumes of library books with more than 143,000 of the number in the rural schools. These books in the rural school libraries were widely read, over 8,000 rural boys and girls reading library books. Nearly 800,000 volumes were loaned to them during the year.

In the standard elementary schools in the city systems of the State there are now more than 188,000 library books with a total of 64,645 borrowers and 687,930 volumes loaned during the year.

In 1924-25, the number of library zies are both good vehicles for the shape they're in.

The Used Car Market of today seems to be overcrowded. Probably some dealers have omitted the "ab" in Used.

One reason for the 'hard times' is that too many people have dropped the lines and gripped the steering wheel.

books in standard elementary schools was small as compared with the number today, only 10,800 in rural schools, and 18,500 in city schools, a total of 29,300 volumes available to the 100,000 children enrolled in these schools.

The circulation record of 1,480,168 volumes read by rural and city children is for the standard elementary schools only. In many other elementary schools throughout the State, libraries are being established, and children are taking advantage of the opportunities offered them for an acquaintance with good books. During 1928-29 there were more than 1,150,000 library books in all public elementary and high schools of the State, whereas two years previous in 1926-27 there were 883,725 available library books in the public schools.

PERSPIRATION

If the sweat glands of the underarm and feet are excessively active, they may be made less so by th use of a twenty-five per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water. After a bath, daub this on and allow it to dry. Do not put on your clothing until it is dry. Do this, twice a week, twenty-four hours apart, during the first week. After that once a week will be enough.

Chesterfield

MILDER, YES—BUT SOMETHING MORE. Chesterfield offers richness, aroma, satisfying flavor.

BETTER TASTE—that's the answer; and that's what smokers get in Chesterfield in fullest measure—the flavor and aroma of mellow tobaccos, exactly blended and cross-blended. Better taste, and milder too!
