Mrs. Bill Cunningham Attends Home-Coming

The Fine's Creek neighborhood over in Haywood county had a Home-Coming Day not long ago and among those who went back to the scenes of their childhood was Mrs. Will Cunningham. Below we give her meditations as she lived over again the days now dead:

THE MAGICIAN

'Twas a beautiful day in September,
In the midst of a mystical land;
Fond memory walked closely beside me,
And waved her most magical wand,
As I gathered the dead all about me
From youth's half forgotten lost land.

From memory's camp I hear the voices,
Can hear their joyous revilee.
Can see the memory figures moving,
Through the open, 'neath the tree,
While all the air is filled with music,
Like a violin touched gently.

Comes from the hazel bush the lapwing,
The crow's hoarse caw from dizzy height,
The drowsy droning of the bee's wing,
And noisy partridge takes his flight,
The blackbird piping from the tree tops,
And cowbells tinkling home at night.

Then up the old familiar highway,
Across the summit of the hill,
To the old home's fruitful acres,
The little cottage beside the rill,
Where the barefoot romped with pelasaure,
Now grown up hearts with rapture thrill.

Then down the old secluded cow path
By barefoot traveled years ago,
To my one time Mississippi
Which now to me seems small and slow,
The same blue iris bends above it,
Reflected in the blue below.

O, the splendor of these hills and valleys,
The mysteries of these forests rare,
Why rush we off into the city
Seeking life with flower decked hair,
When here life lingers all about us,
With flowers a thousand times more fair.

KATE M. ROGERS WRITES HYMN

By request The Press is publishing the following hymn written by Kate M. Rogers of Ellijay:

PRAISE THE LORD

Oh for a heart to praise our God;
A mind and soul on fire,
That we walk where Pilgrims trod,
And other souls inspire.

Oh for a heart to praise our God
And conjure into the thought
That those who understand His will
To Him some others brought.

Oh for a heart to praise our God
Our God whose eyes see
Our every need and spplieth them
Before we lisp a prayer to thee.

Mrs. Ed Angel, who is visiting relatives and friends here, had a telegram last Monday from her husband stating that Mr. Angel's mother died at her home in Olympia, Wash., Monday morning.
