

Franklin Press Is Sold By Major S. A. Harris To Blackburn W. Johnson

Asheville Newspaper Man
Becomes Editor of Publication

POLICIES OUTLINED

To Be Progressive and Promote Welfare of Macon County

The Franklin Press, the oldest newspaper in North Carolina west of Asheville, has been purchased from Major S. A. Harris by Blackburn W. Johnson, former Asheville newspaper man.

Mr. Johnson took charge of The Press Saturday afternoon and, beginning with this issue, assumes personal direction of the editing and management of this newspaper, and the operation of its job printing plant. In line with modern newspaper development, he has decided to enlarge the publication to a seven-column newspaper, 22 inches by 16 1/2 inches in size. Formerly, the size has been five columns, 13 inches by 20 inches.

This expansion will enable the editor to present a greater amount of news in a brighter, more interesting manner and he feels confident that it will meet with the approval of both readers and advertisers.

PLANS TO OPEN BANK PROGRESS

Negotiations Under Way
To Reopen Doors of
Bank of Franklin

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Many Depositors Pledge
Cooperation With Directors' Plan

The past week has brought definite and important steps looking to the reopening of the Bank of Franklin or the opening of a new bank, for which a charter already has been obtained under the name of the Bank of Macon, but pending the outcome of negotiations now under way no definite decision has been reached as to which course will be followed.

Last Saturday morning a board of directors was elected by the persons who have signed up as stockholders in the proposed new bank and the same afternoon depositors of the Bank of Franklin met with directors of the institution in the courthouse and discussed the plan. Pledges were obtained from 110 depositors that they would abide by any decision of the state banking examiner looking toward reopening the closed bank.

CONFERENCES HELD

Conferences were held Monday and Tuesday between a committee representing the depositors and the bank's board of directors and a sub-committee went to Asheville Tuesday afternoon to confer with Garnet Henson of the State Banking Department. Negotiations between the depositors and the directors still are under way.

At the meeting in the courthouse Saturday it was pointed out by various speakers that it will be greatly to the advantage of the depositors to agree to sign agreements not to withdraw their funds for a certain period in order to make reopening of the bank possible. The opinion was authoritatively expressed that the depositors would get their money much sooner under an agreement permitting reopening of the bank than they would if the bank is permitted to go through the procedure of liquidation. Confidence was voiced by some that part of the depositors' funds could be made available to them before expiration of the period to be set by State Banking Examiner Mitchell.

H. L. Cabe, cashier of the Bank of Franklin, announced that Banking Examiner Henson had informed him that 95 per cent of the depositors must agree to leave their funds intact for the period to be set by Mr. Mitchell in order to reopen the bank.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Members of the committee conferring on the question of reopening the bank follow:
Depositors: Joseph Ashear, Dr. W. E. Furr, Claude Russell.
Bank directors: Sam L. Franks, M. L. Dowdle, Gilmer A. Jones, R. D. Sisk, George Patton.

Big Meeting of Farmers To Be Held on January 31

In promoting the agricultural program for North Carolina as set out by Governor Gardner to "Farm to Make a Living in 1931" there will be a county-wide farmers and business men's meeting Saturday, January 31, at the court house. This meeting will be held under the direction of County Agent V. S. Sloan.

PROBLEMS FACED

The problems confronting the farmers today are such as: What about increasing acreage on Irish potatoes, production of pork, or poultry, or corn, or change from dairying to beef production, or putting in more acreage to truck crops for the southern markets. The solution to these, says Mr. Sloan, depends upon the sound judgment of the farmers based on facts and figures as presented in the agricultural outlook for 1931.

PURPOSE OF MEETING

The main purpose in holding such a meeting in each county is to help the farmers in each section to realize and understand just what they are facing along each line with this year's production. It is intended that this will aid them in planning a program of agriculture to be practiced by them this year.
