

STATE TAKES OVER BONDS

tion of the county road tax and reduction of the school tax, the total saving amounts to 48 cents. However, Mr. Barnard said it will probably be necessary to increase slightly the levies for the county sinking fund and for general county government expenses. He estimated that, after readjustments in valuations within a 10 per cent range, it would be necessary to levy a total county tax of a few cents more than a dollar. If the state had not taken over payment of the road bonds it is regarded unlikely that the county could have made any reduction in taxes this year.

The new rate will not be definitely set until Tom Bryson, register of deeds, has filed his report for the past year, and revaluation adjustments have been made.

The contract by which the State Highway Department assumes payment of the Macon county road bonds until 1943 was negotiated through Charles Ross, attorney for the highway body. The commission already had advanced the county 21,770 to assist in meeting previous payments due. In effect, the agreement means that the state has assumed full responsibility for the principal of the bonds, although for a period of years it has agreed to pay both principal and interest.

Of the 227,561 farm laborers, 153,087, or 68.7 per cent, were unpaid family workers. The various manufacturing and mechanical industries employed 286,245 persons, the largest numbers being in cotton mills, in the building industry, and in cigar and tobacco factories. There were 53,968 persons engaged in transportation, 99,193 in trade, including banking and insurance; 13,483 in public service (not elsewhere classified); 45,702 in professional service; and 101,436 in domestic and personal service.

In the bulletin which has just been issued there are a number of features not contained in the 1920 census reports, including a presentation of the number of gainful workers in each of about 30 industry groups, by counties; detailed age data for counties; a classification of the population of each town by color, sex, age, etc., and an extensive presentation of statistics for the rural-farm population and the rural-nonfarm population.
