J. O. U. A. M. NEWS CORRAL

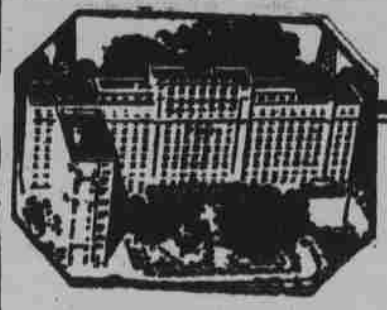

Edited by JOHN W. EDWARDS

To begin with, the "J. O. U. A. M. News Corral" is a new feature of The Franklin Press. Mr. Blackburn W. Johnson, the editor of The Press, has treely given us Juniors space each week for our news; and in return every Junior in the county should be a subscriber to The Press. If every lodge in the county would send me each week their council news I would arrange it to suit our column and have it printed.
The aim is to have a complete write-up of all the important happenings concerning the Juniors in the county; occasionally printing state and national happenings which have a direct interest to us Macon Juniors. If we carry out our work as intended we should not only be well posted about our own affairs; but at the same time be advertising our order. By constantly keeping our lodge before the eyes of the public we are placing our order in a position to gain in popularity and membership.

Now, brother Juniors, here we go! You should be sure that The Press is coming to your home each week, and help out the brother who may not be a subscriber by seeing what he is missing, and not him tied up with The Press. Be sure that your council has someone to send in the news of your council each week. Just mail it to John W. Edwards, Box 321, Franklin, N. C., and it will be published at once. See that all news is in by Saturday that you want published in the next Thursday's Press. LET'S GO! DO YOUR SHARE!!

INSURANCE
There is a difference in life insurance. The old line life insurance and the fraternal life insurance are each commendable in their accomplishments, but the fraternal life insurance has the lead in worthiness.
There are men who would never think of taking out life insurance, yet they are anxious to join some fraternal organization. The Junior Order is a lodge for Americans and it carries insurance for its members. In reading the short story below can you see the difference between fraternal insurance and the old line insurance?

"BROTHERHOOD"
Jake Ryne was approaching the age of forty when he moved into the Meadow Land community. His wife and three small children ranging from the age of four to ten years completed the family. Jake had always been a happy-go-easy with no worry about the 'morrow. He had been short two hundred dollars when he bought the thirty acre farm; thus his early life in Meadow Land was more burdensome by the two hundred dollar debt.
Mrs. Ryne had often begged Jake to carry some life insurance, but Jake had always laughed off the affair, and besides claimed he wasn't able to pay down a first payment on insurance.
Now the Meadow Land community had, besides churches and a school, another great public institution; that was Meadow Land Council No. 642, Junior Order of the United American Mechanics Lodge. Jake found that if he was to take a hand in the leading social activities of the community, he would have to join the order.
So one day Jake approached Mrs. Ryne with the subject: "Molly, if I ever get in the life of this community I will have to join the Juniors. All the leading men of the community are members and it seems that everything of importance gets its start in that Junior Hall. The men are always telling me of the good the lodge has done, or has started to do now. I'm going to join." Mrs. Ryne was greatly pleased and encouraged Jake all she could. A week from the date of the resolution, Jake was a Junior.
The Ryne's moved into the Meadow Land community in early spring. Their crops were soon making green the fertile land of their farm. Jake seemed to be getting more out of life since he had become a Junior. He was on to all moves of progress and good will, the community enjoyed, first handed as the Juniors were the improvers in the community.
It seemed as though Mother Nature was blessed with growing weather all the spring. Rains were just plentiful enough mixed with the growing sun rays, and the crops were on the road to be bumper. Jake was cutting hay one day, and had stepped out in front of his spirited team of horses to adjust something about the head gears; then he discovered that he had stopped the team over a yellow jackets' nest. Before he could check the team they had bolted, knocking him down, running over his body and dragging the mowing machine after them.
His body was such a wreck that the doctors announced that death would come at once. But death was cheated for three months and a few days. The brother Juniors came in and gave him all comfort that was in their power to render. They stacked his hay; later stored the crops in barn and crib, while at the lodge hall they kept up his dues.
Death came at last on one cloudy, gloomy day in the late fall, but the Juniors were there to pay their last respect. The National lodge sent along a few days later a certified check for five hundred dollars.

Mrs. Ryne paid the funeral bills and the two hundred dollar debt against the farm, having money left to tide her and the children over the winter.

WAS IT FOX OR SQUIRREL?
Franklin, Nov. 9. (Special to The Press).—Mr. C. M. Moore, our own brother Junior and Democratic elected corner of Macon county, became greatly excited one day last week. He, for some reason, went out into the frost very early; maybe to feed the cows, and he saw a gray fox trotting around his garden. He rushed to one of the leading fox hunter's home and borrowed some fox hounds—but they didn't fox race at all.
Mr. Moore lives in Franklin, about one block northwest of the Nantahala creamery.
It is not the proper thing to say that the beast he saw wasn't a fox; for one of the good neighboring women said she saw it and a big dog wasn't larger.
Then where does the doubt come in? The dogs wouldn't run the animal—and it was heard spoken by another man in that community that it must have been a gray squirrel.
