WCTC Plan Memorial Stadium quota set up for each community up to this time for the 1946 drive: In Honor Student-Alumni Vets

Plans are well under way at Western Carolina Teachers college for the proposed $40,000 Memorial Stadium to be erected to the honor of students and alumni who served their country in the armed forces of World War II. Announcement of the progress on the project was made by Dean W. E. Bird, who says that a spirit of optimism prevails at the college following the initial drive being made among the faculty and students of the institution.

According to Dean Bird, the faculty, other employees, and students of the college, on a canvass which as yet is not complete, has already pledged approximately $6,000 of the total amount being sought. Of this sum the faculty and other employees have, to date, pledged $3,300, the students $2,600. Almost without a single exception the entire college population have responded with pledges; however, several have not yet been given an opportunity to pledge gifts. It is predicted that when the canvass is completed the amount to be raised from the college will equal or exceed the $6,000 mark.

The next move, according to in the last six months, 138 small Dean Bird, is the get-to-gether slaughters have closed, and now Respectfully submitted, meeting including a buffet supper since the new order of April 1, A.
