

New Type Building Material To Be Manufactured At Dillsboro; Have Three County Coverage

Dunbrik-Dunstone Is Name of Materials Developed By Dunn

Sam R. Owens, World War II veteran, Charlie B. Gray and Sexton Vinson have been granted a franchise by W. E. Dunn Manufacturing Co. to manufacture their new Dunbrik-Dunstone building material. The franchise covers Jackson, Macon and Swain counties, and Dillsboro has been selected as the site of operation.

This building product is made of concrete and is suited to all types of buildings from modest cottages to pretentious public structures—residences, farm buildings, schools, churches, stores, gasoline stations—every kind of commercial and industrial building.

Dunbrik and Dunstone are modern masonry units, exclusive in character and suited to an almost unlimited range of use. They are superior to the older and more conventional masonry products and although they have color, style, accuracy, highly stressed form and flexibility, they still offer vast economies to prospective builders.

Dunbrik is the modern brick of standard size, production and cubic content, but with a recessed design which offers several specific advantages. To the mason it means better workmanship with less effort and time as Dunbrik is lighter in weight because of the recessed design. This recessed design offers anchorage between brick and mortar. Instead of floating on top, as in ordinary brick, its edges press into the mortar locking the brick into position.

Dunstone multiple brick possesses all the qualities of Dunbrik strength, density and accuracy, with the added advantage of cost reduction and greater flexibility of construction. The units can be made in different sizes and colors, all in the exact multiples of Dunbrik, plus the built-in mortar joints.

Dunbrik and Dunstone can be made in an almost endless variety of colors and shades, thus providing prospective builders opportunity to secure a wide range

More Firms and Individuals Send In C of C Membership

President Felix Picklesimer has announced a list of additional memberships to the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce which have come in since last week's list was published in The Herald. The directors are pleased with the fine response the citizens are giving to the membership drive this year. They are anxious for as many firms and individuals to become members as possible in order to have a strong, effective organization.

Memberships received since last week are: Herbert Gibson, Mary Cowan, Frank Cowan, F. M. Williams, Heden's Barber Shop, Sylva Pharmacy, Sanitary Market, Hotel Carolina, Sylva Electric company, Dr. Grover Wilkes, Mack Ashe, Moody Funeral Home, Howard's Esso Service, Builders Supply and Lumber company, Sylva Hotel, Dr. W. F. Russell, E. O. Mashburn and McNeely's Store.

Sylva Supply Company, Clark's Place, Glenn's Tourist Home, Dixie Home Stores, Redwing Tourist Cabins, Sylva Bus Station and H. E. Monteith.

All who have not sent in their membership are urged to do so at once in order to bring the drive to a close. Since it is impossible for the workers to see everyone in person they do not want anyone to feel slighted, so if you have not been called upon, send in your membership and it will be duly recorded.

The Tri-County Mutual Marketing association at Spruce Pine expects to begin permanent operation June 15.

OUTDOOR WRITERS ENTERTAINED BY WESTERN COUNTIES

Barbecue And Program Held Saturday At Cherokee

One hundred and fifty members of the Outdoor Writers Association of America from seven Southern States were guests of the chambers of commerce in towns and counties of Western North Carolina at a barbecue dinner in Cherokee Indian village Saturday.

Those representing the Jackson county chamber of commerce who attended were: President Felix Picklesimer, Vice-President Roscoe Poteet, Griffin Middleton, Sheriff Leonard Holden, Patrolman Charles Lindsay and J. A. Gray of The Herald.

Groups from Asheville, Waynesville, Franklin, Bryson City, Andrews and Murphy, also attended.

McKinley Edwards of Bryson City was master of ceremonies at the barbecue. He extended the welcome to the visitors and L. B. Locke, president of the writers responded. The motorcade in which the group came from Chattanooga, was in charge of Bert Leiper, formerly of the Asheville Citizen staff.

Blair Ross, superintendent of the park, and Arthur Stupka, park naturalist, gave brief summaries of work being done in the park. They said that the rose purple rhododendron is now in the height of bloom.

Following the barbecue and program the writers drove on to Newfound Gap where the motorcade officially ended. From there the cars separated, with the individuals going home or visiting other sections.

Francis Buchanan, who attended school at Oak Ridge Military Institute, has arrived to spend the vacation with his mother, Mrs. M. Buchanan, Jr.

HUNTERS OPPOSED TO CLOSING DEER SEASON

Jackson county sportsmen are opposed to the action of North Carolina Game and Inland Fisheries in closing the deer hunting season for Western North Carolina next season. The department says that this is to be done in order to trap and redistribute the deer.

The State Wildlife Federation also opposes the action and spokesmen say that law enforcement at this time is not strict enough to enforce a closed season.

"When a closed season is decreed but is not strictly enforced, game supply is jeopardized by unlawful hunting by violators," Federation officials say.

Sylva War Dog Gets Honorable Discharge

"Foots," German Police War dog, owned by Harley Stanley of Sylva, received his honorable discharge, along with a certificate of faithful service, from the Quartermaster Corps K-9 section U. S. Army on May 27, and arrived in Sylva this week.

Foots served for 34 months, most of the time in the South Pacific on scout duty. He was trained and handled most of the time by Mr. Stanley himself, who also served in the South Pacific for 31 months. Mr. Stanley received his discharge four months before his dog was discharged.

Foots is a large, intelligent looking animal, and is said to have rendered valuable service on scout duty against the Japs. Over 200 dogs were working in Foots' section during the war.

SEVENTY-FIVE SOUTH CAROLINA NEWS BOYS ENJOYING VISIT HERE

Seventy-five boys between the ages of eight and 16 years, are spending four days at Carolina Hotel here this week. The boys are under the leadership of J. C. Stedfole and W. E. Bannister, and they are from Anderson, S. C. The boys are carriers for the Anderson newspapers and won their trip on the merit system.

The newspapers have sponsored these trips for the past several years, each time coming to Sylva as their outing headquarters. Sylva was chosen because of its headquarters facilities and for the many nearby places of interest for the boys to visit. They arrived Monday at noon and will leave Friday. While here they are enjoying the swimming pool, trips to Cherokee, Greenville Lake, Park, Fish hatchery and other points of interest.

SMOKY MOUNTAIN MUSIC CENTER WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY

Dr. Huebner To Again Head Music Faculty At Western Carolina

The Smoky Mountains Music center will soon be in session for its fourth summer at Western Carolina Teachers college, according to Dean W. E. Bird.

June 10 Music center will open with five well-known musicians on its faculty. An integral part of the regular summer term, the Smoky Mountain Music center has for the past several years attracted a large number of music lovers from all over the east to Cullowhee. Courses in sight singing and ear training, opera technique for singers, directors, and conductors, song repertoire, music therapy, orchestration, ensemble, folk music of the Appalachian Mountains, and late Romantic and Modern Music history will be offered.

Dr. Ilse Huebner, director of the Out-of-Door school at Sarasota, Fla., will be director of the Music center again this summer. An Austrian by birth and graduate of two Viennese conservatories, Dr. Huebner was a former student of Grieg and Dvorak. She is widely known in music circles all over America, her students coming from practically every state in the union.

Also on the faculty of the Music center this summer is Clifford Edwin Bair, member of the faculty at Salem college and specialist in voice, song repertoire, and opera.

His appearances in this country and abroad include leading roles with the Chicago and Detroit Opera companies and performances at the Festpiel Hans and Stadt theatre, Salzburg, Austria. Mr. Bair is the organizer of the Festival Opera group, devised to give young singers in this section of the coun-

FIRE DEPARTMENT PLANS CELEBRATION

A Fourth of July celebration to include a greasy pig, greasy pole-climbing contest, a balloon-jump, and a parade of floats was announced yesterday by Charles Campbell, chief of the Sylva Fire department. The program, still in tentative form, is also scheduled to include a fire equipment demonstration.

Chief Campbell cautioned, however, that much co-operation would be needed from the local citizens in order to assure a success in the celebration.

All organizations interested in entering a float in the parade are urged to see Mr. Campbell.

To Have Assistant Home Demonstration Agent

Miss Helen Sossamon of Midland has arrived to begin her duties as assistant Home Demonstration agent of Jackson county, according to an announcement by Miss Josephine Johnston, Home Demonstration agent. This is the first time that the county has ever had an assistant in this line of work but due to the increased number of clubs in the county it is believed that more service can be rendered under this set-up.

Miss Sossamon is a graduate of Appalachian State Teachers college, having completed her training there in this year's class. She is enthusiastic about the field of work in Jackson county.

Miss Sossamon is a sister of Boyd Sossamon of Sossamon Furniture company.

Annual Coward Reunion To Be Held Next Sunday

This is the 54th annual reunion. It is held each year on the Sunday nearest the birthday of the late Nathan Coward father of Mrs. Glenn and Miss Jane Coward of Sylva.

A son-in-law, Will Norton, who has attended all previous reunions, plans to be present this year.

Elliott Finals Speaker For Seniors At Cullowhee

W.C.T.C. SPEAKER

P. L. ELLIOTT

57th Commencement Of W.C.T.C. Concluded Last Monday Morning

"I come to speak to you about the high adventure of living today and the elements in vital preparation for it," said P. L. Elliott, president of Gardner-Webb college, who delivered the literary address before the graduating class of the 57th commencement at Western Carolina Teachers college in Hoey Auditorium Monday morning.

Recalling the chaotic conditions 27 years ago following World War I with its false evaluations, selfishness, immorality, and greed, President Elliott pointed out parallels in this post-war period when a few vicious and unprincipled men tie up the whole economic process while an impotent government that was able to harness the industry of this country for war and send 11 million men to the ends of the earth to die, sits by powerless to do anything. "There is really no shortage," the speaker declared, "except that of integrity and unselfishness."

"Essential needs for the race and individual which religion and education can give," the speaker stated, "are faith, courage, and the capacity for suffering."

Paying tribute to the 25 young men from the college who paid the supreme sacrifice, Mr. Elliott said, "I stand here enjoying this priceless privilege, the freedom to think and speak, because warm young blood of a million men but recently stained the jungles of Guadalcanal and New Guinea, the beaches of Salerno, Anzio, Normandy, and Iwo Jima, and Okinawa, and the forests and plains of Europe. I am persuaded," he went on to say, "that it is far greater to have bought the privilege for another than to enjoy the privileges thus bought."

In conclusion, Mr. Elliott said, "It all adds up to the fact that the only real values are human personality, intelligence and integrity." The commencement program began with the invocation by founder and President Emeritus Robert L. Madison.

President H. T. Hunter introduced Mr. Elliott, who attended May Hill college, Wake Forest college, University of North Carolina, Johns Hopkins university.

Sylva To Be Host To District Federation Club Meeting On 7th

LEGION POST HAS MEMORIAL SERVICE

Sylva, with other parts of the nation, observed its first peacetime memorial day in five years. The service, sponsored by the William E. Dillard post, American Legion, was held at the Ritz Theatre at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

The stage, decorated with red poppies and United States and North Carolina flags, made an appropriate setting for the speaker and officers of the Legion, town and county.

The service was opened by the audience singing "America." Rev. W. Q. Grigg pronounced the invocation and Rev. Mark Osborne read the scripture lesson. This was followed by the song "It Singeth Low in the Heart."

Dan Tompkins, master of ceremonies, presented Hon. W. K. McLean, of Asheville, veteran of both World War I and World War II, who delivered the memorial address.

The congregation stood in reverent silence for one minute and taps for the war dead was sounded by Rev. Mark Osborne.

The program was concluded by the singing of "America the Beautiful" and the benediction by Rev. E. S. Hensley, Legion post chaplain.

The Franklin County Extension service is promoting a drive to stimulate the increased production of home gardens and forage crops.

A District meeting of the North Carolina Federation of Home Demonstration clubs will be held Friday at 10:30 o'clock in the Methodist church, with the club women of Jackson county as hostesses, Miss Josephine Johnston, Home Demonstration agent for the county, has announced.

Club members from Haywood, Macon, Clay, Cherokee Graham and Swain counties will attend.

Mrs. Henry Francis of Waynesville will preside. Included on the program are: Miss Ruth Current, State Home Demonstration agent of North Carolina State college; Mrs. A. W. Pierce, Pikeville, Wayne county, president of the North Carolina Federation of Home Demonstration clubs; Miss Anna C. Rowe, Western District Home agent; Mrs. Frank Fry of Bryson City is secretary of the District federation.
