Several New Firms Open In Sylva; Much New Building

According to reports of the post office, bank, Southern Railway, and business firms of Sylva and Jackson county, 1946 was a good business year. The same is true for the nation as a whole according to economic experts of the country.

Mr. N. C. Price, Sylva postmaster, stated that over-all receipts for the year as compared with 1945, showed a slight decrease, but that local receipts show a substantial increase over the previous in overseas mailing. Mr. Price pre-

Since the volume of incoming and outgoing freight and express is one of the best indexes to the state of business conditions in a community this is another proof of good business here during the past year as Mr. Gibson, local agent, reports an increase in the Southern's receipts during 1946.

Every business contacted reported an increase in receipts for the year 1946 over the previous year

Despite shortages in building materials much building was completed during the year. Paul Kirk and Homer Davis completed their modern home for the sales and service of Chevrolet cars and trucks. Their sales on new cars and trucks has been controlled by the supply, but a large number of new car deliveries have been made, which is true with all the new car dealers of the city.

Woody Hampton and W. A. Reece completed and are now in their modern building which houses their offices, sales and show rooms and large repair department for Ford cars and trucks.

J. D. Moore completed the large building on Mill Street which now houses the Trailways bus terminal, his dry cleaning plant, recapping plant and filling station.

Harrison Furniture and Salvage pleted early in the summer on Cullowhee road.

Two large buildings were completed by the Sylva Coal and Lumber Company, one houses the gust. woodworking shop and the other, a brick and concrete block building, houses their larke stock of hardware, paints and building materials and farm supplies.
