

Better Understanding Among Nations

 minishing of Soviet suspicions. It is generally agreed among world diplomats that Secretary of State Byrnes contributed to this by disclosing voluntarily the number and position of the American troops on foreign soil. This was something that Russia tried unsuccessfully to make mandatory of every member of the United Nations. Byrnes' disclosure added emphasis to what American representatives in the U. N. councils had repeated time and again—the United States has nothing to hide.

"Even the most conservative members of the United Nations," Mr. Parris said, "are of the opinion that if the next two sessions of the world assembly accomplish as much as the session just ended we shall be fairly near to a lengthy period of peace."

"But on the whole," he added, "most delegates considered the present achievements as giving promise to the attainment of security without war. Some called these achievements 'the dawn of the new era in human history.' It is undoubtedly a good sign that there is none of the skepticism that dogged the old League of Nations from its birth to its death."

Mr. Parris considered as another healthy sign for the infant peace agency the fact that for the first time secret diplomacy has been tossed overboard and that nations, big and small, are speaking more bluntly, more frankly.

New Diplomatic Language

"This new diplomatic language—blunt and often sharp—undoubtedly ly has a tendency to point up situations," Mr. Parris said, "but it lets the world know what is happening. It is an accomplishment over the old style secret-chamber discussions where temper also became edged unknowingly to the public. Now when a nation speaks it is in the open for the whole world to hear and form an opinion. And more and more nations are realizing that world opinion must be taken into account in their maneuverings."

He said that at the New York assembly session delegates spoke more frankly than they had either at San Francisco, where the U. N. was organized, or at London, where it was born.

The veteran of veterans of the Associated Press U. N. staff, Mr. Parris was at both the San Francisco and London conference, and when the United Nations moved to the new headquarters.

As a background to his United Nations assignment, Mr. Parris had been covering international diplomatic news in London, Belgium and at the French provisional capital of Algiers during the four years preceding the San Francisco conference.

He was in London in June, 1941, and saw the representatives of 14 nations unite in a common effort against Hitler.

Forerunner of U. N.

"That meeting," Mr. Parris explained, "was really the forerunner of the United Nations. There Great Britain, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland and Yugoslavia banded together to overcome the greatest threat in history to their individual freedom as nations and to the freedom of all mankind.

"These 14 nations formally vowed to fight until victory and to work thereafter in unison with other free peoples for an enduring peace."

From that day on, Mr. Parris has been working with the world's diplomats, many of them he considers his friends and knows intimately.

Throughout the war years he worked in almost daily contact with Trygve Lie, then Norwegian foreign minister and now U. N. secretary-general; Czech Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk; former Dutch Foreign Minister Eeelo Van Kleffens; General De Gaulle of France; Dr. Edward Benes, president of Czechoslovakia; Dr. Joseph Bech, premier of Luxembourg; General Sikorsky of Poland; and many others who are now delegates to the United Nations.

Covered Exiled Governments

Mr. Parris during their period covered the diplomatic and underground activities of the exiled governments who were housed in London awaiting the end of the war and the liberation of their coun-

County Sanitarian Calls Attention To Sewage Disposals

Attention of all persons building new residences or remodeling their homes is again called to the requirement by law, that all residences be provided with sewage disposal systems approved by the State Board of Health.

The county Sanitarian will furnish approved plans and aid in any way possible, those desiring such information and help.

Often money and effort can be saved by planning an approved system in advance.

Some of the more important factors considered in these constructions are: size of family, soil texture, contour of terrain, distance from water supply and materials used in construction. The metal tanks offered for sale in this area recently are NOT approved by the State Board of Health. tries to which they could return. When Brussels was liberated, he flew to the Belgium capital with his friend Paul Henri Spaak, Belgium, foreign minister and now president of the United Nations assembly.

Mr. Parris went in on the North African invasion in 1942 with Gen. Doolittle's 12th air force headquarters staff, hitting the beach at Arzu. After the armistice he proceeded to Algiers where he did a series of stories on diplomatic affairs, resulting in the exclusive story behind Admiral Darlan's part in the operation. From this phase of the war, he co-authored the book, "Springboard To Berlin" which was published in 1943.

Except for this slight diversion, Mr. Parris concentrated during the war years on the diplomatic side of the news. He was the youngest diplomatic correspondent in London.

During his vacation here, Mr. Parris completed a section of a forthcoming book by 18 outstanding American foreign correspondents. The book is "Deadline Delayed," the first of a yearly book to be written by members of the Overseas Press club of New York. Mr. Parris was selected to write on the United Nations. The book is scheduled for publication March 4.

Mr. Parris and his wife, the former Dorothy Luxton Klenk, will return to New York next week where he will resume his United Nations assignment.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood.
