and siltation less severe, stream flow more uniform. Then the privately and municipally owned lands will better supplement the protection already afforded the watershed by the national forests, and by the National Park, and Indian Service lands. We also expect that the increased expenditures now being made will pay off abundantly in the future as the quality of the timber growing stock is improved through elimination of fire defect. There are a large number of diversified forest industries in western North Carolina; they are vitally important to the economy of the region. A permanent supply of high quality raw material must be assured to keep them operating.

The project, set up to run five years, has these specific objectives: (1) provide ADEQUATE fire protection for 1,687,000 acres of privately and State and municipally owned forest land in Avery, Buncombe, Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Macon, Madison, Mitchell, Swain, Transylvania, Watauga, and Yancey counties; (2) demonstrate how the area burned annually can be reduced to one-fourth of one percent of the total forest area, a standard usually recognized as a safe business risk and satisfactory in terms of watershed protection; (3) provide protection for a small area of TVA land in Swain County; (4) determine amount of money and length of time required to achieve desired standard of fire control; (5) test the effectiveness of the semi-volunteer warden type of forest fire control.

Mr. Beichler said that most emphasis the first two years would be placed on building up the fire
