N. C. SHUFORD TALKS TO FUTURE TEACHERS OF WCTC ON JAPANESE SCHOOL SYSTEM

N. C. Shuford, principal of the Black Mountain public schools, spoke at Western Carolina Teachers college Wednesday night. His subject was "The Japanese public school system, and America's part in it."

Mr. Shuford, who worked with Japan's public schools as a member of the American Military Government, made his address to members of the WCTC chapter of the Future Teachers of America. Many other students and faculty members also attended.

"The Japanese teachers," the principal said, "have much the same outlook on life that we do; their school system resembles ours a great deal. The people love to put on a show, and are great for going into details in everything they undertake."

He said that their primary schools — the first six grades — are compulsory, and that, from then on, advancement is made on the basis of competitive examinations, with very little chance for girls, who are considered mental and physical inferiors of boys.

Mr. Shuford told of the difficulties of Japanese educators after the American invasion and its consequent censorship of public education. Many of the old textbooks were discarded, and the teachers, whose initiative had long since been drilled out of them, were lost. The most extensive changes, he said, were the dropping of militaristic sports from the curriculum, and the substitution of a different code of morals to be taught.

He remarked that the Japanese were very imitative, and were eager for Democracy as typified by the American occupying forces.

Cancer Fighter To Lead Drive For Control Funds

MT. AIRY—(Special)—A man who is fighting a personal battle against cancer in himself will lead the American Cancer Society North Carolina Division's drive next April for funds to finance the greatest fight ever made on the disease in the state.

He is John D. Larkins, Jr., 35-year-old Trenton attorney. His selection as State Campaign Chairman was announced here today by Mrs. George Marshall, the Society's State Commander.

Larkins led North Carolina's successful 1947 campaign. Late in the year, a doctor's examination revealed that he was suffering from a skin cancer on the face. Immediate treatment was begun and doctors believe that the chance of cure is good.

"Facts that I learned during the campaign last year," Larkins declared, "convinced me that cancer was causing many thousands of deaths that could have been prevented. Still, to me, the individual fight against cancer was, in a way, detached and impersonal."

"But now I know . . . as only those that cancer strikes can know . . . how urgent and desperate the fight really is."

"No one of us is safe. The fight can be won, but it's a fight that calls for the help of every one of us."

Mrs. Marshall who heads the North Carolina Division's army of volunteer cancer fighters, said that significant gains have begun to be netted in the attack against the disease.

"Now," she added, "to turn the tide definitely against an enemy that threatens the health and lives of one in every six of us, our efforts must be doubled and trebled."

The 1948 campaign chairman's first move will be the creation of a corps of nearly 2,000 campaign workers, reaching into every county, who will endeavor to enlist the financial aid of most of the state's estimated $60,000 families in the cancer fight.

Larkins is widely known over North Carolina for his service in the State Legislature during four regular and two special sessions. At one time he was president pro tempore of the Senate.

Son of a Baptist minister, he took his A. B. and law degrees at Wake Forest College and began practice in Charlotte but soon moved to Trenton.

His rise to prominence in state affairs was rapid and spectacular. He directed the Jackson Day committee campaign for two years and was chairman of the constitutional amendment committee campaign, whereby the terms of sheriffs and coroners in North Carolina were increased from two to four years.

He is a Mason, Shriner and Rotarian, and a member of the Parent-Teacher Association, Woodmen of the World, J.O.U.A.M., B.P.O.E., American Legion, and La Societe des 40 & 8.

He is married and the father of two young daughters.

Black Walnuts For Planting Available

Fifty bushels of stratified black walnuts have just been received for distribution by the North Carolina Division of Forestry and Parks from the American Walnut Manufacturers Association. These walnuts are ready for immediate planting, and the Division is offering them to any person at the cost of $1.00 for a ten pound package of an average of 125 black walnuts.

The Division points out that nut planting is cheaper than seedlings, and the results are better. Nuts planted this spring will produce seedlings 14 inches high by mid-summer. Complete planting instructions will accompany each shipment. The black walnuts can be obtained by writing Fred Claridge, Assistant Forester, Division of Forestry and Parks, Raleigh, N. C.

Diseases and insects have caused only a minimum of damage to the 1948 North Carolina strawberry crop to date.

VALVE-IN-HEAD is far ahead!

in performance and economy . . . in ruggedness and reliability!

1 In the world's champion Chevrolet engine, the valves are located in the head of the cylinder, directly over the pistons . . . hence the name, Valve-in-Head.

2 Valve-in-Head design provides faster intake of fuel mixture . . . and quicker and more complete exhaust of burned gases . . . all of which contributes to better performance and economy.

3 Valve-in-Head design also permits a more compact combustion chamber; and this, together with Chevvrolet's "Blue Flame" combustion, means more driving power for the pistons—less heat loss—and maximum economy.

Valve-in-Head engines are inherently easier to cool; and Chevrolet's individual cooling of cylinders prevents waste of power—promotes efficient operation—prolongs engine life.

Automotive experts and millions of motorists agree: Valve-in-Head is far ahead because it gives an outstanding combination of performance, endurance, dependability and economy. . . Chevrolet—master builder of this master motor—has proved this by producing more than 20 million Valve-in-Head engines during the past thirty-seven years—engines which hold the distinction of having delivered more billions of miles of satisfaction, to more owners, over a longer period, than any other power-plant built today! Chevrolet's World's Champion Valve-in-Head engine is another powerful reason why CHEVROLET AND ONLY CHEVROLET IS FIRST . . . another convincing proof that only Chevrolet gives BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST!

CHEVROLET and ONLY CHEVROLET IS FIRST!
