events of the week. Tours to neighbors' homes will reveal improvements in time and labor. There will be exhibits in store windows demonstrating a little of the best existing at present in achievements of club women along all lines of homemaking.

County and District Federation meetings will be held from May 1 to 5. Murphy, honoring leaders for their work in bringing about a better rural life. Teas, receptions, "open house," radio talks, and newspaper articles will feature Home Demonstration Club women in all of the 100 counties of the State.

Food takes first place in Home Demonstration activities, for the homemaker needs and wants to know what the family should eat to keep healthy; how to prepare and serve food in new and attractive ways; and the newest methods of conserving food.

In view of the rising cost of living, busy homemakers are interested in methods of saving time and labor, and in making the most of what they have in food, clothing, and equipment. Rural women realize that family relationships are vital in building better homes today for a better world tomorrow.

More than 4,000 family life leaders from 96 counties have been trained and have carried information back to 28,000 people who are eager for help in their efforts to bring about better rural living in their communities.

And these women are concerned about the health and welfare of the community as well as the problems which center around the home. In Clay, Alleghany, Swain, and Northampton counties club members are centering their efforts on laying a foundation for building hospitals, while those in Buncombe, in cooperation with the Health Department, have been busy taking the health census concerned with rural housing, water supply, sewerage disposal, milk supply, and fly control. Club women in Lincoln, Catawba and other counties worked with their Health Departments on a health census before mass tuberculosis X-ray clinics were held. In all the counties they have cooperated with school-

10,000 EXPECTED TO VISIT HUGE PAPER PLANT AT CANTON

CANTON, N. C.—The Champion Paper and Fibre Company and the Town of Canton are rapidly completing elaborate preparations to entertain an estimated 10,000 Western North Carolinians who are expected to arrive here next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 4th, 5th and 6th, to attend Champion's first "Open House."

Champion has extended a cordial invitation to the people of Western North Carolina to make a tour of their vast mills here during open house, and see each step in the process of converting our native trees into finished paper. Numerous committees have been hard at work for several weeks with detailed plans to assure a maximum of convenience for Champion's guests during their visit.

Six full hours of each of the three days have been allotted to the general public to view this great plant which has been one of the leading industries of Western North Carolina for more than forty years. Without disruption to production, visitors will see the most modern and largest machines in the world for the manufacture of the higher grades of paper.

Guests may register for the trip through the mill between the hours of 8:00 and 10:30 each morning and from 12:30 to 4:00 each afternoon. Registration will be made at the Champion Y. M. C. A. where each visitor will be given an illustrated souvenir booklet containing pertinent information about the machines and processes that will be seen on the trip. Children from 11 to 14 years of age must be accompanied by an adult.

After registration visitors will move through the mill, guided by directional signs and by courteous guides who will be stationed along the route of travel to supply any information that may be desired. Visitors may observe for as long as they wish any phase of the manufacturing of paper, from the virgin pulpwood until the finished product is loaded into freight cars. The tour will consume from one-and-a-half to two hours time.

At the end of the route refreshments will be served at Champion's new cafeteria. Here visitors will see an attractive display of Champion's products, and will have an opportunity to become acquainted with the activities of the many agencies for developing the spirit of cooperation and good fellowship which characterizes the Champion organization.

A word-sketch of the route of travel will give the prospective visitor an insight of the many interesting processes he will see during his tour of the Champion plant. He will see the pulpwood, straight from the forest, being stripped of bark in huge tumblers and fed into the maw of a giant chipper that reduces the average stick of pulpwood into small chips in less time than it takes to read this sentence.

The visitor will see these chips conveyed to the great digesters where they are chemically "cooked" under pressure to separate the papermaking cellulose fibres from the lignin binder in the wood. In subsequent processes these fibres are washed, screened, bleached to a high degree of whiteness, and washed again before they are ready to go to the paper and paperboard manufacturing departments.

In the beater room the visitor will see the fibres being prepared for papermaking by the addition of various chemicals and dyestuffs. He will follow these fibres as they flow onto the great machines and form a web of rough, wet paper that is dried and processed to a smooth finish in one continuous operation.

Following up the actual manufacturing, the visitor will see the large reels of paper from the machines being reduced to sheets or small rolls in the finishing department, carefully sorted and inspected and prepared for shipment to customers all over the United States.

Other sights along the route of travel that will prove intensely interesting will be the largest tannin extract plant in the world, the plant for manufacturing the Chlorine used in bleaching pulp, plants for making by-products such as turpentine and rosin, plants for reclaiming used chemicals, the huge power plant where all the steam and electricity are generated to operate this vast mill, and the modern machine shop, carpenter shop, electrical shop, foundry and metal shops that are necessary for maintenance of the plant.

It is anticipated that Champion's open house will be the biggest event ever put on by a local industry. Officials of the Town of Canton are making special arrangements for parking private automobiles, but they advise visitors to use public conveyances wherever possible so as to avoid this worry.
