GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAINS SOON TO BE AFLAME WITH BEAUTIFUL AUTUMN COLORS

Within a few weeks, the annual march of autumnal colors will begin in the vast hardwood forests of the Blue Ridges and the Great Smokies, those twin mountain ranges which run the entire length of western North Carolina. And with them will come the annual army of sightseers for the "leaf" season—a vacation and travel season now firmly established as one of the best visiting times of the year. Late in September will appear the brilliant red of the sumac, gums, sourwood, Virginia creeper, dogwood, red maple and low bush blueberry. They will blend with the yellow of the sassafras, birch and yellow poplar, which, as the early reds fade, continue to blend with the late reds of the scarlet and red oaks, the tan of the white oak, and the yellow of the chestnut oak. These last-to-turn continue the color into the first week or ten days of November.

The glorious, flaming color produced by the greatest remaining stand of hardwoods in America is against a background of evergreens, ranging from the bright green conifers to the sombre blacks of the balsams. The arrival of fall color is so gradual that everywhere during October the traveler will find a favorite view. Usually, though, October 15th is considered the climax of the leaf season.

Many resorts will remain open as usual to take care of leaf visitors, and in many instances, summer rates are reduced by from 10 to 25 per cent.

The Blue Ridge Parkway, the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and the forest lands of Pisgah and Nantahala National Forests are favored goals of visitors, and all facilities of these areas will be made available during the fall.

Weather generally is dry at this time, days sunny, nights from cool to chilly, the air clearer.

Canadian controls on exports of slaughter and feeder cattle and dressed beef were lifted on August 16.

VETS' PROBLEMS

Q—What is the difference between term insurance and converted insurance?
A—The protection in event of death is the same, but converted insurance accrues cash, loan and paid-up insurance values, whereas term insurance does not.

Q—I find that the course I am taking under the G. I. Bill is not what I expected it to be. Can I change my course to one that will meet my requirements?

A—Yes, providing you have VA's permission to do so. Whenever the facts in the case indicate that a change will be to your best interest, VA will grant authority for the change.

Q—I have been working in a garage and now have an opportunity to buy a share in the business. Can I use my loan guaranty

Real Estate Transfers FROM REGISTER'S RECORDS

Recent transfers of property as recorded in Register of Deed's office are as follows:

Clarence Bumgarner and wife, rights to acquire an interest in the garage?
A—Yes. Such a loan would be eligible for guaranty under the Public law 346, (G. I. Bill).

to T. L. Monteith, and wife.
John O'Kelly and wife, to Oscar Gates and wife.
Narvie W. Ward and wife, to Walter Bradley.
