JACKSON FARMERS MAY GET TREE SEEDLINGS, T.V.A.

Farmers now can obtain seedling trees through the Tennessee Valley Authority by applying for them through the County Farm Bureau or the District Forester. Both have blanks on hand to be filled out by applicants. The trees are free of charge.

Jackson County Farm Agent M. L. Snipes states that timber is very important to our county and due to the topography it will remain to be. Timber helps to check erosion, it holds back water and keeps it from washing out the fields. The farmer's time is well spent in preventing his farm from eroding especially when there is no cost as in this case.

At this time of year lots of people are cutting out timber for firewood for the winter. With a little forethought, they could remove all dead trees so sunlight could get in, and at the proper time replace the removed timber with seedlings so as to keep their timber stand intact. By thinning out his woodland, the farmer makes way for more desirable trees. This is known as "selective cutting".

Heavy Rain Causes High Tide On The Tuckasegee River

Following an autumn season of comparatively beautiful weather, a heavy rain drenched the countryside during most of last week. The Tuckasegee River rose, jumped her banks, and washed them clean all the way to the Little Tennessee. Some people became alarmed, fearing a repetition of the terrible week during September of 1939 when the river leaped from her banks to spread destruction throughout the course she ran. Sunday, the river swelled until the dam at Cullowhee was almost obliterated from view, but Monday the weather cleared and the river returned to its normal size.

Cotton production in Argentina rose to about 550,000 bales annually during the war but has since declined to about 300,000 bales.

People should always be conscious of their woodlands. They should protect it from fire, build it up. The majority of the farms of this county are in woodlands. It is injurious to them to let stock run through them. It pays to fence off the growths and let them stand.

Trees are crops like corn, says Mr. Snipes. They are slow in producing but when they do come around, they prove to be good money crops. The Mead Corporation is the largest industry in Jackson county. Mead is always in need of good timber.

The conservative farmer will care for his woodlands. Each year he will put out some new trees. In several years he has his farm fixed from erosion. It pays in the long run.

HUNTERS URGED TO OBSERVE SAFETY RULES BY PETTIT

Hunters, examine that box of ammunition carefully! What you find may mean the difference between plentiful game and good hunting, or game destroyed by forest fires caused by human carelessness. One of the things that will determine this, says District Forester Chas. C. Pettit, Jr., of District Nine, is how well each hunter reads the pamphlet, "Ten Commandments of Safety" included in each box of ammunition made by members of the Sporting sportsmen."

Arms and Ammunition Manufacturers' Institute. Co. Warden Evans points out that the Institute urges all hunters to observe the safety rules found in the boxes of ammunition, and to pay particular attention to a message on the need for the prevention of forest fires. The fire prevention message says, in part: "Forest fires not only destroy lives, homes, timber, and crops, they also destroy wildlife, thereby reducing and limiting hunting pleasure. Ordinary precautions can eliminate 9 out of 10 forest fires. But precautions cannot be left to the other fellow. It's up to you to do your part in observing the simple rules which will prevent forest fires and maintain hunting opportunities for all."

U. S. Forest Rangers were hosts to more than 7,300,000 visitors to the 24 Southern National Forests during the 1948 season. The Pisgah-Croatan National Forest in North Carolina led in recreation users with 2,530,825, followed by Chattahoochee in northern Georgia, 2,478,420, and the Nantahala in North Carolina with 978,725.
