Better Dairy Cows

A long felt need in Jackson County has been that of better quality and higher breed of dairy cows, cows which will produce more pounds of milk and butter fat than we have had in the past. Our farmers have decided to do something about building up their herds in an effort to put dairying on a paying basis in Jackson county. Through the leadership of the county farm agents the farmers have organized the Jackson County Artificial Breeders Association and after October 1st they will begin breeding their cows from the proven bulls of the Southeastern Breeders Association at Asheville. These bulls are some of the best blood to be found in the Nation. Their daughters have already proven their ability to produce large quantities of high grade milk, bringing a better price on the market, and their heifer calves are always in demand at premium prices. The cost of breeding through this association is very little more than a farmer would pay to breed to local bulls of much lower blood quality.

We congratulate our farmers on this forward step in their effort to build a better dairy and agricultural program in Jackson County.

Mrs. Sara C. Jarrett

In the passing of Mrs. Sara C. (Sallie) Jarrett, the second part of one of the corner stones of Dillsboro and Jackson county is gone, the first being Mr. Jarrett who passed away one year ago, Sept. 10. Mrs. Jarrett, Mistress of Jarrett Springs hotel for 56 years, in her quiet, refined and kind manner, together with Mr. Jarrett with his ready wit and jovial disposition, endeared themselves in the hearts of the many thousands of guests at their hotel which had the reputation of having the longest record of continued service under the same management of any hotel in the United States.

Although an invalid for more than two years, she kept her gentle smile and continued to endear herself to all who called on her, even tho she was most lonely since the passing of Mr. Jarrett.

She will be greatly missed and long remembered.

are of about equal rank, with Cripps holding a little of the edge on the former dockworker, Bevin. However, in dealing with foreign powers, Bevin is the only British official allowed to conduct negotiations.

Consequently, at official gatherings questions will have to be put to Bevin, who, in turn, will have to turn to Cripps for many of the answers, since Bevin is not so familiar as Cripps with the economic and financial problems which will be the subject of the Washington meetings.

The Everyday Counsellor

By REV. HERBERT SPAUGH, D. D.

How do you face up to temptation? Do you run toward it or away from it. Percy Coplon of Birmingham, Alabama, has developed a new way to get away from temptation according to an United Press story. He weighs 357 pounds, claims to be the original "Mr. Five-by-Five." His height is 60 inches and waist measures the same. Naturally, he likes to eat, finds it his greatest temptation, so he has decided to fast for 100 days. To get this temptation further away from him he climbed a 20-foot tower where he plans to stay until December 4, "If he isn't tempted too much by the fragrance of food and by conversation about it." He told reporters, "My mouth waters when we talk about food. Please stop. I can smell it for three blocks when a slice of onion hits the skillet."

His tower, a six-by-six house welded to the top of a 20-foot pole, is located less than 50 feet from his own "ice cave" restaurant and juke joint. The odor of sizzling steaks wafts up to his perch. We can't help but wonder why he didn't get further away from temptation, than 50 feet. Perhaps he wants to take it the hard way.

Of course, Coplon, long before now, should have been taking the exercise of pushing himself away from the table while he was still hungry. That's the easiest way to reduce, but so many have to come to middle age before they realize it. By that time with their wisdom they have also acquired excess pounds.

While Coplon may be able to tough it out on his tower with the aroma of cooking food below him, most of us aren't too successful in dealing with temptation that way. Usually the best way to deal with something which is bad for you, is to get away from it as quickly as possible and as far as possible. The reason we see so many religious people who seem to be unhappy is because they are trying to carry water on both shoulders. Christ said, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon," meaning that we can't seek spiritual things, and at the same time cultivate worldly pursuits. We can't go to Heaven and Hell at the same time. So many religious people have just enough religion to make them unhappy. They are conscious of wrong doing which makes them unhappy, lack the courage to resolutely turn their backs on it, march away from it, occupy themselves with showing forth the love of God to their fellowman.

If you are struggling with some temptation don't content yourself with trying to raise yourself above it with prayer only. In addition, turn your back to it and run away from it as fast as you can and as far as you can. You remember the old saying, "You can't play with fire and not get burned." By like token, you can't play with sin and not get burned.

A record acreage of permanent pasture, most Ladino clover and fescue or Ladino and orchard grass, will be seeded in Nash County this fall, says County Agent M. E. Hollowell.

Inside Washington

WASHINGTON — There are those who believe that Speaker Sam Rayburn may be losing his political touch in the House. The bald, soft-spoken legislative diplomat is known as one of the most effective compromisers in Congress. His forte is personal persuasion and most of his work is done off the floor in the Democratic cloak-room. Only occasionally, when he deems it sufficiently important, will he leave the rostrum and go to the well of the House to argue for a bill. Of late, however, Rayburn's batting average has been poor.

When he spoke for the full one billion 450 million dollar "Arms-for-Friends" bill, the House cut it in half. The House turned down the Brannan farm plan. Rayburn sought a compromise on labor legislation last spring, but the bill went back to committee, where it remains bottled up.

CAPITOL ROTUNDA — The rotunda, the mammoth room under the Capitol dome familiar to millions of visitors, henceforth will be reserved for the statues of presidents.

Decision to bar other busts and statues in the rotunda was reached by the Senate and House joint committee on the library.

Those already there will be permitted to remain, but future busts and statues will be limited to those of American chiefs of state.

PROTOCOLITIS — Official planners and greeters have put a neat problem of official etiquet up to the State department's protocol officers.

It concerns the planned visit in September of British Foreign Minister Ernst Bevin and Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps.

In the British cabinet, the two officers
