Russell and the Past.

Wilmington Dispatch.

The Robesonian, in speaking of Judge Rossell as a candidate for Governor of North Carolina, says:

fore any election any poll tax then due and payable, end who can read any section in the constitution of 1805, or can understand and explain any section of

"Sufficient time has elapsed since the nomination of Judge Russell for governor ast Friday to allow the sober, second thought of the party and of the state assume its sway, and the concensus of opinjon is that it was a mistake. Of course, s one of the delegates expressed it, they whall have to "pass under the string"_ the party lash will be applied vigorously. heroically and, in the main, successfully. Before the nomination many colored men rushed into print, over their own signatures, declaring that Russell's nomination would cost the party 20,000 votes; all these may count for something or they may count for nothing. A liberal and discreet use of "the sinews of war" and of the assurance of state and federal patronage will correct much of this. But it is of the man-of his unsavory reputation as a judge in the good old days of complete republican ascendency and of his bitter vindictive life ever since that will engage the attention of the state. We spoke a a week or two ago of the editorial ability of Messrs. Englehard and Saunders. The campaign of that paper-the editorials written by Col. Saunders in opposition to the re nomination of Judge Russell to an office of which he had proved himself to be so utterly unfitted for-was most com plete, exact and powerful. It will be recalled that the articles were all written by Col. Saunders and that he served notice on the judge that the columns of the Journal were at his service and he was respectfully invited to refute any of them that might be proved to be incorrect. Somebody, probably Mr. Josh. T. James, now has the custody of those papers, and Mr. Pou, the chairman of the democratic executive committee, could render his party and his state no better service than at once to secure the services of a competent person to compile and edit those articles. The outlawry of several of the best men in Robeson county and, if we properly recall, the quitting of Sampson court "between suns" could there probably be accounted for. Judge Russell is indeed a dangerous man in any position. An old-time Republican who would write to another Republican that the people by whose votes mainly he was enabled to over-ride the will of the white people and the dearest interests of the State were "mainly savages," shows plainly that the milk upon which he was nourished in his helpless infancy and which he declared in his speech in Raleigh was so SWEET and nourishing must have imparted to him more or less of that inherent savagery of which he spoke many years afterwards in his letter to Mr. J. C. L. Harriss."
