

The Regular Game.

Here is a part of Populist Campaign chairman Washburn's statement, which was left out of yesterday's issue:

Our facilities for receiving the election returns are equal to any. We know from private advices and the returns up to date that McKinley is not elected. On the other hand the latest returns justify our claim that Mr. Bryan is elected. It is one of the peculiarities of Republican enterprise that they always claim everything in sight a few hours after an election.

In 1870, as well as in 1884, it was not known for three or four days which candidate had won. Although the early returns indicated Republican victory Democratic victory followed. Again, four years ago, the early returns favored Harrison's election, while the subsequent ones elected Cleveland. This year the early returns favor McKinley, because they came from the Eastern and Middle States and from the cities of other States while the returns from the South and West were withheld so as to stampede public sentiment that McKinley was elected, whether he was or not, and thus create sentiment in advance which would operate to his advantage in case the election was contested; while, on the other hand, had the first returns announced Bryan's success and a contest resulted, there would be an uprising of the people through fear of a repetition of the Tilden episode.

It is plain from the foregoing—which is almost identical with the editorial statement in the OBSERVER the day after the election—that the regular game of the Republicans is to make extravagant claims in order to veil intended fraud.

I was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told that I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at B. E. Sedberry & Son's Drug Store.

Sarsaparilla Sense.

Any sarsaparilla is sarsaparilla. True. So any tea is tea. So any flour is flour. But grades differ. You want the best. It's so with sarsaparilla. There are grades. You want the best. If you understood sarsaparilla as well as you do tea and flour it would be easy to determine. But you don't. How should you? When you are going to buy a commodity whose value you don't know, you pick out an old established house to trade with, and trust their experience and reputation. Do so when buying sarsaparilla.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been on the market 50 years. Your grandfather used Ayer's. It is a reputable medicine. There are many Sarsaparillas—but only one Ayer's. It cures.
