HOW CATARRH IS CONTRACTED
 Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucus membrane, at first acute, because chronic and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable everywhere.

BOYS AND GIRLS WHO QUIT

(Uncle Abraham's Letter.)
 In our last article we showed that a man though middle age or past should not give up in his undertaking—that success is still possible. In this letter we want to talk to the boys and girls still in their teens who have either quit school or are thinking of doing so soon, in other words, I want to talk to those boys and girls who have dropped out of the race and to those who are about to do so, and I am not going to scold either, only give a few facts in a kind, sympathetic way. If I get a little "rough and tumble" it is not because I do not care, rather, because I care very much as a father or teacher (and I have had the misfortune to be both).
 When I was a boy I admired the boy who stayed in the foot-race although he did get behind the whole crowd—and now I admire that boy more. But there's the boy who, while he does not quit the race, might as well do so for he or she just lags behind in a half-hearted way—he belongs in the class with the who quits clean.
 Now, did you ever think how well these foot-races illustrate the boy or girl in the school room race, the first great race of our lives? Take the boys and girls of fifteen (a dangerously critical age for either in this day) and watch them in our own public schools of Haywood county. There's the boy with bright eye and step alert—he walks like he's going some where and he is. He is full of life yet obedient; is prompt, respects his teacher, the school and its rules. He has entered this year with the determination to finish the common branches and enter high school after Christmas, and he'll do it too. In high school we find him again at the head of his class and it goes without saying that he still carries with him those other marks of a man promptness, obedience, politeness, etc. He is also active in society work—but why be tedious, you all know the kind of boy he is, we have him right here in the schools of our own county and nothing can stop him—he is bound to succeed. Oh, for more boys of this type, the boy who stays in the race to win!
 But there's that other boy of whom I really do not like to think: He drags himself into the school room about ten o'clock and falls down into his seat (all true teachers know this type of boy); he walks like he was both sick at the stomach and affected in his feet, just drags himself along as if he really doesn't care if he never gets there—and he don't. This boy has no aim at all in life, he has never yet waked up. He goes to school it seems for the sole purpose of being with the other boys and girls and to bother those who want to study as much as he can. He lacks energy in the school room, he lacks energy at home, indeed, he lacks just about all that a boy could lack. He swears because he thinks it sounds big and smokes cigarettes because he thinks it looks smart; like the boy in the foot-race, he just runs along "any old way" not caring how far the others out strip him.

 Then there's that other boy, he stands out just as distinctly in my mind as the other types. He quits school at the age of fourteen or fifteen partly because he was "needed at home" so much that the others forged so far ahead of him that he got ashamed of himself, or because he did not like to go to school, or both. He had some of the marks and characteristics of the first named type as he too smokes, swears, etc., but in other respects there is a pronounced difference. He is more open in his mischief at school and therefore often has a worse name in the community than the other boy. But of the two, this boy is the better; he is always more industrious, generally more truthful and reliable. True, he has made the big mistake of quitting school, but we find him at home where he will accomplish as much in one day as the other boy will in two.
 You will notice that I put the worst type of boy second, while as a matter of course I should have mentioned him either first or last—that's the rhetoric isn't it? but I put him in the middle so that he could stand up, he's so lazy, you know, that he can't stand alone. Listen, boys, I hope that none of you who read these words have any of the marks of this fellow about you. He's not only a d-r-e-g, but he is a d-r-a-g in life, this sleepy, careless pretender. He's the hardest for the teacher to reach and last for the preacher to arouse, because he can neither be inspired nor persuaded, while at the same time, he knows too much to be taught. The factory doesn't want him, the business man doesn't want him and the teacher is glad when he does not come back to school.

WHEN YOU TAKE COLD
 With the average man a cold is a serious matter and should not be trifled with as some of the most dangerous diseases start with a common cold. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and get rid of your cold as quickly as possible. You are not experimenting when you use this remedy, as it has been in use for many years and has an established reputation. It contains no opium or other narcotic. Obtainable everywhere.
