SUPERIOR COURT CASES.

Many Cases Disposed of—Damages Allowed and Not Allowed—Memorial Page in Memory of Judge Pritchard.

Judge B. F. Long began a two week's term of civil court on Monday of last week.

The following jurors were excused from duty for good and sufficient reasons: I. P. Mann, G. C. Clark and P. D. Bramlett.

Sanford, Chamberlain & Albers were given a judgment against Chautauqua Drug Co., but a non suit was entered as to James Atkins.

The case of B. F. Smathers vs. Sewell Medford was referred for arbitration.

The case of Mellie Blanton by her next friend, J. W. Patton, against Dr. J. P. Brown of Robeson county for $20,000 damages for mal practice in a labor case was a victory for Dr. Brown. Several local and county attorneys handling of the case was regular and in line with what any good physician would have done.

A consent judgment was given J. W. Morgan against The Southern Railway for $900 in a damage suit for machinery broken and damaged in a wreck.

Bass & Withers, real estate dealers, lost their case against Wm. H. McClure who was sued for a commission in the sale of some real estate.

In the case of F. T. Hyatt against the Bank of Waynesville for usury which had been decided in favor of Mr. Hyatt by the referee's report, Mr. Alden Howell is made a party to the suit and the case is re-referred before T. J. Johnston, Esq. of Franklin for any new evidence, he to make a new report and findings as early as possible.

J. W. Woody who deeded a tract of land to his wife in January, 1920, under undue and unlawful influences was given back the land and the deed made was decided null and void.

The case of Alma Rogers and husband Corman Rogers vs. Harrison Davis for slander was compromised, the plaintiffs paying costs, except the defendant's witness.

The case of Bass & Withers against W. D. McCracken for a commission on the sale of a town lot in Waynesville was compromised, the plaintiffs being given $500.

W. D. McCracken lost a case where Vinson Ferguson sued him for a title to farm land which McCracken agreed to sell.

Hal McKee was given $50 in a suit for damage against England & Walton Co., Hazelwood.

Five cases against W. R. Harbeck and wife for titles to lots in the fair ground auction sale held last year were non suited.

W. R. Harbeck won a suit against L. A. Cogburn, et al. for the sale of a spraying outfit to the plaintiffs.

A. C. Walker recovered $75 in a compromise suit against the Southern Railway.

W. P. Harris recovered $283.12 from D. B. McCracken in a cattle trade.

During the sitting of the court May 16 memorial resolutions were presented by the Haywood County Bar Association which they passed May 14th regarding the late Judge Jeter C. Pritchard and upon their request Judge Long ordered the clerk to spread a Memorial Page upon his docket. The resolutions are as follows:

First: That we have learned with deep sorrow and sincere regret of the death of Hon. Jeter C. Pritchard, Judge of the Circuit Court for the fourth circuit of the United States.

Second: We feel that in the death of Judge Pritchard the community has lost a pure, upright Christian gentleman, the State one of her most loyal and patriotic citizens and the judiciary an eminent and unimpeachable jurist.

Third: That we tender to the widow and bereaved family of Judge Pritchard our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of their great loss and deep sorrow.

Fourth: That these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Superior Court of Haywood County; that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, and a copy be furnished the press.

This April 14, 1921.

JOHN M. QUEEN,
Chairman.

THOS. L. GREEN,
Secretary.

A divorce was granted Joshua James vs. Caroline James.

Get Out Your Old Gas Wagon

(By Jesse Daniel Boone.)

Get out your old gas wagon
And see the countryside;
Breathe deep and free the oxygen,
And travel far and wide.
See other towns and cities;
See other folks and scenes;
And sing and whistle ditties
You learned when in your teens.

It isn't well to stay at home
Forever and a day;
But sometimes one should quit and roam,
To drive dull care away.
The grind will get you, neighbor,
If you remain too long;
So why not mix your labor
With care-free rest and song.

Each seventh day, The Book, says rest;
And it is wise and right.
The God of all knew what is best,
And gives us day and night.
We need variety and change
While dwelling here below
On plain, or mountain peak or range;
In sunlight or in snow.

Monotony will hurt the mind;
We should diversify;
Too constant work is but a grind
Which gets you bye and bye.
Mix work and rest, and blend them well,
As you would mix your feed;
Then what appraisers have to tell
Will make men gladly read.

WEAVER INTRODUCES BILL FOR FISH HATCHERY.

Washington, May 3.—Representative Weaver introduced a bill for $50,000 for a fish hatchery for Western North Carolina. He said he would press for action on it this session.

The government owns several hundred thousand acres of land in the western part of the state, said Mr. Weaver, and it will prove good economy to establish a fish hatchery in the midst of these holdings. Our streams are suitable for trout and since the government commenced to buy mountain land and manifest its interest in the country, fish have become more plentiful.

The lands sold to the U. S. are withdrawn from the state and county tax lists. They have greatly increased in value and Uncle Sam profited by the purchase. We are entitled to some returns and there is profit in this industry.

Mr. Weaver has the promise of support on this measure.

THIEF CAUGHT AT HAZELWOOD.

N. L. Sutton, deputy sheriff of Jackson county, picked up John Williams at Hazelwood Monday as he was boarding the train, with a ticket to Asheville. He was put in the Waynesville jail and the sheriff of Swain county notified.

Williams was serving a sentence in the jail at Bryson City but escaped Friday night. Bynum Miller took his blood hound to Bryson City and trailed the prisoner about two miles to where he left on a horse. The dog trailed some other lawbreakers however while on the trip.

MRS. JENNIE RICHARDSON.

Mrs. Jennie Richardson died Saturday at her home on Smathers street after a long illness. The funeral was conducted Monday afternoon by Rev. Albert New and the interment was at Green Hill cemetery. She is survived by a grandson, Edgar Norton Person and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Nannie Person.

A SHORT STORY.

By May Crawford, aged seven. Written Feb. 5, 1921. The "heroine" is her teacher.

I was in a rocking chair and I was thinking that Miss Axley lived here, and mama bought a car and I knew how to drive it and ever day I would take Miss Axley to school and every day after school I would take Miss Axley home and even when it is raining I will see her and I will take her home and even after school I will bring her home and I will cook her dinner and then take her to ride and when we finish riding I will some home and cook her supper and we will study our lessons and go to bed and we will sleep a long time and in the morning I will get up and cook her breakfast and go to school and we will study our lessons while Miss Axley is having the other class and after school is out I will get my car and we will go home and I will cook dinner and after dinner Miss Axley and I will study our lessons till it is time to go to bed when we wake we will cook breakfast and go to Sunday school and after we eat our dinner we will go to ride and when it gets dark we will go to bed and sleep and sleep, then when we wake we will dress and cook breakfast and go to school. Miss Axley will let us out early today and the next day we get a letter and the letter had on it school is out and you don't have to go to school no more till summer and Miss Axley was glad and I was glad.
