

OH! MY BACK!

A stubborn backache that hangs on, week after week, is cause to suspect kidney trouble, for when the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, bending the back brings a sharp twinge that almost takes the breath away.

It's hard to work and just as hard to rest or sleep. Doan's Kidney Pills revive sluggish kidneys—relieve congested, aching kidneys. The proof is in an amazing collection of backache testimonials.

A CONNECTICUT CASE

Charles E. Phillips, 21 Elm St., New Haven, Conn., says: "I suffered from aching backaches and dizziness, and my whole system was run down. I was confined to bed for three weeks and my physician said I was bordering on Bright's disease. His medicine failed to bring relief. Finally I resorted to Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieved me almost from the first, and soon cured me entirely."

Explaining the Noodle.

A typesetter in a printing house became very adroit in explaining the large number of misprints for which he was responsible. Even when he changed his work and became a waiter in a restaurant, says Das Echo, his skill did not forsake him.

One day he had served a guest with a plate of soup, and was turning away, when he was called back sharply.

"This is an outrage!" cried the indignant diner. "I find a needle in my soup! What does this mean?"

"Just a misprint, sir," explained the former typesetter. "It should have been a noodle."—Youth's Companion.

CONSTIPATION

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods, they do not scour; they do not grip; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood, instead of impoverishing it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it. Price 25 cents. Always Optimistic.

"Your husband is always optimistic, isn't he?"
"Yes. He never lacks a cheerful word."
"What did he say when your water pipes burst the other day, and you had to be without a fire in the house from morning till night?"
"He said he was glad that he had a nice warm office to go to."

CHAFING DISH SUGGESTIONS.

GET knowledge all you can, and the more you get the more you breathe upon its nearer heights their invigorating air and enjoy the widening prospect, the more you will know and feel how small is the elevation you have reached in comparison with the immeasurable altitudes that yet remain unascended. —Gladstone.

THE MANY VALUABLE USES TO WHICH THE CHAFING DISH MAY BE PUT HAS BEEN OBTAINED IN SONG AND STORY, BUT THERE IS NONE SO VALUABLE AS THAT WHICH GLADDENS THE HEART OF OUR CONVALESCENT. HIS APPETITE MAY BE STIMULATED BY SOME DELICATE MORSEL WHICH HE WILL ENJOY ALL THE MORE INTENSELY BECAUSE HE HAS WATCHED THE PROCESS OF COOKING. IN THE HOME WHERE THERE IS AN INVALID, THE CHAFING DISH IS ALMOST INDISPENSABLE.

With the chafing dish, which may be as simple or as fine as the purse allows, one always likes a few pretty pitchers, small bowls, dainty jars and dishes to hold the materials to cook, as well as the condiments and seasonings. Measuring spoons and cups are indispensable, as accuracy is as essential in chafing dish cookery as in any other.

Anchovy Toast.—Toast four slices of bread from which the crusts have been removed, spread with anchovy paste. Scald a cup of milk, add two egg yolks and stir until the mixture thickens. Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, add the thickened milk, beat thoroughly and pour over the toast.

Toast dipped in egg and milk and fried in a bit of butter is a favorite way of serving bread.

Frizzled Beef.—Take a few slices of dried beef, cover with boiling water and let stand ten minutes, and drain. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in the blazer, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and pour on gradually one cup of milk. Season with salt and pepper; reheat the beef in the sauce, and pour over strips of toasted bread. A yolk of egg may be added, if wanted richer.

Hash balls may be browned and served hot from the chafing dish. One of the charms of chafing dish cookery is that it is served hot from the dish.

I WOULD be friend to all the foe, the friendless. I would be giving and forget the gift. I would be humble, for I know my weakness. I would look up—and laugh—and love—and lift. —Howard Arnold Walters.

COOKERY FOR THE SICK.

Sir Henry Thompson said: "I have come to the conclusion that more than half the disease which embitters the middle and later life is due to avoidable errors in diet. It is safe to say that two-thirds of all diseases are brought about by errors in diet. The study of foods and their effect on the individual is of equal importance to the study of drugs. Often the entire return to health is dependent upon the food prepared for the patient.

Children more readily succumb to disease than older people, hence the necessity of paying the strictest attention to their nourishment and diet. To those who are accustomed to visiting children's hospitals, the subject of mal-nutrition is very much discussed, as its evidence is everywhere manifest.

There are comparatively few foods that are at their best in an uncooked state. They neither taste so good, nor are they as digestible as when treated to some kind of cooking. The question of feeding of persons in health is always of great importance, but when one succumbs to disease, the feeding is of supreme moment.

Where the temperature is high, and there is great wasting of the tissues, it is necessary that a large amount of easily digested food, usually in liquid form, be used. "Knox" is used in quantities, as that carries off waste products. With some convalescents food must be restricted, while others must be stimulated to eat.

Some of the important things to remember in feeding sick people, are—not to ask them what they would like, for usually when they get it the desire for the food is past. The food should appeal to the eye.

A POOR EXCUSE.

"I don't suppose he'll ever amount to much."
"Why not?"
"He's afraid to take a chance."
"In what way?"
"I offered him a block of mining stock at 12 1/2 that is likely to go to par at any time, but he said he couldn't see it."
"No. He said that buying mining stock is the poorest excuse for being broke that he knows of."

Always Optimistic.

"Your husband is always optimistic, isn't he?"
"Yes. He never lacks a cheerful word."
"What did he say when your water pipes burst the other day, and you had to be without a fire in the house from morning till night?"
"He said he was glad that he had a nice warm office to go to."

IT SHOULD APPEAL TO THE TASTE. IT SHOULD BE DIGESTIBLE AND NOURISHING.

I WOULD be true, for there are those who trust me; I would be pure, for there are those who have reached in comparison with the immeasurable altitudes that yet remain unascended. —Gladstone.

SOME LUNCHEON DISHES.

One may serve luncheon dishes of ten for dinner or supper though with little change in the menu.

Breslau Beef.—Put lean beef steak through a meat chopper, season with minced onion, pepper and salt, and one large soda cracker rolled fine. Shape an inch thick in a greased pan and place thin slices of bacon on the meat after it has been baked a few moments. Serve when the bacon is crisp and brown.

This may be left in a long roll. Bake fifteen minutes or longer before putting on the bacon.

Mashed Lima Beans.—Soak the beans over night, and the next morning drain thoroughly and place in a kettle with sufficient water to cover; add a teaspoonful of soda, and when boiling, cover again with cold water; add salt and cook until the beans are tender. Drain the water and save for a soup foundation. Put the beans through a sieve and whip with a fork, season with a little cream and butter, a dash of red pepper. Heap in a hot dish and serve.

In baking beans, those who do not like pork may substitute olive oil, which adds the necessary fat in an acceptable manner.

Pear Pie.—Line a baked shell with quartered pears, add a bit of lemon juice and a sprinkling of the grated rind; cover with whipped cream and serve as any pastry.

Oatmeal Bread.—Take two cups of fine oatmeal, two cups of boiling water, two cups of bread sponge, two tablespoonfuls of butter, half a cup of molasses, a cup of raisins and half a cup of nut meats. Knead and let rise in loaves. Put into greased pans, and when risen bake in a moderate oven.

DO NOT be troubled because you have not great virtues. God made a million species of grass where he made one tree. The earth is fringed and carpeted, not with forests, but with grasses. Only have enough little virtues and common fidelities and you need not mourn because you are neither a hero nor a saint. —Henry Ward Beecher.

WHAT TO EAT.

Here are a few dishes that are suggestive, if one does not care to follow out the recipes entirely:

Baked Steak.—Rub fine one canned pimento, add a pound of minced beef, half a pound of minced veal, a fourth of a pound of minced ham, and season with salt. Form into a loaf and lay in a greased paper, folding it well together; set on a pan in a hot oven and bake thirty minutes. When done remove the paper, slip the loaf on a hot platter and dot with bits of butter.

Orange and Prune Salad.—Steam a dozen large prunes until puffy, then cook them, remove the pits and mix with an equal amount of orange pulp. Carefully mix, not to crush the orange, and serve with a tart salad dressing, mixed with whipped cream.

Chicken Griddle Cakes.—Beat one egg, add two tablespoonfuls of chicken fat melted, a cupful of minced chicken, half a teaspoonful of salt, a pint of milk and flour enough, sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, to make a batter.

Creamy Soup.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan, add two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when stirred together pour in a pint of milk and cook to the consistency of thin cream. Season with salt and pepper and add a cup of cooked carrots pressed through a sieve. Boil up and serve very hot.

And finely shredded onion to baked beans, and when ready to serve cover with thinly sliced cheese. Serve as soon as melted.

KILL ONLY BUFFALO

Hunters Slay Cow Running With a Stockman's Herd.

Declared to Be the Last Wild Bison of All the Millions That Once Roamed at Will in South Dakota.

Guthrie, Okla.—"Just about a year ago my ranch partner, Phil Ellison, helped kill the last range buffalo in South Dakota," said Emmert Anderson, a stalwart former Oklahoman, who came here to visit his parents. Anderson and Ellison have a cattle ranch at Rattlesnake Butte, and get their mail at the little postoffice town of Dupree, which is 100 miles north-east of Pierre.

"This buffalo was a cow," said Anderson, "and about fourteen years old. She was a full blood, and the last of millions that once roamed that country. Her presence had been known for a long time, and the cowboys protected her. For the last five or six years she had kept with the herd of a cattle man named Simon Lutz.

"About 14 years ago three wild buffalo came from the north and were seen on the Lutz range. One of the cows dropped a calf, and this calf shortly became the only wild buffalo in that part of South Dakota, as its mother and her two companions were killed by hunters.

"After this cow began going with the Lutz herd, she grew more or less acquainted with Lutz, and would not stampede when he came in sight, though he was never able to get close to her. The moment a stranger appeared, however, the cow broke for the hills and remained in hiding until he disappeared, but she could outrun the fastest horse, and nobody ever succeeded in roping her.

"About a year ago 'Chuck' Hall, a butcher at Faith, S. D.; Ed Carr, and Phil Ellison outfitted and started after the cow. They got sight of her in a day or two, and gradually drew closer to where she was grazing. Carr stalked her from behind a hill when the wind was favorable. Peering over the ridge, Carr saw the cow not more than a hundred yards distant. His first shot merely wounded her, and she charged viciously upon him. A second shot brought her down. Hall has her head mounted in his butcher shop at Faith.

"On this same hunt, and in the same locality where the buffalo cow was found, these hunters made another kill that added a trophy to their expedition.

"For nine years there had been an 'outlaw' steer of giant size ranging the country. His color was solid white, and he could be seen for miles on a bright, sunshiny day. His horns were of phenomenal size and breadth. He carried the brand of the old Turkey Track ranch, once one of the most widely known outfits in the west, and whose headquarters were far down in the Texas Panhandle, where the battle between buffalo hunters and a big war party of Comanche Indians took place in the early 70s.

"The most persistent effort extended through a period of years failed to get this old steer to the railroad when cattle shipments were made. He would drift in for miles, but seemed to have a kind of uncanny intuition of final danger, and at night would sneak away from the herd and return to his old freedom. Usually a steer will stay with the herd to the end.

"Hall and his companions shot the old fellow and his horns are hanging in the butcher shop at Faith. He had been a moving landmark for years in that part of South Dakota, and like the buffalo cow, was perhaps the last of his kind, as the old Turkey Track ranch is gone, and cattle no longer are brought up the trail from the Panhandle country to the north.

Man Who Left Scotland and Went to Australia Says He Is Rightful Lindsay.

London.—Henry James Hamilton Bethune Lindsay is tired of Australian life and is determined to return to Scotland, whence he disappeared half a century ago, having all that time been regarded as dead, and claim the ancient title which he declares he missed on the death of his elder brother the tenth earl of Lindsay, now held by his cousin, David-Clark Bethune.

The claimant certainly has all the names of the man supposed to have died at Marseilles in 1862, but he asserts that he did not die. He was disappointed in a love affair and sick at heart at the manner in which he was treated by his family over it, he emigrated to Australia and buried his identity in Cannawriga, where ultimately he became overseer of a ranch. While there he received a copy of a paper containing a portrait of the tenth earl.

"About the same time," said Mr. Lindsay, "a gentleman named Hayes visited Australia to find me, but I had become known to my family that I did not die at Marseilles. My identity was unknown to Hayes, but I met him several times, and learned from him first hand about his quest. Inquiries were also made about me in the paper, but I took no notice of the efforts to find me, and moved from one part of Australia to another."

He lived later a lonely life in Gippsland, his only companions being a dozen cats. The loneliness being too much for him, he went to Melbourne, where he lived at a boarding house, and married one of the lodgers there.

Krieger made several rounds of the Bornstedter flying field and then proceeded overland to Potsdam and returned.

COAL MINER'S RISE TO POWER

Joseph Cook Becomes Leader of Liberal Party in Australia by Big Majority Over Sir John Forrest.

Melbourne.—Joseph Cook has been elected leader of the liberal party in Australia, with a substantial majority over Sir John Forrest and Mr. Irvine at the federal liberal caucus. Mr. Deakin's resignation was accepted with profound expressions of regret and acknowledgments of his great services to Australia and the empire. The party gladly accepted the ex-leader's offer to assist in the referendum platform campaign, for the reason that, although the protectionists are disappointed at Sir John Forrest's defeat, no third party can be formed at the present juncture. The labor party anticipates that Mr. Cook's selection improves the chances of capturing seats in Victoria and South Australia.

Mr. Cook was at one time a working miner. He was born at Silversdale, Staffordshire, England, in 1860, and when twenty-five years of age emigrated to Australia, and obtained work in the Lithgow coalfields. Two years later he was appointed general secretary of the Miners' association and was returned to the New South Wales parliament as a labor member in 1891. He has been the recognized leader of the free trade section.

BRAVE DANGERS ON COAST

Men Who Keep the Wolf Rock Lighthouse Undergo Hardships During the Winter.

London.—The recent loss by drowning of one of the light keepers from the Wolf Rock lighthouse has recalled many stories of the hardships and dangers undergone this winter by men who kept vigil on the rock-bound Cornish coast.

The Longship Rock lighthouse, just off Land's End, has a storeroom dug one keeper that his hair is said to have turned white during the few minutes of his imprisonment.

Probably the most remarkable adventure fell to the lot of Engineer Douglass of the famous Eddystone light. When he was building the Bishops Rock light he tripped and fell from the top of the tower 80 feet above the rocky base. Before he had time to reach the rock a great wave covered it, and when the horrified workmen looked down they saw him swimming unharmed toward the rock.

"BURIER" IS VICTIM OF JOKE

Reports That Father-in-Law Is Dead, but Latter Refuses to Be Embalmed—Apologies Follow.

Minneapolis.—When an undertaker went to the house of John P. Desmond to make arrangements for that gentleman's funeral he found Mr. Desmond sitting on the front porch enjoying the sun. The undertaker thought he was seeing ghosts and nearly fainted. As a result C. P. Landey, Desmond's son-in-law, was given a 90-day sentence in the workhouse on a vagrancy charge.

Landey appeared at the undertaking parlors and after notifying him that his father-in-law was dead, ordered him to go to the house at once and prepare the body for burial. Incidentally he borrowed 20 cents for car fare.

When the undertaker arrived at the house he observed an old gentleman sitting on the porch. "What do you want here?" the latter asked. "Mr. Desmond is dead and I'm going to embalm him," answered the undertaker. "You are, are you?" shouted Desmond. "I'm dead, am I? and who told you all of this?"

The undertaker apologized and made his explanation. "Wait till I catch that son-in-law of mine," said Desmond. The police caught him first and he was arraigned in municipal court later; the workhouse sentence followed.
