Hays Resigns to Clean Up the Movies

Producers and Distributors, the organization which has secured his services. Says Mr. Hays:

"I will head what you might term a moral crusade in the film industry after March 4. There is nothing to this talk that the people with whom I will be associated plan a campaign against extension of censorship of motion pictures. We have two objectives. We will attempt to attain and maintain the highest standards in motion picture production and seek to develop the moral and educational values of motion pictures to their highest degrees."

Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois, who succeeded Good of Iowa as chairman of the house appropriations committee when the latter resigned from congress, is getting to be a regular watchdog of the treasury. "He's Counting the Days Till Spring"

Here is the latest photograph of Allister McCormick, whose love affair with Mary Landon Baker has kept the Smart Set in half a dozen cities ago ever since January 2 last. They were to have been married on that date at the Fourth Presbyterian church in Chicago. Allister was waiting at the church but Mary didn't appear. Then Allister sailed for England, tarrying long enough at the dock in New York to telephone another offer of marriage to Mary. And now Mary has left Chicago and gone to Montecito, Calif.

Extra! All About the $825,000 Pearls!

If Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell (nee Dodge) of Philadelphia had had a clever publicity agent to tell the world that she has the $825,000 pearl necklace that once belonged to Catherine II of Russia—why it couldn't have been done better. It all began with a suit in New York brought by Bengulat Brothers, Paris jewellers, against Cartier, Inc., Paris and New York jewellers. The Bengulats alleged that they put the necklace in the hands of Pierre Cartier for sale, received $500,000 and agreed that all profits over $500,000 should be divided. They charged that the necklace was sold in 1920 for $1,500,000 instead of $825,000, as reported to them and asked for a division of profits.

"Button! Button! Who's got the button?" Such an ado as there was to find who had bought the necklace. Then Uncle Sam wanted to know if the import tax and the luxury tax had been paid, etc., etc.

Well, step by step, the necklace was traced to Detroit and to Mrs. Horace E. Dodge (portrait herewith), widow of the automobile maker and to her daughter, Delphine, who became Mrs. Cromwell in 1920. It was Mr. Dodge who bought the necklace shortly before his death. Uncle Sam also learned that $300,000 duty was paid on the necklace.

WILL EXTEND WEEVIL FIGHT

Craven County Delegates Will Ask Four Neighboring Counties to Co-operate.

New Bern.—Committees representing the Craven County Agricultural committee will go before the commissioners of four neighboring counties at their regular monthly meetings and ask for co-operation in carrying on the campaign against the boll weevil by the appointments of committees in each county to take the leadership in a movement to liberalize farming in East Carolina to offset the inroads of the weevil into the production of cotton.

Craven county appropriated $10,000 to carry on the work, and employed C. C. Kirkpatrick, an expert in diversified farming, to head the campaign, but Pamlico, Carteret, Onslow and Jones counties will be asked to simply endorse the work by naming committees to help in extending it among their own farmers. The local committee believes that to get returns for its own efforts in the fight it must have the co-operation of the neighboring counties. They are in the same condition as Craven, and a joint fight will help both.

W. W. Griffin, chairman of the Craven committee, named his delegation. The Pamlico county commissioners will be met at Bayboro, the Carteret board at Beaufort, the Onslow commissioners at Jacksonville and the Jones commissioners at Trenton by committees composed of leading farmers and business men.

Two Men Killed in Boiler Explosion.

Fayetteville.—Two persons were killed and a third injured by the explosion of a boiler in a planing mill owned by W. E. Waller at Stedman, this county.

The dead are: L. B. McDuffie, mechanic in charge of the boilers of the mill. John Dawson, negro fireman. David Fort, another negro fireman, was slightly injured.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined. According to the testimony gathered, a steam pipe on the outside of one of the two boilers in the mill had been leaking, and the steam in this boiler was allowed to go down in order that it might be repaired, the other boiler being used at the time. After the repairs had been made, the boiler was again put in use.

C. W. Putz, general manager of the mill, testified that he was standing beside McDuffie three minutes before the explosion took place and that the pressure at that time was not more than 20 pounds.

The force of the explosion threw Dawson against the pump and every bone in his head was crushed. McDuffie's skull was fractured. Both men were instantly killed. Fort was thrown into a pile of brick, but he sustained only bruises.

McDuffie, who resided in the town of Stedman, leaves a wife. His father lives near Vander, in this county.
