THE THANKS-GIVING SEASON

Not many days are left now until a nationally regarded holiday will arrive; namely Thanksgiving Day, kept by our forefathers as a time for feasting and thanksgiving unto the Lord. This season of thanksgiving has been handed down from generation to generation, and is still revered by the public. You remember how our forefathers went out and killed all kinds of game for this occasion. Today there may not be as much wild game, perhaps, but we can at least continue to give thanks unto the Lord.

In the minds of the people as a whole, Thanksgiving is usually linked with Christmas. During the time from Thanksgiving until Christmas or New Year's men appear to have better feeling and good will toward one another. This is the most joyous time of the year. Men feel more prosperous at this season.

Let us all feast and have a good time at Thanksgiving but do not forget the real meaning of this holiday: To give thanks to God.

PROSPERITY THROUGHOUT SOUTH IN SPITE OF LONG DROUGHT

Despite the long, dry season recently undergone by people throughout the South, crops have turned out much better than expected, especially the corn crop. Farmers in general are very much encouraged over the returns from the corn. This only goes to show that it is not worth while to growl and grumble about the seasons. Generally crops are better than expected. Now that the Thanksgiving season is here, crops turned out better than hoped for, hogs being killed, etc., the people as a whole feel much encouraged and prosperous once more.

HALLOWEEN

Well, Saturday night is the time for spooks and ghosts, black cats and things like that. This is one of the times when people like to play pranks and get young again. That is, the old people get young and the young people get younger. There will be some mysterious things happening Saturday, perhaps, so watch your gateposts and things like that.

From INMAN, S. C.

We are having some very blustery weather now, with a great deal of rain.

There were thirty baptized at the Inman Mill Baptist church Sunday. They have a nice church there.

Mr. Alfred Grooms returned from the mountains bringing with him his mother and sister.

Mr. W. R. Lamb had for his guests at dinner Sunday. Mr. Alfred Graves and two daughters, Getrude and Annie of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Fox and their two sons, Johnnie and Charles, Jr., also Mr. and Mrs. Billie Fox of Del Rio, Tenn., are visiting his brother.

We are having a fine school at Inman. The high school has about twenty good teachers.

Friends please send news to the News-Record, as I love to hear from old Madison. Best wishes to the News-Record and its subscribers.

HON. LUNSFORD ENTERTAINS AT CULLOWHEE STATE NORMAL

Cullowhee, October 29th. The Cullowhee State Normal enjoyed the delightful entertainer, Hon Bascom Lamar Lunsford of Asheville, in his "Songs of Appalachia", given Tuesday evening, October 27th in the School auditorium. Mr. Lunsford has succeeded in bringing together a rare collection of folk songs of North Carolina, which he is able to give to his audiences with pleasing and significant interpretations. He has combined his skill as an entertainer with the splendid idea of stimulating a deeper appreciation for the native folklore in verse and song. Thus his programs not only entertain but offer real educational value as well.

His strong approval by the audience was shown by the continued applause throughout the program and the several encores called for and given after he had announced his last number. A show of hands indicated that many of the senior members of the audience had heard quite a number of the folksongs rendered and their faces beamed with delight as they heard again such numbers as Cumberland Gap, Drinking Wine, The Weeping Willow, and others. The entertainer so introduced several readings in keeping with the spirit of the hour, which were blended in happily with his banjo selections.

To encourage a greater interest in folk ballads, Mr. Lunsford briefly outlined a contest for the collection of original folk songs, which promises to create quite a bit of interest among the students. He has offered a five dollar prize to the one who will collect the best folk ballad and send it in to him within the next two weeks. It is believed that such efforts will result in bringing together many valuable ballads which otherwise will probably never find way into print.

Mr. Lunsford was introduced by Hon. Marvin Glance of Asheville who at one time attended the Cullowhee Normal. Mr. Glance in his remarks expressed his delight at the rapid changes and remarkable developments which have taken place at Cullowhee since he was a student here. Mr. Lunsford was also accompanied by Mr. R. W. Gordon, a representative of Harvard faculty. Mr. Gordon is on leave from that institution in the interest in collecting and studying folklore and folksongs in sections of the South. He has become very much interested in the wonderful opportunity in Western North Carolina in getting a distinct contribution of native productions of literature.

The School was pleased to have these distinguished men and educators as guests during their visit to Cullowhee, and a hearty invitation was extended to them by President Hunter, which was accepted, to return in the near future in the interest of searching out and promoting the folksongs in this section. Mr. Lunsford is a native of Madison County.

Giving the Dairy Cow a Square Deal News Bureau of Animal Husbandry

There are now 25,375,000 dairy cattle in the United States. Of these, says a recent report, only about one-half are cared for in a manner to enable them to return a fair profit to their owners. Many a milk cow has been accused of being a "boarder" when the owner had only himself to blame. Unlike human beings, dairy cows never shirk intentionally, and frequent tests reveal that seemingly unimportant details in the care of milk cows have startling effects on milk production. If you are considering drying up any of your milk herd because you believe them to be unproductive, fill in the questionnaire below for your own satisfaction. If you can write YES as an answer to all of the questions, it is safe to assume that, if your cows are not diseased, they are getting a square deal and therefore ought to repay you generously. Are you feeding them a properly balanced ration? If not, or if you are not quite sure of what makes up a properly balanced ration for milk cows, get in touch with your county agent. He will give you the facts. Are the stalls kept clean, especially during the months you keep the milk cows in? Clean stalls and good ventilation are essential if the cow is to give full returns. Clean gutters, clean bedding and lots of pure air are important. Has your milk herd access to all the fresh water they will drink? If not, give it to them. Water is cheap, and they will repay you with more and better milk. Do you keep the cows clean? With adhering to flanks and udders takes money right out of your pocket. Impurities are absorbed into the system. What makes more feed or less milk. Milk from a manure-soaked cow is unclean and, on a strict interpretation, spoils the bag. In just a few minutes, you can give the udders, flanks and underlines of the cows. Thereafter, it is only a matter of seconds to wipe off all clinging foreign matter with a damp cloth. Farmers and dairymen who follow this practice say it increases milk flow and catches the milk. And the cow is certainly more comfortable and clean.
