DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma
I have long entertained the opinion that picture and crossword puzzle contests had immense value in developing the brain. After studying the results of the picture puzzle contest just completed by the Bond Electric Corporation of Jersey City, N. J., I am convinced more than ever of these "brai' teasers."

This contest dealt entirely with the flashlights, batteries and tubes, and other electrical products of the corporation. Each contestant had to study the pictures and determine just what business was concealed therein.

More than 350,000 people, attracted by the $10,000.00 in prizes offered by the electrical corporation tried their ingenuity at solving the six puzzles. And the judges were hard pressed to determine the winners, so great was the analytical ability and deductive powers displayed by the thousands who sent in their answers. Comparing these answers with the 250,000 sent in last year to the slogan contest conducted by the Bond Corporation, the answers this year displayed greater deductive ability.

And this contest attracted people from all walks of life,—doctors, lawyers, dentists, housewives, railroad workers, even high school students. Proving that puzzle contests are not limited in their attraction to any particular age or walk in life.

I am sure there is not a more pleasant or educational way in which to spend spare time than in endeavoring to solve puzzles of the type offered by the Bond Electrical Corporation, with which everybody is familiar, such as flashlights, batteries, radio tubes and the like. Those who tried solving them were compelled to use portions of their brain that otherwise would have clearer outlook on life in general.

This corporation is to be congratulated on its enterprise in offering the people of this country an opportunity to refresh their brains in such pleasant exercises, at the same time offering them a chance to be well rewarded for the few short hours they spent in this pleasant pastime. Let's hope this firm will continue their puzzle contests and that more business firms in this country will follow their example.

It is interesting to note that newspaper advertising played an important part in attracting the 350,000 contestants. "Newspaper advertising is the backbone of American industry," Bertram C. Plante, President of the Bond Electric Corporation told me. Without newspaper advertising it would be impossible to attract in so direct a manner, the attention of the consumer.

Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, says:

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy named for young John. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Strange medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may save you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fidgety, or restless, Castoria will prove more popular with mother than it is today. Every druggist has it.

"A newspaper's greatest asset is the confidence of its readers. If it is not able to obtain that confidence, it is of little value as a public force, and not of much value either to the advertiser in its columns. The newspaper which acquires and retains the good will of thousands of intelligent readers may be said to be representative of its highest type of journalism. Intelligent readers are able to distinguish between fair, accurate news and inaccurate reports, and the confidence of such readers is the greatest measure of good will a newspaper can possess. It is a high endeavor for a newspaper to seek to serve such readers and constantly to merit their approval. Many speak of the sins of the press. I do not defend all newspapers, nor do I sympathize with some of the trends in journalism today. The intelligent reader however, does not lack opportunity to read good, honest newspapers for worthwhile news and information of educational value. Newspapers are not in price competition. The best cost no more than the less desirable newspapers which flaunt lurid crime and sex stories and exclude news of genuine value to readers interested in the progress of civilization."

Summer Vegetable Dishes

By JOSEPH BOGGIA, Chef
The Plaza Hotel, New York City

NOW, in the glorious season when fresh vegetables are abundant and inexpensive, it clearly behooves the conscientious housewife to make the most of her opportunities. Not only because they are among the most nutritious of nature's many gifts, but because they contain so many of the elements vital to health, fresh vegetables should form an important part of every family's summer menu.

Serve them in the standard ways, of course, but after a while even the tastiest vegetable is likely to lose some of its appeal unless variation is introduced into the method of preparation. Watch for new recipes, and with this watchfulness combine a wise use of the three fundamental vegetable seasonings—pepper, salt and sugar. The last, without being noticeable in the finished dish, restores the garden sweetness the vegetable is likely to lose as soon as it is picked. The woman who understands the use of these seasonings possesses the most important secret of vegetable cooking.

Carrots and Peas with Mint—Boil together for five minutes two cups cooked, sliced carrots, one cup cooked peas, and one small bunch of mint. Drain and add salt, pepper and one heaping tablespoon butter. Sprinkle lightly with sugar and set in the oven until the sugar melts. Just before serving garnish with mint leaves.
Corn Louisiana—Shut for five minutes in one and a half cups whole milk two cups of corn freshly cut from the cob. Add salt to taste, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one teaspoon sugar, and two tablespoons butter. Line a shallow dish with thin slices of hot, buttered toast. Pour in the mixture. Lay strips of crisply cooked bacon over the top and garnish with sprigs of parsley.
Peas and Onions—Cook separately until tender, one and a half cups shelled peas and one-half cup little onions. Beat four tablespoons thick cream in a sauceron. Add the peas and onions. Shake lightly until well covered with the cream and very hot. Add one-fourth teaspoon sugar. Mix thoroughly and serve.

Beans For Economy

IN these days of summer wardrobe and down payments on the new car, any economies we can effect in our eating expenses are apt to be welcome as long as we eat healthful foods. Consider the possibilities of canned beans. They're both economical and nourishing, and they can be used in any number of ways. Here are two recipes for instance, that cost respectively twelve and twenty-six cents.
Battered Beans: Heat the contents of a 1 1/4-cup can of stringless beans in their own liquor for about five minutes. Add salt, pepper and one and one-half tablespoons butter. This serves four.
Baked Beans with Bacon: Fry one-fourth pound bacon. Remove about half of the fat and to the rest add one dried onion and one onion brown. Add the contents of a No. 2 can of bean hole beans, season, and heat thoroughly. Serve with the rashers of bacon on top. Serves four.

Salads and Sandwiches
Orange and Green Salad: Marinate thoroughly in French dressing the contents of a No. 2 can of tiny stringless beans, two tablespoons capers and one-half cup shredded peppers. Just before serving add one cup of shredded cabbage which has been crispd in ice water. Arrange on lettuce leaves, and grate a raw carrot over top. Serves eight.
Robert Ross Sandwiches: Wash one-half cup of cold canned baked beans, add two tablespoons chili sauce, one tablespoon chopped capers, two tablespoons GEM pickles and salt and paprika, and spread between buttered slices of brown bread.
