REVIVAL AT METHODIST CHURCH

The revival mentioned last week in the News-Record to begin at the Methodist church in Marshall, began Monday night. The pastor, Rev. S. C. Weatherly has to assist him in the services Rev. M. L. Kinchelo, a member of the Holston Conference. For the last two years he has been doing post graduate work at Duke University and comes highly recommended. The following appeared in a recent issue of The Christian Advocate:

"Rev. M. S. Kinchelo of Liberty was with us at Central Falls in a meeting closing August 11. His preaching was superb and there was a steady increase in attendance at each service. We believe the influence of the meeting in that community will be lasting. Kinchelo is a Duke student and hails from the Holston conference. We predict for him a great future. Ten people, mostly adults, took a definite stand for Christ. Three have joined our church."—M. G. Ervin, Pastor.

CRIMINAL COURT IN MARSHALL

JUDGE OGLESBY DELIVERS FINE CHARGE TO JURY

Superior Court convened in Marshall Monday morning for the hearing of criminal cases. Court opened about 10:30 with Judge John M. Oglesby presiding. As soon as the eighteen men, constituting the Grand Jury, had been drawn, seated, sworn in, and the foreman named (C. G. Paris, of Hot Springs) the Judge delivered his charge, which made a fine impression. It was spoken in a clear and earnest manner and was a strong plea for a higher respect for law, a revival of patriotism, and the stressing of the duties of the officers of the court. Despite the difficulty of hearing in the court room, the Judge's articulation was such as to enable practically every person in the court room to understand. The charge, which lasted until noon, was not only a discussion of law, but was highly moral and spiritual in intent, a veritable sermon.

In the afternoon the court settled down to the hearing of cases.

The calendar was called which contained 121 cases, a number of defendants were called out and set for trial as follows:

H. S. White, worthless check; Talmadge Metcalf for larceny and receiving; L. J. Foster, violation prohibition law; Clyde Rice, transporting liquor; G. W. Marshall, transporting liquor.

The case of State vs. Roosevelt Hart was set for Wednesday afternoon and venire of 75 men was drawn from which to select jury. The Grand Jury returned a true bill against Hart for the murder of a Mr. Bryant on the Asheville and Marshall highway about two months ago. Hart has been in Asheville jail since he was captured.

The cases against G. P. McDevitt for cost, Abe Price, Charlie Deaver, Floyd Davis, Major Davis, Sabarn Hagan were given until November in which to pay same.

The case against Oscar Barrett was not pressed, his defendants having been given about 3 years for violation of prohibition laws in Rowan County.

The case against Hubert Stanton for assault with deadly weapon upon Sampson Landers and Arnold Landers at the time Albert King and Arthur Stanton were killed on the Greenville, Tenn. highway.

Ford Bolding pleaded guilty to carrying concealed weapons and was ordered to pay fine of $50.00 and costs.

The cases against Lewis Maynor and Lee Maynor were ordered

ASSOCIATION AT RED HILL

French Broad Free Will Baptist Association Closed Greatest Meeting In Its History

(By Rev. Willet L. Moretz, Publicity Director)

The French Broad Association of Free Will Baptists met last Thursday, with the Red Hill Church in Madison County in its fifty-second annual session. This session lasted through Sunday. There was a large delegation from 19 of the 22 churches belonging to this body. Rev. R. V. Self, Pastor of Horney Heights Church, was re-elected moderator, and Rev. Malley Rice, Marshall, Route 4, N. C., was elected Clerk.

The introductory sermon was delivered by Rev. R. V. Self, from Matt. 28: 19, 20. His subject was "Carrying The Gospel to All The World."

The address by Mr. C. K. Dunn, of Ayden, N. C., manager of the Free Will Baptist Press, was a very interesting feature of the meeting. He spoke about the great work the Press is trying to render the denomination and asked the co-operation of all the churches. He said that the members of the churches could help the cause greatly by subscribing to the Free Will Baptist. This publication is the organ of the denomination.

The sermon Sunday at 11:00 A. M., which was the closing service of the Association, was delivered by Rev. T. E. Woody, Windsor, N. C., and moderator of Jack's Creek Association. His text was 1 Sam. 17: 45, and the subject "Coming In The Name of The Lord."

The next session of the association will be held with the Laurelton Chapel Church, in Madison County, beginning on Thursday before the fourth Sunday in August 1931. The introductory sermon will be preached by Rev. Anson Brown, of West Asheville.

Billie Anderson was found not guilty of violation of prohibition laws.

Aaron Treadway pleaded guilty to illegal possession of about one quart of intoxicating liquor. Judgment reserved until later in the term.

Bud Carver was allowed to return home, having shown good behavior, and is to appear at November, 1930

Large Enrollment Expected In Carolina Public Schools

Raleigh, Aug. 27.—Approximately 613,000 white and 266,880,000 Negro children, a total of 880,000 children are expected to be enrolled in the public schools of North Carolina when the registration for the session of 1930-1931 is completed this fall, according to estimates made in the office of A. T. Allen, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, based on the enrollment and rate of increase for previous years.

Public schools have already in many of the western counties in order that those running only six months may complete the term before the Christmas holidays and before the winter weather prevails. Most schools in the State, however, open their doors during the month of September, operating half of the session before Christmas.

The estimates made in the office of the State Superintendent further indicate that approximately 100,000 of the 880,000 will be beginners making their appearance for the first time, and that 125,000 of the number will be enrolled in the high school grade. During 1928-29 there were 96,737 white boys and girls and 18,236 Negro children, a total of 109,975 enrolled in the public high schools. The estimate for 1930-31 is that there should be an increase of about 15,000 in the high schools within two years.

Nearly 30,000 boys and girls will enter high school for the first time during the next year, since approximately 15,000 students graduated from high school last spring. The enrollment in the elementary schools will be approximately 500,000 or identical that of the past few years, since the increase in high school enrollment practically absorbs the increase in the total enrollment.

Hermon Rector pleaded guilty to illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. Judgment reserved until later in the term.

Arthur Crow, Clarence Flynn and Dillard Treadway pleaded guilty to larceny of a quantity of tobacco from Bob Crow during the season of last year. The evidence was that defendants had taken about $75.00 worth of tobacco.

Clayton Payton, colored, charged with assault with deadly weapon, an automobile, upon Rev. Mr. Belk of Kentucky, and also reckless driving, pleaded not guilty. He was given a jury trial, which will be given in our next issue.

MY TRIP TO CALIFORNIA

5932 Malabar St.
Huntington Park, California
August 2, 1930

Dear Editor, of Marshall Record:
When I left dear old North Carolina to come to California, I promised my many friends I would write them all about my trip, and the land of sunshine and flowers, but I have been so busy going places and seeing things I don't seem to find time to write so I am taking the liberty of asking you to print this letter in your wonderful paper if space will permit.

I had a very pleasant trip. Met some nice people on the train. It took four days to make the trip and after the first day, everybody got acquainted and were all one big family.

I arrived in New Orleans the second day. Only there a short time and did not see very much of the town, but saw plenty of water. The train crossed the river on a ferry boat. A passenger told me the river was eight miles wide, but it seemed four times that to me. I slept scarcely any the first night, and when I was sure I was on land again I retired and had a good night's sleep, and the next morning I was informed we were in Texas, and I admit I was a wee bit blue. Just as far as I could see there was nothing but stubby bushes which are called sage brush.

By noon we had reached a more prosperous looking part of the country. I could see at a distance herds of cattle and sheep, and at the stations there were cowboys, all dressed up, with their big hats and high heeled boots and six shooters.

The next day we were traveling in New Mexico and Arizona. This is a desert country—nothing to see but sand. There are great mounds of sand-drifts that is the after effects of a sand storm. The sand storm must be something like the snow storms in North Carolina. The only thing I can say I liked about the desert was the moon. It looked to be the most beautiful moon I had ever seen.

I slept very little this last night. I was getting anxious to get to my destination and see what California was like, and I had already made up my mind if California was anything like the country I had been traveling through for the past two days, I would soon be on my way back to the old North State, and I sure meant that.

I was awakened after a short cat nap, and was delighted to look out on the orange groves.

And here I am in California, and I sure have enjoyed every moment since I have been here. I went to a Southern picnic not very long ago, and met a lot of North Carolina people, and had a very enjoyable day. I am in a beautiful little town just five miles from Los Angeles, and only twelve miles from the ocean.

Since I have been here I have been a very busy girl, seeing Southern California's wonderful mountain drives and beautiful beaches, and swimming in the ocean. The greatest thrill was going up in an airplane. I can't explain just how I felt, but it is quite different from riding horseback in the North Carolina mountains.

I have met some very nice people since I have been here. However I haven't captured a Hollywood sheik. However, I have been looking them over.

I am planning a trip down in Old Mexico.

People tell me that is where they all go when they decide to go wild, but I am not going for that, perhaps. Nevertheless, I expect to get a big kick looking on.

Now, after saying all the nice things for California, there is still something lacking.

And, California, with its sunshine and flowers always in bloom, can never take the place in my heart of my old North Carolina mountain home.

But remember, I am coming back.

FAWNS PASS THROUGH MARSHALL

HELPING TO STOCK MADISON COUNTY WITH GAME

Several people at the filling station of Mr. Robert Tweed last Sunday afternoon enjoyed for a few minutes petting and admiring seven fawns which were being taken through on a truck from the Pisgah National Forest Game Preserve to the sixteen thousand acre mountain range in Madison County. The fawns were in charge of Mr. C. N. Mease, of Black Mountain, Assistant State Game Warden of the Pisgah National Forest. Their new refuge in Madison County is known as the Andrew Johnson State Game Preserve, established in July. Mr. L. L. Payne, the new warden, will have charge of these fawns. These alert little pets were taken in infancy and have been nourished from a bottle. They are now about three months old, and after about two months more, they will be turned loose in the forest.

REVIVAL AT HOT SPRINGS

Rev. J. C. Wallace of Asheville, N. C., and C. L. Miller of Bluff, N. C., who have conducted some very successful revivals on Spring Creek, began a revival at Hot Springs last Thursday night in the Baptist church. Mr. Miller was not able to continue in the meeting on account of a severe cold. He returned home until he could get better. Mr. Wallace is doing the preaching. Interest is growing fast. Saturday night Mr. Wallace spoke on the great need of a revival at Hot Springs as well as all over the land. Mr. Wallace used the 85th Psalm, 6th verse—"Will thou not revive us again?" After the sermon he asked the question that we find in First Chronicles 29: 5—"Who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord." And a large number of the congregation responded, coming forward and giving the preacher their hand pledging their hearty support and cooperation in the meeting, after which a request for sinners to come forward and ask for prayer. Many responded promptly and heartily, almost every one came forward, some asking for special prayer. The preacher and the people are greatly encouraged and look for a great revival.

REV. S. M. SEXTON.

CELEBRATION AT ANTIOCH

The Antioch Methodist church near Hot Springs will hold a celebration of progress on next Sunday. The program begins at 10:00 o'clock and continues till late afternoon. Dr. J. M. Rowland of Richmond, Va. will be the main speaker of the day. All of the ministers who have served in the Spring Creek Circuit for the past thirty-five years have been invited back for a day of fellowship. Dinner will be served on the ground by the eight churches of the Hot Springs charge. All of these churches are requested to be present on that day to see their former pastors.

Farmers in Richmond County are not complaining this year as they have the largest small grain crop on record for the county together with good crops of peaches, apples, tomatoes, and other products. Buyers are coming from other sections for their products.

no matter where I be, When the dogwood blooms in spring time.

That will be in 1932.

THE GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAIN NATIONAL PARK, SCENE NEAR BRYSON CITY.

The Great Smoky Mountains National Park which will probably ultimately contain 700,000 acres of land lying in Western North Carolina and Eastern Tennessee was made possible by the raising of $5,000,000 in the two states and the gift of $5,000,000 by the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial.

The incomparable park, in which there are 15 peaks towering above 6,000 feet, is the only great area left of the vast original forest of 137 species of trees that once covered the East from the Atlantic to the prairies. Some of these trees were growing when Columbus discovered America and are 6 feet in diameter and 150 feet high. The park will create a sanctuary for bird and animal life and a botanical garden and arboretum which will probably be unequalled in the world.
