HEARD BY "POP" BETWEEN WOMEN

If I live to be a hundred years old (and that's not likely) I don't expect to see a more exciting game than the Mars Hill-Spring Creek finals Saturday night - it's mighty hard to keep from yelling when you're behind a microphone but I don't think it would have mattered Saturday night - the roar of the capacity crowd even made it difficult to hear the official's whistle - although I didn't see all the games this year, the semi-finals, finals, and extra-finals were the most thrilling - truly, the Mars Hill girls and boys, the Walnut girls and the Spring Creek boys were the cream of the crop in winning their places to the finals - the sportsmanship trophy was won by Spring Creek - a fine choice - but from what I observed, practically all the teams could have won it - the sportsmanship was great throughout the tourney and the brand of ball was "par-excellent" - I always have a lot of fun kidding Dot Shupe - she's a fine sport once you understand her - she used to make me a little mad but I finally found out she's about as crazy as I am (so we get along fine - she "furnished" us with popcorn during the event which helped a great deal - Mrs. Jack Landers is always faithful at these tournaments, too - she's been at 'em as long as I can remember - this year, however, she was at the official's desk and we had a whole lot of fun recalling "past memories at Walnut" - enough about the tourney - went over to the Island Sunday and walked in the new gym - it's really beginning to take shape - and looks wonderful - when completed, it's going to be the "show place" of Marshall -

THE FARMER'S WIFE

Have just decided that, after all these years, for my birthday, I'll buy myself a sewing basket - I don't mean one of those half-size ones with beads and fringe and so forth but a full grown one made from hickory splints such as a few people can still make here in the mountains - it's a long while between patching spells at my house - meanwhile there's holey socks on the chest of drawers, holey socks on the chairs and ripped everything in the closet - I use the venetian blind tapes to stick needles in and spools of thread and cold remedies and shoe polish mixed in the drawers - at this time last year I turned a new leaf - all the colored thread left from my spring sewing I put into a separate box and put away for this year's sewing - away where? - I haven't the faintest notion - while looking through my seed catalogue I found a pumpkin recommended for pumpkin stew - which set me to wondering if I had missed something - so I hunted through all my cook books but didn't find a thing - have eaten pumpkin pie, baked pumpkin slices and steamed pumpkin seasoned with butter, salt and sugar - have even tasted pumpkin cookies but no stew - fried pumpkin blossoms - I'm planning to make one day - they say only use the male blossoms so as not to decrease the crop but my knowledge of biology being nil can't take a chance - anyway who wants pumpkin during creasy season.
