Continued Hospitality Stressed By The Southern Railway

The Southern Railway System, which annually spends more than $200,000 on a national advertising campaign designed to attract new industries to the South, now comes up with a suggestion for those communities fortunate enough to latch onto a new plant.

In an advertisement appearing this month in newspapers throughout the Southeast, Harry A. DeButts, the railway's president, says: "It's a fine thing to have the 'welcome mat' out for a new factory on opening day. But it's not enough! A community's long-range industrial growth and prosperity depend on sincere and continuing hospitality to industry, long after the welcoming committee has gone home. This is a job for all of us in the South today.

"The steady, year-by-year expansion of existing industry is impressive proof that the job is being done. Southern industries are getting a honest day's work for a fair day's technological progress, which ultimately creates still more jobs . . . honest, stable, friendly state and local government and fair tax treatment . . . efficient, dependable rail service.

"With all of us doing all we can to welcome new industries to the South and to keep them happy in their new home, the Southland will continue to grow and prosper. And pay . . . understanding acceptance of all in the South will benefit!"

RUG HAS LOTS OF KNOTS

Winchester, Mass. — The Persian-made "Rug of Civilization," which is owned by a local firm, has an estimated 2,000 knots to the square inch, 36,288,000 in all. It took ten master weavers twelve years to create the 75-year-old rug, which depicts 165 world-famed personages since the time of Socrates.

A State Highway Patrolman says he was in court recently when the judge was questioning a motorist charged with running through a flashing red light. "Didn't you see the light?" the jurist asked the man. "I did, indeed, your honor," he replied. "But I went through on the blink."

Overplanting Called Costly, Inconvenient

Every year, some farmers in North Carolina are greatly inconvenienced because they overplanted their allotment of a basic crop. Tilman R. Walker, chairman of the State ASC Committee, has reminded Tar Heel farmers that it is definitely their responsibility to plant within their acreage allotment.

Every year a few farmers over the state, on having their acreage measured by ASC personnel, find that they have overplanted. Many of these farmers, according to Walker, pay additional money out of their pockets to have a representative of the ASC county committee witness disposition of the excess acreage. Other farmers make a deposit with the ASC office to have officials revisit the farm and re-

GRADUATES

Cpl. McKinley Baker of Walnut, recently was graduated from the 4th Infantry Division Non-Commissioned Officer Academy in Germany. At the academy, he studied administrative procedures, leadership and the latest military techniques. Corporal Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vestie Baker, Walnut, is a squad leader in Company E of the division's 8th Regiment. The corporal entered the Army in September 1953 and completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. He arrived in Europe in February 1954. His wife, Erika, is with him in Germany.

measure the acreage. In just about every case, this is an unnecessary drain on the farmer's pocketbook, and in every case, the time lost by these revisits to the farm is a great inconvenience to the farmer, he says.

"That's just one of the reasons the farmer should remember that it is his responsibility to plant within his acreage allotment," Walker adds. Another reason is that every time a farmer plants over his allotment, he is wasting seed or plants, fertilizer and labor.

As a service to farmers, ASC will send trained reporters to the farm to lay off a farmer's allotment before any planting. For this service, the farmer pays only the actual cost of the visit to the farm. Only through premeasurement, Walker pointed out, can farmers be certain that they are not overplanting and bringing on themselves a possible amount of increased cost as well as quite a bit of time and delay.
