HORSE IN HOUSE

Los Angeles. — The family of Ralph T. Gervais was recently surprised to see a horse storm into their living room with the screen door draped around his neck and dragging a hitching post behind his harness. Before being run out of the house, the animal broke furniture and windows, kicked and stomped the walls and floors, tipped over a table and made so much noise that the Gervais children were badly frightened. Gervais is suing the owner of the horse for $28,958 damages. The horse's name, by the way, is Frisky.

afternoon.

PUT CAT OUT BEFORE LEAVING ON YOUR VACATION

Raleigh — State police in Missouri are telling their citizens not to forget to put the cat out before shoving off on a vacation.

Same deal in North Carolina where state troopers are seldom surprised at the many things that folks forget to do before leaving for a motor trip.

One of the most important things troopers say to remember is to make a list of the places you are going and the dates, along with a description of your car and its license number.

Quoting Missouri officials "There is hardly a day during the vacation season when our officers are not called on to look for vacationing motorists — and it is rare when the license number or description of the car they are driving is known."

The same thing prevails in Variety Vacationland, according to Col. James R. Smith, state highway patrol commander.

For vacation travelers, Col. Smith recommends three other important things to do before leaving on a vacation motor trip:

Check your car to be sure it is in safe operating condition. Brakes, lights, windshield wipers are important points to check.

Allow adequate travel time to your destination so speed can be held to a safe rate. Include frequent rest stops.

When traveling away from North Carolina, drivers should become acquainted with traffic laws and regulations in states through which they intend to travel.

 News For Veterans ***

Two important cautions were issued by the Veterans Administration to newly separated veterans and older veterans who are receiving monthly VA checks for any benefits. They have to do with making sure that the checks are received properly and on time, as follows:

1. If a veteran changes his address, he should promptly notify the VA regional office which handles his records, giving the new address.

2. If a monthly check is lost or not delivered, he should notify the VA office at once.

In writing to VA, the veteran should be careful to identify himself thoroughly. The best way to do this is to give his "C-number," the number assigned to him in connection with his claim, which serves as complete identification.

Under the law, VA checks for benefits may not be forwarded to a new address by the post office, but have to be returned to the U. S. Treasury. Hence if the veteran wants to avoid delay in getting his checks after moving from one address to another, it is important that he notify the VA regional office at once.

If a monthly check has not been delivered when due, he should notify VA of the date it was due and the amount, giving his full name, correct address and "C-number."

If in a rare instance a veteran should receive his monthly check for an amount less than or more than his regular check, VA said, the check should be promptly returned to the regional office for correction, instead of being cashed.

Q — I am a World War II veteran and I have a permanent GI insurance policy. I am planning to get a loan on my policy. Am I supposed to repay it in amounts that are multiples of $5?

A — Not necessarily. You may repay it in amounts of any size, so long as they are not less than $5 payment.

Q — I live in a State that pays a bonus to Korea veterans. Do I apply for this bonus at the VA?

A — No. VA does not administer State bonuses. They are enacted and administered without any aid whatsoever from the Federal Government. Application should be made with your State.

—Once Too Often

In a village election in Republican Vermont, one Democratic vote was discovered before the tabulation had been completed. Election officials stopped to ponder this marvel, then decided to complete the count. Another Democratic vote turned up. "That settles it," said one official. "That dishonest fool voted twice."

HELPFUL FRIEND

Garden City, N. Y. — Because his friend wanted to board a non-stop train, Alvin Hemon obligingly laid himself down on a Long Island Railroad track and stayed there until a frantic motorman halted his electric train just 20 feet away. Hemon arose, dusted himself off, and said to his unidentified friend, "Okay, there's the train." He later admitted to a judge that he had visited several taverns prior to his "helpful act."
