THE NEW TRAINS NOW IN SERVICE

The Pennsylvania Railroad has recently inaugurated service of a new, lightweight train. The new train, known as the "tubular train," while being developed, has a basic steel design.

However, it is heavier than two other lightweight trains which have received publicity lately, the "Aerotrains" and "Train X."

The Keystone, which is the new Pennsylvania train, is heavier than the other two "new" trains and it is claimed that it rides a little easier, although these claims are certain to be disputed. The new train weighs forty per cent less than the conventional train, and coaches carry eighty-two passengers.

Its center of gravity is nine inches lower than the center of gravity of standard equipment, and it is reported to take curves very comfortably.

The railroad industry certainly needs something new to stimulate passenger interest, and although we are not sure that any of the three trains which have received much publicity lately are the answer, it is apparent that the answer is due. It is now eleven years since the end of World War II, and passenger travel on the railroads is practically the same as it was prior to World War II, with few exceptions.

The difference in airline transportation today and in 1939 or 1940 is vast. The comparative progress made by the two forms of transportation is just about as vast.

Today's MEDITATION from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

Read I Timothy 6:12-16

Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. (Romans 5:1.)

One part of the training that every soldier must go through to be an army engineer is learning to climb telephone poles. To climb successfully, he must have faith in the two little spurs, each less than two inches long, which support his entire weight. When a person climbs his first pole, he is very much afraid that those spurs will slip and that he will fall to the ground. But he soon realizes that if he places his confidence and faith in those spurs and really digs in, nothing can hurt him and he will be safe.

Spiritually speaking, we must put our faith in Christ if we want to be saved. Has he not said to each of us, "Come unto me?" One's mind and spirit must share in the belief and in the knowledge that Christ has the power and the will to help us if we will only keep our faith strong in Him. He welcomes us, and we are justified by faith and have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

PRAYER

Our heavenly Father, teach us to pray and to have and keep faith in Thy Son, Jesus Christ. Help us to distrust ourselves, body, mind, and spirit, to our blessed Redeemer. In His holy name we ask it. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Our salvation depends on our faith in Christ.

—Edward Hook, Soldier (Illinois)

Gone with the wind!

WHEN A FREIGHT CAR rolls down the "hump" at our new $14 million Citico Yard at Chattanooga, Tennessee, even the wind resistance of the car is automatically measured.

While the car is rolling, a rider device instantly picks up and evaluates all the many factors that affect its rollability—weight, speed, size, wind, weather and others. Then the magic brain of an electronic computer regulates the retarder brake in the track under the moving car so that it will couple safely and gently to another car standing far down in the yard below.

This is a new kind of railroading. You'll see it at work in countless ways on the Southern today—at Citico, and in our other multi-million dollar push-button yards at Knoxville, Tenn. and Birmingham, Ala. And still another ultra-modern electronic yard to cost $15 million is now under construction at Atlanta, Ga.

Yesterday railroading is "gone with the wind" on the Southern. Today's modern railroading means better living for all in the South.
