

GARDEN TIME

I have advised you from time to time concerning the use of "All-Purpose" dusts and sprays to control both insects and diseases on apples, pears, peaches, vegetables and ornamental plants.

Some home gardeners feel that sprays are more effective than dusts, and I am inclined to agree, because most people do a more thorough job with sprays.

and DDT leave poison residues on vegetables. Fungus galls on azalea and camellia leaves are widespread and you may find them on your plants.

Of all the troublesome "critters" perhaps the spider mite is the worst, because it frequently works unnoticed. Examine the undersides of the leaves. They are real small but can be seen with the naked eye.

THERE IS A FOUNTAIN FILLED WITH BLOOD

"Both accounts are in the Gospel of John," the forty-year old clergyman, William Cowper, said to his minister friend, John Newton.

Cowper then opened the Bible and read aloud from Zechariah 13:1, prefacing the reading with these words, "Zechariah prophesied about a fountain that God would prepare for the cleansing and purification of Jerusalem in these words.

and Newton were hard at work on a new hymnal for the Church at Olney, a volume that was published later as "Olney Hymns."

The two men continued their conversation and soon were discussing whether the pool of Siloam was actually a pool or a fountain. "The Greek word is a bit ambiguous," Newton said.

There is a fountain filled with blood, Drawn from Emmanuel's veins, And Sinner plunged beneath Lose all their guilty stains.

Essential rains for a week had brought to flood stage all the streams in her neighborhood. Then a cloudburst on the night of July 6, 1951. The railroad had sent out a pilot engine to test the track.

See actual road-test proof! DODGE outperforms "other two" low-priced trucks!

Halfway up. The extra V-8 power under the hood of the Dodge sends it quickly ahead. It's already two lengths out front. And there's a 1000-lb. test load on each one of these comparably equipped trucks. What's more, Dodge is still gaining!

Dodge flashes past the finish five lengths ahead of competition. Truck "C" and truck "F" just couldn't match that 294-hp. Power Giant. And this is just one of a rugged series of tests that prove Dodge is best of the low-priced three.

Your Dodge truck dealer has proof that Dodge leads in many ways. Come in... see other certified test-photo sequences... and take a demonstration ride!

As June is "Dairy Month," a recipe that has created much interest for using more milk in diet is as follows: FRUIT, MILK & EGG-NOG

- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups scalded milk
1 1/2 cups cold milk
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 can (12 oz.) apricot nectar
1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped
Mix eggs, sugar and salt. Pour scalded milk slowly into egg mixture, stirring to blend.

Schedule of Home Demonstration Clubs in County

- Tuesday, June 11 - Paint Fork with Mrs. J. G. Gardner.
Wednesday, June 12 - Laurel Branch.
Friday, June 14 - Hayes Run with Mrs. Clara Crowe.

BALL CITY

Everyone enjoyed the singing convention at Liberty Baptist Church Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Moore and family, Mr. C. W. Fish, Mrs. Avery Allen and daughter, Cathy, and Mr. and Mrs. Medford Burgess and son, Sam, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moore Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Allen and family were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Allen of Fines Creek Sunday morning.

Carolyn Moore spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Arrington of Iron Duff.

Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Russell were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Fish Saturday.

Jo Ann Allen took dinner Sunday with Agnes Mathis.

Glen Stevenson spent Friday night with David Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Price and family were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Allen Price Sunday.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Floyd Fish is on the sick list. We hope for him a speedy recovery.

Mr. Loyd Fish was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Denver Moore and C. W. Fish Sunday morning.

Newton asked the preacher poet as the two men visited in the yard of Cowper's home, which adjoined the back yard of Newton's parsonage at Olney, England, that afternoon in 1771.

"It is the account of Jesus healing the infirm man at the pool of Bethesda as it is recorded for us in the fifth chapter of John. In this case, the man who had been a helpless invalid for some thirty-eight years said to the Lord, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me in the pool; but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me. He said that, because the water in the pool bubbled up every so often, and the people believed that an angel periodically troubled the water, and that the first sick person to step down into it would immediately be healed of his disease.

"I feel that the Lord has dealt with me in a similar manner," Cowper interrupted. "After being in a state of suspense for many years because of the feeling that God had not elected me to eternal salvation, and that therefore I was to be numbered forever with the eternally damned, I was warmly converted under the influence of an Evangelical minister like yourself. At that moment, I felt that my whole soul was being bathed in the healing floods of the love of God."

"When was that?" Newton asked. "Just seven years ago, in 1764," Cowper answered. "When I was thirty-three years of age. It was a strange experience," he continued, "because I felt at that moment that my own sins were as vile as those of the thief who was crucified with Jesus, the dying thief whose cry for pardon the Master heard and answered affirmatively. And I also felt at the very same time that he heard my cry and pardoned me and restored me to the warmth of his intimate friendship and held me tightly in the tender embrace of his healing love."

Cowper, whose delicate soul had suffered a terrific strain at the death of his mother when but a lad of six, and whose sensitive nature had been subjected to further shocks by the hearings at Westminster School, now experienced periodic and tragic fits of despondency and melancholia, when he sought to take his own life in a futile attempt to run away from himself. Only the loving devotion of his preacher friend and neighbor, John Newton, and the constant encouragement of other loyal companions, restored him to sanity when these spiritual blackouts occurred. Now, in one of the relatively normal periods of his life, and one that he had never looked back upon as among the happiest he had ever known.

With those thoughts in his mind, William Cowper (1731-1800), whose poem "John Gilpin's Ride" became an English classic, and whose volume "The Task" assured him a lasting place among the great men of English letters, wrote a hymn as autobiographical as Newton's masterpiece "Amazing Grace." Under the caption "Praise For The Fountain-Opened," Cowper wrote seven four-line stanzas, the most familiar being these:

There is a fountain filled with blood, Drawn from Emmanuel's veins, And Sinner plunged beneath Lose all their guilty stains. The dying thief rejoiced to see That Fountain in his day And there have I, as vile as he, Washed all my sins away. E'er since by faith I saw the stream Thy flowing wounds supply, Redeeming love has been my theme And shall be till I die. Then in a nobler, sweeter song, I'll sing thy power to save, When this poor lisping, stammering tongue Lies silent in the grave. While the great English editor-poet, James Montgomery, attempted to improve Cowper's lines by re-wording his thoughts more impersonally, the original rather than the alteration lives on in the hymnals of today. As sung with many added curlicues by southern adaptations of the hymn tune "Cowper," composed by Lowell Mason for this poem and named for its author, this hymn became quite popular during the nineteenth century. It deserves to become a permanent part of Christian hymnody as a graphic example of yesterday's figures of speech and emphases, which moved worshippers to terror and to tears, while pointing sinners to the healing power that flows from the Lamb of God. While we may have outgrown its imagery, we can never outgrow the faith which inspired it, and while the idioms of Cowper may not be as readily accepted by this generation as by his, nevertheless, the basic truths which they exalted are eternal and the spiritual concepts they expressed are forever valid.

Always remember that all the knowledge in the world was acquired at the expense of other's burnt fingers.

News for Veterans

A more liberal definition of the term "widow" is used to determine eligibility for compensation payments to the survivor of a veteran who dies of a service-connected cause on or after January 1, 1957.

- 1. A child was born of the marriage; or,
2. If no child, the widow was married to the veteran before or during his service; or,
3. If no child and if not married before or during his service, she married him within 15 years after the duty period when the service-connected injury or disease that caused his death occurred; or
4. If no child and if married more than 15 years after the foregoing duty period, she was married to the veteran five or more years before his death.

VA said the widow must have lived with the veteran from the time of marriage until his death, except where a separation was due to the misconduct of the husband, or was procured by the husband without fault on the part of the widow.

VA said previous laws for service-connected deaths before January 1, 1957 generally provide shorter periods within which the marriage must have been performed and do not establish a widow's eligibility solely because a child was born of the marriage. VA stressed that widows who were ineligible before January 1, 1957 remain ineligible under the new law.

The road to happiness leaves more memories in the mind if it was full of pitfalls in places.
