

A Little Boy Discovers A Home Is Anywhere Folks Have A Heart

By GERRY KOONTZ
Citizens-Times Reporter

Randy Russell Cutshall is a small boy who possesses one set of loving natural parents and numbers and numbers of extras, all his own.

Randy was born four years ago June 12, and his first home was the premature ward at Memorial Mission Hospital in Asheville.

When he was nearly a year old, he was brought back to the pediatrics floor and except for a month or two at a time spent in his home on Spillcorn Road several miles out of Marshall, Randy's lived his life among his extra parents of Memorial Mission's staff.

And if you want to see someone's eyes light up, just mention Randy's name to Mrs. Doris Plemmons, head nurse on the children's floor, who's been there all four years of Randy's life.

Or to Mary Briggs in the pediatric pantry, who "has Randy spoiled rotten" cooking his favorite dishes.

Or to the young intern who first ran into Randy in the line of duty in the clinic, who still comes up every day—even though he's no longer in pediatrics—to see his little buddy.

Or to Mrs. Eric Donner of the hospital's public relations staff, who'll ride up to the fifth floor just to talk to Randy.

Or to his many doctors, countless nurses, X-ray attendants, laboratory staff—seems like the whole of the personnel of the busy hospital wants to take a little time for "their" boy.

He's not an especially striking-looking child at first glance, nor the sort of young man to cause the feminine populace to sigh, "what a doll!"

But first thing you know, those direct brown eyes and the sudden springtime smile have reached out to you, too, and you're like all the others—trapped!

Randy's heart seems to be his worst trouble. "Plemm," as Randy calls his friend Mrs. Plemmons, says usually he'll catch a little cold, it advances to pneumonia, then the trouble with his heart follows, and he has to fight his way back again. And come back to his home at Mission to do it.

Is he sorry to come back?

Not at all! He seems to be happy to be back among his toys and friends and settles right down to making himself at home.

Speaking of toys, he has all the law allows to play with up there, and each night, before he goes to bed, he has to get all his favorites to lug along with him, until, the nurses say, "it looks like there won't be room for Randy!" He's an active little boy—though he tires easily—and can usually manage to go where he wishes just before he's discharged to go home again.

When it's time to go home, the nurses make a phone call to Madison County's Sheriff E. Y. Ponder and he goes to fetch Randy's mama and papa. And he takes them home again.

They take with them a supply of vitamins and Randy's heart medicine—he's sure to need it—and in a couple of months, Sheriff Ponder rushes Randy back to Mission.

Lloyd and Wavel Cutshall, Randy's mother and father, aren't able to visit often, but the sheriff brings them over as frequently as he can manage.

The little fellow spent last Christmas in the hospital—and what a Christmas!

The nurses love all the children—though the special place belongs to Randy!—and they built a make-believe fireplace out of the playroom's big blocks, covered it with paper to make it look real.

Each child's stocking was hung from the fireplace, and before it was set a rocking chair. Over by the elevators towered a huge, 7-foot Santa! And it was a touching sight to see a nurse, a small child snuggled close in her lap, rocking and singing and waiting for Santa.

Christmas morning, the hospital's Joe Livesay—"dressed all in red from his head to his foot!"—came up to see the Christmas crop of children.

But his special stop was Randy. My! How Santa did shower Randy!

Especially with toy guns. The nurses knew he 'specially wished for a cowboy pistol, so among the many gifts Santa gave him, Randy found six toy guns!

In addition to the ordinary nursery duties, his friends have added a new one—they use regular barber's clippers to give him a haircut!

When the tall doctors come to stand around him, poking gently at his various portions, murmuring doctor-talk above his head, Randy lies flat and still scarcely moving, except when something touches a tender place.

His nurses say he's always that good—except when they have to give him a shot. Even then, he doesn't fight them—just cries lustily like any four-year-old!

It's good to know that a child can adjust to a "home away from home"—especially when the lack of that home would be a matter of life or death—more likely—death.

The members of the Men's Fellowship are reminded of the regular monthly meeting which will be held in the Community Room on June 26th at 7:30 p. m. Mr.

Eldridge Leake who is the president of the group will preside as usual. All members are asked to attend.

The attendance at the Daily Vacation Bible School during the past week has been very satisfactory. This week will be the second and final week and closing exercises will be held on Friday evening at 7:30 with Miss Ruth Guthrie, who has been supervising the school, in charge. At that time the various things which the youngsters have made will be on display and the youngsters will also speak pieces and sing songs. All the parents have been cordially invited to attend. After the closing session on Friday morning there will be a picnic and all parents who wish to assist are asked to see either Mrs. George R. Blue or Miss Ruth Guthrie. The pastor wishes to thank all who have helped in any way to make the Bible School a success.

There was the usual good attendance at the weekly session of the Sunday School which was under the direction of Elder Fred Rector. At that time there were several announcements in regard to the Daily Vacation Bible School. In the evening there was a service at which the pastor preached on the subject, "Anchoring One's Soul to the Infinite." The text was taken from the writings of the Prophet Isaiah. Members and friends of the church are reminded that there will be a service here at 7:30 p. m. this coming Sunday. Mr. Daniel Force will be the preacher.

White Rock

The morning service began at 9:30 and was conducted by the pastor who also delivered the sermon. The title of the sermon was "A Man Named Job." The text was taken from the first chapter of the Book of Job. At the close of the service there was an observance of the Lord's Supper at which time the following assisted the pastor: Elder Chapel Tweed and Elder Dewey Wallin.

After the Communion Service there was the regular session of the Sunday School at which the pastor was present. At that time several matters of general interest to the church and Sunday School were discussed and one of them was a Daily Bible School. During the latter part of last week the pastor will attend the annual meeting of the Synod of the Mid-South which will be held at Maryville College in Maryville, Tennessee.

Hot Springs

During the first part of the week there was a Bible Study Group under the guidance of Mrs. Maude Long. The theme was concerned mainly with the working of the Holy Spirit in the life of the early Christian Church. Several great personalities of the New Testament were also discussed. The leader for all of the meetings was Miss Virginia Heath of Spartanburg, S. C.

There was the usual attendance at the morning service of worship which was conducted at 11:00 by Mr. Daniel Force. The theme of the sermon was concerned with the vital role of the young people in the life of the church. Members and friends of the church and parish are reminded that this coming Sunday the pastor will preach here and Mr. Force will go to Walnut. The following Sunday Mr. Force will return to Walnut.

Definite plans have been made to have a Daily Vacation Bible School here during the week of June 22nd and July 1st in cooperation with the Methodist Church. At a meeting which will be held recently at the home of Mrs. Hill

NEWS from the Services

Fort Jackson, S. C. — Pvt. Bobby J. Blackwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Blackwell, of Marshall, and Pvt. D. C. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Robinson, of RFD 6, Marshall N. C., have been assigned to Company D, 6th Battalion, 2nd Training Regiment at Fort Jackson, S. C., for eight weeks basic combat training.

Upon arrival at Fort Jackson, they were issued clothing and given a complete physical examination and a comprehensive battery of aptitude tests.

As part of their basic training they will be taught rifle marksmanship under the Army's new TRAINFIRE program. In TRAINFIRE, they will learn to use an M-1 rifle by firing at pop-up targets on terrain which duplicates combat areas.

They will also be taught drill, tactics, camouflage, military courtesy, first aid and other basic subjects. They will learn how to throw a grenade, fire in pitch darkness, crawl under barbed wire with machine gun fire overhead, and defend themselves in simulated chemical, biological and radiological warfare situations.

During their seventh week of training, they will march 13 miles with full field pack to a bivouac area to spend a week living in the field and learning to integrate the skills they have been taught.

After completing basic training, they normally will receive a two-week leave before reporting for their next assignment.

Great Lakes, Ill (PHTC) — Clarence W. Ogle, machinist's mate fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Ogle of Route 6, Marshall, serving aboard the destroyer USS Waldron, and Frank B. Norton, boatswain's mate first class, USN, son of Mrs. Bessie Norton of Hot Springs, and husband of the former Miss Linda O. Smith of Bristol, Tenn., serving aboard the attack cargo ship USS Oglethorpe, are participating in "Operation Inland Seas," a cruise of 28 United States Navy warships to cities in the Great Lakes this summer.

The Navy fleet, which includes destroyers, a heavy cruiser and an amphibious force of seven ships, will visit 27 cities in the 7 states bordering the Great Lakes. The ships will enter the Great Lakes on June 25 and return to the Atlantic Fleet in late July.

This is the first time a major fleet has been on the Great Lakes since the war of 1812. The entry of the ocean-going fleet is made possible by the opening of the recently completed St. Lawrence Seaway.

The ships will visit the following cities and states: Illinois: Chicago; Indiana: Michigan City; Michigan: Bay City, Detroit, Marquette, Muskegon, Port Huron, Mackinaw City, Sault Ste. Marie, Cheboygan; Minnesota: Duluth; New York: Buffalo, Oswego, Rochester, Dunkirk; Ohio: Cleveland, Toledo, Lorain, Ashtabula; Pennsylvania: Erie; Wisconsin: Milwaukee, Marinette; Menominee, Sheboygan, Green Bay, Ashland.

Rice To Conduct Black Root Rot Demonstration

During recent years there has been an increase in tobacco loss from Black Root Rot, according to James Stewart, assistant county agent. Last year Bill Rice, of Walnut, had the most severe outbreak of Black Root Rot reported in Madison County.

This year Rice will start a five-year rotation program designed to control Black Root Rot. In the infested area, 0.1 acre will be grown in tobacco continually, and in another 0.1 tobacco and a grain crop will be rotated.

In order to find tobacco varieties which the more resistant to this disease, planting of 17 varieties will be planted in the severely infested portion of the tobacco field. It is hoped in using this large selection of plants that some variety will show a definite resistance to Black Root Rot. This tobacco plot will be located on Bill Rice's farm about one and one-half mile Northwest of Walnut on Highway 70. Interested farmers may wish to look at this plot during the growing season.
