RED CROSS IN MADISON

For some reason it seems that many of our citizens fail to realize the many services the American Red Cross is rendering in Madison County. This is also true of the Salvation Army, the Marshall and Hot Springs Lions Clubs and other worthwhile groups. Most of us seem unaware that our county would be severely "hurt" without these and other organizations. Those of us who don't actually come face to face with these services seldom give them serious thought. This is pathetic.

We feel sure that the Salvation Army and the two county Lions Clubs could list many humanitarian accomplishments if they would. This is also true of the American Red Cross. Now that the Madison County Chapter and the Buncombe County Chapter have merged into one large unit, our people should take inventory of what services the Red Cross organization is performing daily to benefit Madison County people.

Mr. Marshall Upton, manager of the Buncombe-Madison Chapter, was in Marshall this week and had the following to report regarding what Red Cross has done in Madison County this year. Mr. Upton said:

"Since January of this year, 283 units of blood have been supplied to residents of Madison County from the Asheville Regional Blood Center. This blood was provided, as you know, free of charge to these patients as no charge is made for Red Cross blood. You can easily see that had this blood been purchased commercially at the minimum rate of $25.00 per unit this would have been very expensive for the families involved.

"Our Junior Red Cross is becoming active this year in Madison County and programs will be getting underway shortly at Spring Creek, Marshall, and Walnut High Schools. As soon as possible we will be in contact with all of the other schools regarding Junior Red Cross programming.

"Our disaster plan, as you know, is set up to include the Madison County jurisdiction and should a disaster occur, Red Cross services would be available to the people of Madison County.

"The following services have been extended to residents of Madison County through our service to the armed forces and veterans program during this year: Emergency leaves and extensions — 20; Reports for military and servicemen — 6; Hardship discharge affidavits — 10; Veterans claims and benefits — 5; Assistance with dependency affidavits — 7; Counseling and referrals — 15; Social histories — 1; Disaster welfare inquiries — 6; Financial assistance — 1.

IT'S TIME TO THINK OF 1960

The year 1959 is moving toward its end, without so far developing the third World War or the other misfortunes that were predicted by the pessimists.

There has been no collapse of public morale and the younger generation, despite the complaints of their elders, seems to be developing normally. These facts should not be overlooked in connection with new items which naturally play up the unusual without expressly recognizing the great number of men and women who play the game of life according to sound and fair rules.

We are not yet ready to welcome the advent of 1960, or to suggest, that those who wish to plan their lives should get down to the business of making resolutions. We will say, however, that individuals can greatly improve themselves by giving serious consideration to a "program" to be followed in an effort to attain desired goals.

There is a great tendency on the part of most people to live from day to day, without any conscious attempt to follow a pattern based fundamentally on principles personally accepted in theory but not always discernible in the turmoil of daily affairs. It might be profitable for all of us to check up on our pretensions and practices.

RESTORATION NOW GOES ON

From Williamsburg, Virginia, comes the announcement by President Carlisle Humelsine that the work of restoring the ancient Va. colonial capitol, goes on. Humelsine has just made his first annual report as the head of Colonial Williamsburg.

As the reader probably knows this project, begun under the inspiration of John D. Rockefeller Jr., comes closer to exactly reproducing life in the seventeen hundreds than anything else in the United States.

It is interesting to know that the restoration goes on and becomes more complete each year. In the latest annual report on the work at Williamsburg, several recent discoveries, adding to the knowledge and restoration, are mentioned.

Altogether, the task is a tremendous one and the accomplishment thus far realized is and will be a heritage available to all Americans. We are a young country, but our short history has been a dramatic one. It is wonderful that an entire city like Williamsburg has been rebuilt — offering

CHARITY SHOULD BEGIN AT HOME

Every now and then we hear about some fine citizen who has adopted an orphan abroad, or a family abroad, and who is sending money and food and clothes, regularly, to support his charity. Often as not, the American doing this has never seen the beneficiary or beneficiaries.

Thinking of this, and opening our eyes to some of the conditions which surround us, it becomes readily apparent that there is much help needed by people in our own community and in our own state.

For example, if we are inclined to adopt some parentless child, we might look at some of the wonderful orphanages in this country, and which are not too far from home. There is nothing wrong with helping our own people, and they would appreciate it, and the results of this help could be judged first-hand, at least to a far greater degree than one can judge what is happening to his money overseas.

The point of this article is that we are sometimes a little bit too eager to send our money to a distant land, because we fall for sentimental tales and nostalgia, overlooking great needs which surround us.

COLORED STARS IN THE SKY

This is a good time of year to turn your attention to the colored stars. They are few in the heavens, and it takes some careful attention to pick them out, but you can do it if you will pick a bright night and go about the job with determination.

A reddish star which might be seen is Mira, or the Wonderful Star, which is found in the constellation Cetus. Cetus is in the southern part of the sky. Mira becomes very bright for about ten days, about this time of the year, and is reddish in color. It is much larger than the sun.

In the northeastern portion of the heavens, the bright star Capella is easy to observe, and lies in the small constellation of the Chariot. The Charioteer is in the northern edge of the Milky Way. Near it, down towards the east, is the orange-red star Aldebaran, which is in the constellation Taurus.

Note that Capella and Aldebaran are the only brilliant stars high up in the whole eastern half of the heavens at about nine o'clock at night at this time of the year.

You can find three bright stars near the North Star. They are Vega, Deneb, and Capella — and Capella is the brightest star nearest the Pole. If you have any delusions of grandeur, when you view Capella, remember that you are seeing it as it was forty-seven years ago. It takes that long for its light to reach the earth. Capella is actually speeding away from us at the rate of nineteen miles a second.

Capella ranks third in brightness of all the stars we see in the United States, and is a faint yellow star. If you look at it to-night, and then see it tomorrow night, it will be 1,631,600 miles farther away — which reminds you again of the immensity, scope and miracle of the heavens.

Marshall Baptists Forming Groups For Canvassing

During the week of November 22-27, an effort will be made to lead every church and Sunday School member to make a pledge toward the 1960 budget goal of the Marshall Baptist Church. (Sunday school members who are not church members will be invited to share in the pledging if they desire.)

It is hoped that most of the pledges will come in on Pledge Sunday, November 22. Sunday school leaders are informing their members of the attendance goal for that Sunday, and urging those who know they must be absent to send their cards early to be counted in the tabulation.

Clyde Roberts and the four men on his budget pledging committee are enlisting additional men to serve as canvassers the week following Pledge Sunday. They will call in the homes of those who are unable to be present on Pledge Day. The committeemen who are enlisting the canvassers include:

- Clyde M. Roberts
- Roy Reeves
- Boyce Mayhew
- Walter Ramsey
- Arthur Ledford

If you are asked to serve as a canvasser, be ready to say yes. You will not only receive a personal blessing from visiting, but you will be making a valuable contribution to the financial program of the church.

WHO'LL GET THE COFFEE?

Amsterdam, Holland—The secretary who is merely adept at shorthand and typing will soon be obsolete, according to an inventor who is working on an "electrical secretary" that will be ready for mass production within three years. The inventor claims "The machine will silently, obediently, and efficiently take a letter, type it, and address the envelope without stopping to powder its nose, light a cigarette, or go out for a cup of coffee."

Latest reports are that business executives from all over the world have expressed enthusiasm for the new invention. The secretaries? They're not so sure.

RECOVERS A STOLEN TRUCK

Flagstaff, Ariz. — Walking along the street, Glenn McNeese saw his stolen pickup truck with a stranger at the wheel.

He borrowed a car, and chased the truck. Six miles from town he forced the truck to the side of the road, climbed in, and drove the occupant to jail.

FAMILY FALLOUT SHELTER NEEDED

In every community, and in this one, people have thought recently about fallout shelters. Unfortunately, not enough has been done about them.

One of the ominous realities we must face today is that if a nuclear war develops we will not then have time to provide this adequate shielding against radiation. After the sirens sound, and after the bomb or bombs, have been dropped, it will be too late for us to protect our families and loved ones.

Of course, in recommending constructing a family fallout shelter, some may conclude that we are being premature. This is not true. Even if the shelter is never used, it is a wise precaution for the thinking family to take, and it can be used in time of emergency, during a severe storm, such as a tornado, and for other purposes. But even if it is never used, it is certainly better to be prepared to avoid fatal doses of radiation, by acting in time, even if a nuclear war does develop, than to be unprepared — and at the mercy of events.

The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization has compiled a booklet giving instructions for the building of a fallout shelter. The booklet gives instructions for building a basement shelter, and general instructions for building an outdoor shelter.

For further information, or if one of the booklets is required, it may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, at Washington 25, D. C. for 10 cents.

SPACE LAW URGED

Atlanta, Ga. — The American Bar Association has been told that national sovereignty should end fifty - three miles up in the air. The law of outer space — what over it is—would take over then. John Cabb Cooper, a McGill University professor, who is an expert on space law, says international control is the only practical answer. He also indicated that governments had already indicated some acceptance of the principle.

MARS HILL LOSES 13-6 GRID GAME TO C-N JAYVEES

Bobby Baker scored two touchdowns Thursday night to lead the Carson-Newman Jayvees to a 13-6 victory over Mars Hill Junior College on the rain-soaked Mars Hill gridiron.

Baker scored from the three-yard line in the first quarter to top off a 52-yard drive. The big gainer in the drive was a 32-yard run by Baker.

Mars Hill tied the count in the second when end Joe Barter scooped up an Eaglet fumble and raced 26 yards to score.

On the second play of the second half, Baker sewed up the victory. On the first play, he ran 45 yards to the Mars Hill two, then he bulled on across for the winning touchdown. Pat Cotter kicked the extra point.

Carson-Newman fielded an excellent defense holding the Lions for downs on the 5, 15, 29, 8 and 20.

Mars Hill's final game will be an encounter with Gardner-Webb Nov. 14 at Swannanoa. The game will be sponsored by the Men's Club there.
