WARNS ON HYPNOSIS

A leading medical authority warned recently that "graduates" of three-day courses on hypnosis were creating a major concern. Moreover, he warned that doctors and dentists using hypnosis could do great harm.

Dr. Harold Rosen, of Baltimore, who heads the American Medical Association's committee on the medical use of hypnosis, said that graduates of these short hypnosis courses often included physicians and dentists.

It only takes fifteen to twenty minutes to teach one how to put a patient into a trance, but it often takes a mental hospital or a psychiatrist considerably more time to repair the damage done when certain regressive or unconscious fantasies are unleashed through hypnosis, Dr. Rosen said. Because of this, Dr. Rosen warns that hypnosis should only be used by physicians thoroughly grounded in basic psycho-dynamics, and never used by lay persons or even superficially trained doctors.

Hypnosis is a mysterious art, and long, been used by the peoples and certain individuals all over the world. Dr. Rosen believes that it should be taught in medical schools, and that, in time, it will be given the professional status it deserves.

In summary, it would seem that the use of hypnosis has wonderful promise, and that one should prefer it be administered by a doctor or a dentist who has taken a broad view on the subject, and who has studied the use of hypnosis at length. Certainly the substitution of amateur hypnotists for competent medical attention, or anesthesia, is inadvisable at this time.

PREVENTION OF INSECT DAMAGE URGED BY AGENT

According to James M. Stewart, assistant county agent, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This adage applies for many tobacco farmers in controlling insects on tobacco. Each year, nearly every farmer in the burley area has to contend with flea beetles, cutworms, budworms and hornworms.

Henry Davis, a tobacco farmer in the Bluff community of Madison County, believes he is well ahead by treating regularly to prevent insect damage rather than using chemical after he has received damage. By doing this, Davis says, "can prevent insect damage and can control insects while they are small."

Tobacco farmers can prevent flea beetles, cutworms and budworm damage with 5 to 8 pounds of 10% DDT dust or one-fourth pound of 50% DDT in 9 pounds of meal, per acre. In addition to these chemicals, budworms can be effectively controlled with 10% TDE at the rate of 5 to 8 pounds per acre. TDE, as a 10% material used at the rate of 15 to 30 pounds per acre, is also effective in controlling hornworms. For additional information, farmers should contact the county agricultural agent's office.

Today's MEDITATION

The Upper Room THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE Read 1 Peter 2:1-5.

As for you, always be steady, endure suffering, do the work of an evangelist, fulfill your ministry. (II Timothy 4:5, RSV.)

In the very first evening service I attended in Yama Yakot, a missionary station among the Aguaruna Indians, I was surprised to hear this thought: "Not Christians but evangelists is what God wants." When the service was over, I asked the missionary what he meant by his strange words. He replied, "Among these Indians, a Christian means, wrongly of course, a person who deceives, robs, and despises them. Such wrongs they have received at the hands of those who they thought were Christians. Therefore we use another word, the word evangel, for a sincere believer in Christ."

As I went to the riverside, I felt sorry that the word Christian had been given an odious meaning to the Aguaruna Indians. Then I thought a little more as to what they meant by the word evangel. Could it not be that God wants all His followers to be evangelists - not tellers of the gospel only, but followers of Christ who live the gospel each day, and influence others to accept Christ?

PRAYER --O Father, help us to see our place of responsibility to Thee and to our fellow men. In Thy light may we see light, for we would not cause others to stumble but be for them an influence for their help: through Christ. Amen. THOUGHT FOR THE DAY This day I will be an evangelist to those I meet. Eduardo D. Aguilar (Peru)

KEEP DRINKERS FROM DRIVING

A man who has made it his business to gather information in connection with automobile accidents expresses his belief that possibly half of all the motor vehicle accidents on the highways of our nation are caused by drinking drivers.

If this statement is correct - and it may be that an even larger percentage of drinking drivers is "involved" - it indicates that more stringent supervision of those who drive automobiles is advisable. The only way to establish the correctness of the assertion is through a more rigorous examination of all drivers involved in accidents.

The driver of an automobile, or truck, speeding on the highways at speeds the law permits today, is supposed to be in control of a vehicle that is potentially dangerous. Drivers of such vehicles, therefore, should be required to keep themselves in a condition proportionate to the public peril. This supposition, however, is not enough to safeguard pedestrians not engaged in automobile driving. Possibly, strict enforcement of existing statutes, with severe punishment of offenders, will do the work. It should be tried in North Carolina.
