PROBLEM WITHOUT SOLUTION

The TVA report outlining flood problems on the French Broad River in the vicinity of Marshall was presented to approximately 40 interested people Mon-day afternoon at the REA Building here.

The meeting brought together some of the "top brass" of the TVA, including Colonel Harry E. Brown, director of N. C. Department of Water Resources; James E. Goddard, Joseph E. Enloe, and Marvin S. Shadel, TVA specialists. Also present was John Hampton, Director, WNC Regional Planning Commission. Representatives of CP&L, French Broad Electric Mem. Co-op, and about 20 interested citizens of Marshall made the meeting highly informative and interesting.

Splendid and comprehensive booklets recently published by the Division of Water Control Planning, TVA, were distributed and proved most informative. Data and pictures also make the booklet highly entertaining and valuable to keep.

Much credit for this splendid report is due Reed A. Elliott, Chief Water Control Planning Engineer; Albert S. Frye, James Smallshaw, James W. Beverage, Myron O. Jensen, Joseph S. Enloe, Margaret C. Longmire, Elizabeth G. Breeden, Robert Forbes, and many others.

Mr. Goddard explained the purpose of the data compiled as those present reviewed the booklet.

Other top men spoke briefly and then questions were asked concerning a possible solution to our dangerous location in regard to past and future high waters and floods.

No Immediate Solution

It was agreed that Marshall is situated in a most vulnerable location in regard to floods. Our people are well aware of this, having seen the town destroyed in 1916 and almost washed away in 1940. A high wall along the right edge of the river was one suggested solution which would lessen the chances of the town washing away but would not protect the Island or the far side along the river. This, however, would demand a cost which is prohibitive. Another would demand a cost which is promitive. Another suggested solution is to build retaining dams upstream above Asheville. This would help, of course, but no immediate plans for such dams are being made. Building a dam on Ivy River would help, but where is the money coming from to build it? More land conservation would help, but would this be sufficient "flood proof?"

All these suggestions were aired but Mr. Goddard just about summed it up by saying the safest way was to "keep man away from water and water away from man." But how? He also suggested that washing away was to "move on the hill; perhaps to the by-pass."

Until something more feasible is advanced, we suggest that we continue to pray that the river doesn't' wash us away.

LIBRARY PROSPECTS BRIGHT

From all present indications, the main branch of the country library will be moved from Hot Springs to Marshall, probably next month.

This comes as good news to many local citizens who realize the value of a library. It has also been indicated that branch libraries will be maintained at Hot Springs and Mars Hill. This is also encouraging news for citizens of these two towns who have shown unrelenting interest in the library service.

In last week's editorial an appeal was made for a suitable building with low rent so that the main library could return to the county seat. Indications at that time revealed little chance for the transition. However, considerable public spirit has been shown during the past few days which makes it now almost certain that Marshall will have a library.

Major credit belongs to Rex Allen, chairman of the Library Board, and Dr. J. L. McElroy. Dr. McElroy has offered the building on Main Street now housing the ASC offices at a reduced rental for a library. In a talk with Dr. McElroy this week, he stated that he would be glad to reduce the rent in order to have a library here. He is a firm believer, as is his wife, that a library in Marshall could be invaluable. This public-spirited demonstration should be loudly commended and it is hoped that others will be as enthusiastic as Dr. McElroy and Rex Allen, who has been of great assistance in his capacity as commissioner and through his desires for the library.
