EDITORIAL

HI, MOM! YOU'RE WONDERFUL!

This coming Sunday — May 13 — is Mother's Day.

The world has become so busy with its scientific advancements . . . its startling news . . . its vast increase in crime . . . its crowded schedule of meetings and socials . . . and the thousands of other things which take our time and attention, we have little time to really sit down quietly and think of our many blessings. We are often too busy to gather as a family for any length of time. We are victims of a rushing world.

Once a year, however, we have an observance of Mother's Day. Regardless of our busy schedule we should turn our thoughts to the greatest girl in the world — Mother.

To us, whose mothers have passed away, we can have our memories and express our love in prayers and thoughts. We, too, can observe Mother's Day.

To those who are fortunate to have their mothers living, we sincerely hope that they will honor her and express their love for and to her. The most tender word in the English language is Mother.

We seldom realize how much Mother means to us. Only this week we were reading the following paragraphs and were so impressed that we have decided to close this column with those paragraphs:

Ouch, Mommie, I skinned my knee and it hur-r-rtts!

Sure it does, dear. Now close your eyes and count to ten slowly and then count to ten again and I'll have a nice white bandage on it and it won't hurt any more. Mom . . . what's kindergarten like? Do I hafta go? Gee . . . I'm scared. Now, Johnny don't be ashamed to be scared. All of us are a little frightened of new things we don't know about. But do you know what? Most every one of those new things turns out to be fun . . . and that's the way we grow up a little each day. Now get your jacket . . .

Watch that flutter kick, Ginger, if you really want to learn to swim the crawl! Gee, Mother, you make it so easy. You can teach anything! Yes, I know it was an accident you broke Mr. Harrison's window with the ball. Now you march over and tell him you'll mow his lawn till it's paid for.

Oh, Mother, you waited up. I'm glad. The dance was simply super and dreamy and, Mom . . . did you worry about being popular when you were sixteen? Of course, Nan. Every girl does. But I learned something, too. Do you know the best way to be liked? It is being yourself.

Thanks, George, for your hand. I can't whisper in church but I'm thinking we've come full circle it seems. Now it is our son who is getting married and he looks and acts so much like you did that wonderful June day back in 1937 . . .

Sure, you don't mind, Mom? We'll be back early. Mind? I love it! Show me a woman who would rather do anything else than baby-sit . . . with her own two beautiful grandchildren!

Hi, Mom! You're a wonderful girl!

Madison Nine Keeps Record Intact With Win Over Old Fort

The Madison Nine baseball team kept its record clean by defeating Old Fort last Sunday afternoon on the Old Fort diamond, 2-0.

Old Fort's fast ball pitcher, A. Edwards, held the Marshall batters to only two hits, while Bill Davis, Madison hurler, gave up 4 hits.

Fine defensive play by both teams was witnessed throughout the game.

Old Fort traveled to Madison on Saturday but the rains came before game time. This game will be made up later in the season.

Madison will go to Enka this Saturday afternoon, and Enka will play Madison Sunday on the Island in Marshall. Saturday's game is 3 p. m., and Sunday's game is at 2:30 p. m.

Madison 000 100 100—2 2 0
Old Fort 000 000 000—4 0 2

Dockery of Greenback, Tenn.; two half-brothers, Jim and John Massey of Rt. 1, Walnut; one sister, Mrs. Martha Freeman of Newport, Tennessee; and one half-sister, Miss Noda Dockery of Walnut.

Bowman Rector Funeral Home was in charge.

Singing

The regular 2nd Sunday Singing will be held this coming Sunday night, May 13, at Arrington Branch Baptist Church, starting at 7:30 o'clock. All singers and the public are invited to attend.

We are expecting a good singing, so don't miss it.

A group of primary children from the Mars Hill School was one of the runners-up in the Mountain Youth Jamboree which was held recently in Asheville. They were in competition in the Elementary Folk Dancing division. Their precision dancing to the tune of "Little Brown Jug" was excellent. For this they got a high rating. Their costumes were red and white. The "boys" are actually girls dressed up as the ladies' partners. The dance was under the direction of Mrs. Thaida C. Roberts. Her group did a Mexican dance last year and won an award for the best elementary folk dance during the Jamboree.

The group was composed of: Lisa Haley, Melanie Chapman, Linda Gayle Fisher, Patricia Murray, Elaine Ray, Peggy Drake, Susan Chapman, Jayne Buckner, Sheila Bruce, and Vicki Narron.

Revival Services To Start At Bethel Baptist Church

The Rev. Bill Hensley, of Orlando, Fla., will begin a revival meeting at Bethel Baptist Church on Monday, May 14.

The Rev. Mr. Hensley was the former pastor of Edgewood Baptist Church of Enka.

Singing

The regular 2nd Sunday afternoon Gospel Singing will be held at the Hopewell Baptist Church next Sunday, May 13, beginning at 2 o'clock.

All singers and listeners are invited to attend. We are expecting some good singers — among them the Shore Family Singers from Asheville.

Be there to enjoy it with us.
