This delay can be held to an absolute minimum, Mr. Wall added, if taxpayers will act promptly when they receive the necessary forms and instructions from the District Director's Office. He went on to say that those who now recall having failed to submit the required schedules with their returns do nothing until they hear from the district office, since this is the only manner in which the returns and schedules can be promptly associated.

IRS further urged that those taxpayers who have not yet filed their returns examine them carefully to see that they are accurate and complete in every detail before sending them to the Internal Revenue District Office.
