HEARD AND SEEN

By "POP"

This column is being written Tuesday morning, a few hours before I enter the Memorial Mission Hospital for a Cataract operation which is scheduled for Wednesday a. m. — if all goes according to schedule, I will have had the operation before you read this column — I want to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the many comforting comments extended to me — it certainly makes the ordeal much easier knowing that so many people are praying for me — not only do I want to express my appreciation to so many local people, but also I want to thank all those who have written since learning of my trouble — too, I have received several long-distance telephone calls, wishing me a successful operation and speedy recovery — included in these calls were well-wishers from Asheville, Charlotte and Greenville — as I've said before, it makes things much easier knowing that friends care — it's going to be mighty trying to have to go through the rigid recuperating period but most anything is better than going around "half-blind" — someone suggested I change this column from Heard and Seen to Heard and Dimly Seen — not a bad idea — for the next few weeks, I doubt that I will be able to write this column but if all goes well, I will continue as soon as I'm able.

Marshall Book Club Met On Monday With Mrs. Huey

The Marshall Book Club met Monday evening, March 18 at the home of Mrs. Wade Huey. After the business session, Mrs. Curtis Sears gave a most interesting review of the book "Child's Play" by Eda Lord. This was a book written in first person, with amusing glimpses of life as seen through the eyes of a child.

Delicious salad and coffee were then served to Mrs. John Corbett, Mrs. Walter Ramsey, Mrs. J. L. McElroy, Mrs. Overton Gregory, Mrs. Curtis Sears and the hostess, Mrs. Huey.

COMFORT STALLS FOR DAIRY COWS

Within a short period of eight years Madison County dairyman have seen for the first time, and many have accepted for their farms, stainless steel bulk milk tanks, bunker silos, loose housing and full feeding of silage, states Harry G. Silver, county agent. They have gone from stall milking on floor level to platforms and pipeline milkers. Feed production changed from hay to silage. Silage corn cut by hand loaded into a trailer and hand fed into a stationary cutter, to field harvesters which cut the corn down, cuts it up and blows it into dump trucks. Growing this corn was done with a cultivator and maybe 2,4-D, and topdressed by hand. How corn production is changing! The more up to date farmers are topdressing, by preplant fertilization, planting, and laying by, by chemical weed control, all in the same day. What next?

Dairy cows must be kept clean. Before each cow is milked her udder must be washed and thoroughly cleaned. This is a slow process if cows are not clean. Keeping the lounging area clean by the old systems of stalls or loose housing requires large amounts of bedding and a lot of work.

J. E. Buckner of Mars Hill needed additional lounging area for his cows. Last summer he built a new type barn to accommodate 40 cows. He built his barn 56 feet long and 40 feet wide. The entire front of the barn is open and faces south. J. E. built four rows of individual pens 4 feet wide and eight long. The two feet in the rear of each stall is on concrete sloped away from the stall. A drain was placed in the back of each opening under a 4 inch high curb on a concrete alley separating 12 feet wide which separates theopen stalls. By facing two rows of stall toward each other he only needed two alleys. The stall floor is on the ground covered with two inches of sand and a god sawdust cover. The stalls are actually pens separated by three 2 by 6 inch pieces of wood nailed to pressure treated post.

J. E. is well pleased with his comfort stalls. His cows are as clean as show cattle. He save time in milking since his cows are cleaner. Since November only three loads of sawdust have been used in bedding. This is only one third the amount required by the old type barns. The alleys in the barn are scraped with a tractor scrape. The concrete covered area in front of the barn and by J. E.'s self feeder bunker silos enable the 40 cows to keep out of mud at all times.
