BOOSTERS' CLUB

The Marshall High School Boosters' Club is at least "off the ground" following a meeting of 20 interested citizens in the home economics department of the school Tuesday night. Due to the tremendous expense of maintaining an adequate sports program in the school, plus the fact that revenue for such a program is limited, such an organization could be of great benefit.

With the limited means for buying equipment and improving facilities it works an almost overwhelming burden on the school officials under the present system. Figures revealed at the meeting Tuesday clearly pointed out that the athletic program was operating at a deficit or "in the red." It takes a great deal of money to properly field athletic teams.

Coach Ed Morton spoke highly of the cooperation shown by Clive Whitt, Marshall's principal, and stated that the equipment now on hand was "above the average high school equipment as to material, protection and appearance." It was also pointed out that unless equipment can be purchased often, the cost is almost prohibitive if the delay in replacing equipment is too long.

Coach Morton believes that when shoulder pads or shirts, or any other part of the equipment is torn or worn, new pieces should be bought immediately. In this way, he explained, this keeps the equipment in good shape at all times without incurring the heavy expenses of replacing sets of uniforms and equipment.

Practical questions were asked and factual answers were given to the 20 present. Average receipts and disbursements were discussed. Needs and projects were discussed. Ideas were exchanged and the 20 present came away feeling more sympathetic toward the overall athletic picture at the local school.

Too, after hearing these figures it is more evident than ever that the school needs an "assist" and a Boosters' Club could do much assisting.

It was also pointed out that every effort has been made to secure a band director but to date no director has been secured. Officials stated that they, like the public, were disappointed concerning the absence of a band. Mr. Zeno Ponder explained how the request for funds to obtain a full-time band director had been put in the school budget but to find a suitable director was most difficult.

"If any of you know where we might get a band director who is qualified and one who is desirable, please let us know and we'll get one," Mr. Ponder concluded.

Other projects which a Boosters' Club might consider are: A new press box. The old press box is antiquated and actually dangerous. It only accommodates six persons. We need room for at least nine or ten, especially when you combine press reporters, public address announcer and two "spotters," visiting press and local radio. Steps are also needed instead of the present ladder up to the press box.

More bleachers are needed. Six new bleachers have been built, thanks to the efforts of Mr. Whitt and the school personnel, but at least six more are needed. Mr. Whitt is doing everything possible to have this done, but the citizens of Marshall could be of invaluable assistance if they so desired.

A trophy case is greatly needed for the school to exhibit their trophies. Surely, when teams win coveted trophies they shouldn't be hidden but rather displayed in an attractive place. This could be a Boosters' Club project.

These are only a few needed improvements. There are many more.

The 20 persons present at the meeting heard all these problems thrashed out but all those who did not attend remain "in the dark."

If you are interested in helping the school and its pupils we urge you to make plans to attend the second meeting of the Boosters' Club at the school on Thursday night, September 19, at eight o'clock. A permanent slate of officers will be elected and it is hoped that the organization will be "off and flying" in the near future.
