Lapland Clodstompers To Be Featured Here Next Week

When you hear the crowds cheering and the children laughing in Marshall next week, then you will know that the "Lapland Clodstompers" with Joe Lynn Metcalf and his "Gully Marchers" are coming down the street! This marching band will be using homemade instruments which they have constructed themselves, and they will entertain us daily if not almost hourly, during the Harvest Festival Week. All of these musicians and dancers are students from your local high school. You will be amazed at the skills and talents they have developed in this novelty band. We urge you to make your plans to come to Marshall for all these exciting events of the week. But we especially recommend that you see the performances of this original group. This band will be something like you have never seen before and we are sure they will be the "talk of the town." These youngsters are working mighty hard to entertain us; so friends, let's give them our staunch support.

BALLARD HAS INTERESTING COLLECTION

Those who are interested in rock and mineral collections, as well as Indian relics, are invited out to Clyde McClure's store in Walnut to observe Paul Ballard's collections, Saturday afternoon, from 1 to 6 o'clock.

"I am sure students who are studying science in school would be greatly benefitted by seeing them," Mr. Ballard said.

MARINE CORPS OFFERS SPECIAL ENLISTMENT

Gunnery Sergeant Ed Kendrick announced today that the Marine Corps is now offering its special 120-day delay enlistment plan for men and women seeking to join the Marines immediately, but depart for recruit training following the Christmas holidays.

Those selecting the join now but leave later program can choose their own departure date for anytime within the 120-day period," the sergeant said. He added that men and women enlisting under this option will be in line for an immediate pay increase once training starts. Men joining the Marine Corps under this special program will at the same time be serving a portion of their military obligations. Sgt. Kendrick, who maintains his recruiting office at the Post Office in Asheville, said men desiring to enlist together may volunteer under the "Buddy Plan" at the same time they select the 120-day delay under the "Buddy Plan" at the 14-year veteran, enables two or more men to join the Marines together and remain together throughout their entire recruit training period.
