PRESIDENT KENNEDY ASSASSINATION

On November twenty-second of sixty-three, America was swept into deep misery. What started out to be good-will trip Plunged President Kennedy into death's dread grip.

No greater reception in Texas could he find; Dallas streets with cheering crowds were lined. Kennedy waved to the people along the way, Unaware that tragedy would strike that day.

Suddenly an assassin took deadly aim; It seemed the President was to be his game. With an extensive bullet wound in the head, In thirty minutes John Kennedy was dead.

His lovely wife who was there by his side, Had to witness the horror of that fateful ride. Fast to the hospital the chauffeur sped, But soon her cherished companion was dead.

The ring from her finger she placed in his hand. Their symbol of love called a wedding band. She put a kiss on his lips then they had to part, Because of a madman with murder in his heart.

Soon the saddest words to America were said: That John F. Kennedy, our President, was dead. People were grief stricken for their leader brave, How did it happen in America, this crime so grave?

Less than an hour after the President had died, Lee Oswald was picked up, and soon to be tried. But as fate would have it at noon Sunday, Jack Ruby was to take Oswald's life away.

Jackie carried out arrangements with courage great; She must not take time to think or hate; Her husband she will see to his last repose; She must give him her thoughts and also a rose.

John Kennedy rests in Arlington, but not alone. There sleeps President, Private and Soldier Unknown. When darkness comes and loved ones have gone, The body of a great man will quietly sleep on.

The eternal flame lighted at the tomb by his wife, Was to tell the world there is everlasting life. May we give as he did our best, our all; So our beloved America will never fall.

BOUNDARY TREES

Black and White are adjoining landowners. The trunk of a tree is wholly on the land of Black, but its branches overhang on the land of White and the roots of the tree penetrate the soil of White's land. Is White entitled to the fruit on the branches which extend upon his land?

No. The tree and all of its fruit belong to Black. White is liable to Black if he takes any of the fruit without the consent of Black.

The ownership of the entire tree as a unit is determined by the location of the trunk. The law recognizes the practical difficulties which would be involved in giving to each of the landowners an undivided share of the tree in proportion to the degree of nourishment supplied to the tree by the land of such owners.

Ownership of the tree carries with it one of the rare instances of a license, arising by law irrespective of consent, giving it to the owner of the tree the right to enter on the adjoining land and to gather the fruit growing on such overhanging branches.

The trunk of a tree is wholly on the land of Black, but its branches and roots extend upon the land of White. Is White liable to Black if he cuts off the branches and roots which have extended upon his land?

No. White may cut the branches and roots to the line without liability for any resulting damage to the tree.

The owner of a tree has no easement of natural right to have his tree continue to draw nourishment from and to shade by virtue of overhanging branches the adjoining land of a neighbor.

The cut branches and roots belong to the owner of the tree, not to the neighbor who cuts them.

If the roots of trees extend across the boundary line into the premises of an adjoining cause damage, as by the clogging of a sewer line, there may be a recovery of damages for any injury sustained. The injured property owner may also sue the neighbor in the form of injunctive relief against the encroachment of such roots upon his property.

PAPER SETS OFF ALARM

Pasadena, Calif. — A newspaper boy tossed a newspaper high into the air. Falling back, it grazed the lever of a fire-alarm box, bringing six fire trucks to the intersection. The carrier, Ronald Vestal, 14, was considerably surprised.

1,000 POUNDS BETWEEN THEM

Jackson, Tenn. — W. D. Cowlan, 23-year-old man of Erie, Pa., and Miss Mabel Ruth Watkins, of Alliquippa, Pa., were recently married here. The unusual thing about the couple is the fact that Cowlan weighs 640 pounds and his bride, 360 pounds. The ceremony took place in the bus used by a traveling show of which Cowlan is a feature attraction.

Farm Bureau—

agricultural dollar is multiplied seven times as it moves through the economy.
"This is too important a part of our economy to be entrusted to people who don't understand or care about farming," the Madison County Farm Bureau president said.
North Carolina's estimated agricultural income for 1962, he noted, was $1,362,080,554. It increased 7.1 per cent, or $90,089,917 over the 1961 figure, he said. In Madison County the increase was $318,348.

Roberts submitted that this program "would have been erased if we had been depending on legislators who had only big city interests at heart."

Roberts, quoting Agricultural Extension Service estimates, cited the following 1962 income figures from some of the major farm commodities produced in Madison County: Tobacco—$3,758,313; Cattle, $1,061,000; Milk, $560,000; Poultry & Eggs, $907,500.

"Producing and marketing these crops is a specialized and complex business," Roberts said, "and legislators must understand our problem if Madison County's farming is to stay on a firm economic footing"

NEW CHEVELLE!

BY CHEVROLET

The kind of go—6 or V8—you'd expect from one of Chevy's great highway performers. Come on down and drive it.

The kind of comfort you'd expect in a large interior. Come on down and sit in it.

The kind of fresh styling—inside and out—that makes it the year's smartest surprise. Come down and stare at it.

New Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

Now—Chevy spirit in a new kind of car!

We built this one to do more than just stand around looking beautiful. Held its weight down in the 3,000-pound range. Then built four lusty engines—two sixes and two V8's—with output all the way up to 220 horses*!

And if that makes you think this is one frisky car, you've got the right idea.

You've also got a roomy car here. Yet its 115-inch wheelbase keeps it highly maneuverable in traffic and very easy to park.

With its Full Coil suspension, it's got a ride that reminds you of the Jet-smooth kind the way it muffles noise and cushions bumps. And the fine hand of Body by Fisher craftsmen shows up beneath this one's suave good looks, too.

Sound good? There's more. Like the fact that Chevelle comes in three series with eleven models—convertibles, sport coupes, sedans, wagons, even Super Sport models with front bucket seats. Like the fact that (and see if this isn't one of the nicest surprises of all) the new Chevelle comes at an easy-to-take price!

Like to hear more? The listening's wonderful at your Chevrolet dealer's—and so's the driving.
